It's Time to Work Together

Action has been started to re-organize the Charlevoix Board of Commerce as an organization independent of city government. The interest shown at the meeting two weeks ago indicated a strong public desire to set up this new organization and unite all forces for the promotion and betterment of the community.

Actual organization will be effected at a public meeting in the City Hall Friday evening with the adoption of articles of incorporation and the election of a board of directors. It is imperative that every person interested in our future welfare assume his share of responsibility in choosing and then supporting the directors elected.

Twenty-five candidates for the board of directors have been selected by a nominating committee and all have been interviewed and all have agreed to accept the responsibility of a director if elected. Additional candidates may be nominated at the meeting. From the list of nominees will be elected the number of directors prescribed by the articles of incorporation.

Now is the time for everyone to get into the picture and support theCharlevoix community through the Charlevoix Board of Commerce.

Harbor Springs Rams Win Class C Regional Title

The Harbor Springs Rams captured their first regional Class C title in 16 years Saturday night to advance to the state quarter-finals against the upper peninsula Class C winners, Crystall Falls, a team which is representing that area in the quarter-finals for the third straight year.

The game was scheduled to be played at Traverse City in the new St Francis gymnasium last night (Wednesday) The victor will advance to the semi-finals in Lansing Friday. The Class C finals will be played at the Jenison field house in East Lansing Saturday afternoon.

Harbor Springs advanced to the quarter-finals after dumping Traverse City St. Francis in the regional finals at Petoskey by a score of 63 to 47 Saturday night.

The Rams trailed the Gladiators 10 to 9 at the quarter before finding their stride in the second period when they dumped in 24 points to take a 33 to 18 half-time lead. They continued to outscore the Traverse City squad 11 to 6 in the third quarter for a 45 to 26 advantage going into the final period before taking the game by a 16 point margin.

Ken Garver, the only junior on the squad, tallied 21 points for the victors. Jerry Gavaldon had 14 for Traverse City.

Harbor Springs defeated Gaylord 61 to 48 and the St. Francis team rolled over Roscommon 49 to 46 to advance to the regional finals.

Harbor Springs of the Northern Michigan Class C league ended the season in second place behind Boyne City in loop standings with a record of 10 wins and three losses in league play. They had a record of 12 wins and 5 losses for the season. Since then they have added four victories to represent the area in state tournament play.

This is the third year Crystal Falls has represented the upper peninsula in the quarter-finals. In 1956 they defeated Boyne City in an overtime game and then went on to take the state Class C title. Last year they were defeated by the Grayling Vikings who were defeated by Lakeview in the semi-finals. The latter then took the title.

In Class D the fabulous Chassell team from the upper peninsula with a string of 62 straight wins over a three year period was scheduled to play Glen Arbor at Petoskey.

In Class B Alpena Catholic Central was to take on Marquette at Grayling.

Plans Meeting to Organize Women's Golf Association

Plans for the formation of a Women's Golf Association to be affiliated with the Charlevoix Municipal Golf course will be discussed at a meeting of local women golfers to be held at the home of Mrs. Perry Smith Jr., at 8 p. m. Friday, March 28.

The plans for the organization grew out of several special women's events held at the course last summer under the direction of Keith Carey, golf pro and manager at the course. During the past summer the women golfers voiced a desire to organize as a group and to hold weekly tournaments of various kinds.

The meeting next week, which is being called at the suggestion of Mrs. Carey, is to further the project and possibly to elect officers and set a fee for the season.

All local women golfers who have established handicaps at the local course as well as all others interested in golf are invited to this important meeting.

Anyone desiring more information regarding the proposed organization may call Mrs. Smith.

To Re-organize Bd. of Commerce At Public Meet

An important meeting to be devoted to the re-organization of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce will be held at the community room of the city hall at 8 p. m. Friday.

A committee headed by Norman D. Ance and assisted by Max Hosmer, Fred Willis, Lee Moerland and Richard Edwards has been busy drawing up a set of by-laws for the approval of those attending the meeting Friday.

The nominating committee has compiled a list of 23 candidates for the board of directors. At a meeting last week this committee headed by Harold Totton broke down the list of possible memberships into four catagories that is, resort, industry, professional and retail with services included in the later group. All candidates whose names will appear on the ballots have been contacted by the nominating committee and have indicated if elected. Nominations also will be accepted from the floor during the meeting.

Everyone interested in the future of Charlevoix and in the Board of Commerce is urged to attend Friday's meeting to assist in the adoption of the by-laws by which the organization will be operated and to elect directors who will represent all local groups on the Board of Commerce.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

Sure and it was a great day for the Irish . . . those sons and daughters of the auld sod everywhere but especially on Beaver Island where it was celebrated in great style . . . If the grand old Saint looked down from his lofty home in Heaven, we're sure he would have felt honored that his anniversary is still being celebrated on another island half a world away from the one from which he drove the snakes . . . how many centuries ago? . . .

And there was an Irishman right here in town who may not have celebrated the day in such glorious way but he sure was tellin' the world that he has more than a drop of Irish blood in his veins (is it really green, as they say?) by wearing just about the greenest pair of trousers you'll ever see . . . His name? . . Why William O' Ratigan hisself.

The basketball season begins in November and almost every night from then until the season ends in March the fellows who play the round-ball game practice . . . It must be quite a let-down for them after all those months . . . to have all that time on their hands . . We've often wondered how they kept in shape 'til the track season opened . . . we figured they did something . . They do, we happened to find out just by chance the other night . . Two of the biggest ones . . . the guys who need the whole basketball floor to maneuver on any other time were crowded into one of those tiny telephone booths down on Bridge st. passing the receiver back and forth as they talked over the phone to someone . . . a blonde, no doubt. . . Exercise? . . . why they were getting plenty of it . . . as you well know if you've ever tried to maneuver in one when you're alone.

We'd like to correct a statement we made several weeks ago when we did a story on the new Central Drug store . . : We mentioned that at one time it was the Ivy Drug store . . . Mrs. George Glados informed us that the old Ivy Drug was located in the department of the Polly Kay shop is now housed . . : a long while ago.

We heard our first real sign of spring Sunday . . . a crow with the rusty voice was sitting in a tree in our neighborhood cawing like mad . . . So after that can spring be far away? . .

By the calendar it will arrive this weekend . . . Friday or Saturday, we're never quite sure which day . . . but in northern Michigan that doesn't mean a thing . . . according to the weather forecast we're supposed to have temperatures well below normal and lots of precipitation for the next 30 days . . . it didn't say which form the latter would take . . . liquid like in rain or solid as in snow . . so don't plan on wearing that Easter bonnet right away . . . Regardless of what the weather forecasters say, we've found the one our postman uses the most accurate . . . the weather on the day of equinox will determine the pattern for the weather for the next three months . . . Let's hope it's bright and sunny with no winds out of the north or northwest come this weekend . . . We're a little tired of winter . . . although we must admit, it hasn't been too bad.

If one is to believe the things on display in our local stores, it's already spring . . went into one of them the other day and found the rack filled with lovely dresses in beautiful pastel and bright shades . . . just like a garden full of daffodills, tulips, hyacinths, crocuses and what have you . . . If you'll take a look inside any of them you'll see pretty much the same thing . . . just to bring your hopes that spring is just around the corner.

One of the nicest things about doing feature stories such as the one the Courier had last week on the fish hatchery are the wonderful people you meet . . . Not that we were meeting George Roff and his crew for the first time. . . we've known 'em all for years . . . but while we talked with them about the remodeling project and their 'babies' (which we swear they call by their first names by the time they graduate from the station) you pick up a lot of interesting info . . How fish, to the average person, are pretty non-script . . : but you should hear them talk about 'em . . And having been there many times we'd swear the fish get to know them . . . Until you've talked with Mr. R. and his first assistant and foreman, Ray Nowland, you don't know but nothing about the scaly little characters.

They have (in a bottle preserved for posterity) an albino fish . . . It's about three inches long and until it was killed by accident was quite a pet . . . we're told that it's eyes were as bright as gold . . . It's really something to see, even now . . And they speak of it in special tones . . . for he was a great favorite . . .

If you can imagine anything like a fish hatchery being beautiful, this one is . . . Everything's been re-decorated and with all these new raceways the place looks twice as big as ever . . . We can hardly wait til the fish get big enough to be put in the raceways which have yet to be filled with water (all the time, that is) . . . Later this year plan on a visit . . . You won't be sorry it's quite an education. . . and, we might add, a lot of fun.

Minutes of School Board Meeting

Present: Lieberman, Hawley, Smith, Martin, Bennett, Supt. Absent: Boss.

The meeting was called to order at 8:15 p. m.

Moved by Hawley and supported by Smith that bills in the amount of $1,635.58 be approved and ordered paid. Carried: 4-0.

The Professional Problems Committee of the Charlevoix Teachers Club met with the Board to discuss salaries for the year 1958-59. It was decided to take no official action until the next meeting.

Other subjects discussed were: The Boards of Education meeting in Ann Arbor, March 25; Further consideration of the budget for presentation to the County Allocation Board.

Voice of Our Readers . . .

The 'flu' epidemic which hit the local post office force last week and put four of our men on the sick list at the same time, causes us to have concern of what could happen to our local mail service in case of an emergency. Fortunately, our two regular carriers did not get the 'flu' and mail service was maintained about as usual. But suppose they had, what would we have done about the delivery of mail?

But what success would an inexperienced man have in delivering mail? He would get along pretty good, providing he could depend on two things: (1) That the mail would be properly prepared for delivery on the route, and (2) that the mail would have complete delivery address.

Recently we have been trying to improve this situation of incomplete addresses and wrong addresses. Will you kindly lend us a hand by bearing these things in mind; when answering ads or subscribing for newspapers and magazines.

1. Give your complete delivery address (Not just 'Charlevoix, Mich.')

2. Give your address as the place where you wish your mail delivered (and not where you live—if the two are different).

3. If your mail is delivered thru PO box—give your address as PO Box No. (Omit all reference as to where you live)

4. If your mail is delivered by rural Carrier—give RFD No. Box No,

5. If and when you move, kindly notify all correspondents and newspapers of your new address.

Thank you for your kind consideration, and assuring you that your co-operation will be greatly appreciated.

Peter H. Timmer, P. M.

We have noted with appreciation your comment under the "Wake Up and Read" slogan of National Library Week. We sincerely hope it will receive the attention it merits.

We agree with you that Charlevoix is fortunate in having a public library particularly one having the physical plant we possess.

It seems to us that we are not taking, or receiving, adequate advantage of this facility.

Our members have recently given some study to the situation relating to our library; with particular reference to the schedule according to which the library is now being operated.

We reach the rather, startling conclusion that the facilities of our library are not; as a practical matter, available to various groups.

The present hours are from 2 to 5 p. m. Monday thru Friday.

It is immediately apparent that these hours offer no opportunity to mothers who have young children, working people with hours from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. and students who participate in school athletics. And we may add that the more recent summer schedule has been the source of disappointment to many of our summer visitors.

We believe that arrangements should be made to have the library open during the following hours: daily from 2 to 5 p. m. and evenings from 7 to 9 p.m Saturdays included.

We as friends of the library, sincerely hope that all our citizens and neighbors will join with the library adminstration in making this most important establishment more fully available to all our people; especially our young people.

School Band Plans Concert To Launch Annual Candy Sale

The Charlevoix Band Parents Association will again sponsor the sale of the "World's Finest Chocolate" to raise funds to help finance the trip of the Charlevoix high school band to the State Band and Orchestra Festival in Ann Arbor next month, H. B. Schofield, persident of the group, has announced.

The Charlevoix high school band, first division winner in state competition for the past two years, will present a concert at the high school auditorium at 8 p. m. Tuesday to launch the candy sale.

Included in the program to be presented under the direction of C. A. Odmark will be the numbers the band will play at the State Band and Orchestra Festival in Ann Arbor April 19. In addition, several numbers have been selected to display the versatility of the 58-piece band . . . everything from music in a symphonic vein to popular jazz, from the quiet, expressive "Scarf Dance" of ular "March the River Kwai", originally "Colonel Bogey" by Alford.

The 45-piece Reserve band, a district first division winner in its own right, will join with the Senior band in presenting a thrilling climax to the evening. The 103 young musicians will present three selections concluding with a stirring rendition of Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever".

No admission will be charged for the concert but an opportunity will be given all to purchase the "World's Finest Chocolate."

The program will include the following selections: "A Santa Cecelia", Raedelli, "Slavonic Festival", Searmolin, and " Overture Eroica", Skornicka, numbers to be played in the State Class C festival, and "Colonel Bogey", Alford, "Song of the Bells", Leroy Anderson, and "Beguine for Band", Osser.

The Senior and Reserve bands will then join in presenting "Pan-American March", King, "Prairie Lament", Wallters, and "Stars and Stripes Forever", Scousa.

The sale of the "World's Finest Chocolate" is being sponsored by the Band Parents Association to raise funds to help finance the band's trip to the state festival.

The shipment of chocolate for the sale has arrived, Mr. Schofield said, and will be placed on sale at a kick-off concert by the local high school bands on Tuesday. In announcing the second annual sale of the chocolate, Mr. Schofield added that the group hopes to complete the sale within 10 days.

The chocolate is wrapped in individual packages bearing the photograph of the Charlevoix high school band on the wrapper.

The success of last year's sale has acquainted the residents of the community with the quality of the chocolate. It is hoped that the people of the entire community will again lend their support to this worthy project.

Guild Notes . . .

The Women's Guild of the Charlevoix hospital is again offering its nursing scholarship. Elsewhere in this issue there's a news story about it. If you know some girl considering going into the field of professional nursing, tell her about it. It's an excellent schorlaship and will certainly give some deserving girl a big lift.

Looking for something a little 'extra special' in the way of a little gift? Then how's about trying some of the lucious candies . . there's a variety of 'em . . . being sold by the Guild to raise funds for its nursing scholarship There's butter mint, Katydids, Golden Crumbles and toffee to name a few . . . If you'd like any or all of the assortment call the candy chairman, Mrs. James Hiller . . . or if she doesn't answer try Mrs. Gordon Freedman, Mrs. E. D. Hawley or Fran Martin.

One of the projects sponsored by the Guild is layettes for indigent mothers . . . These parcels which contain all the items needed for the new arrival are given to deserving people who have been suggested by family physicians, community nurses or the hospital staff . . . The material is purchased, the sewing committee cuts out the various garments which are then sewed by volunteers . . . At the moment there's need for knitted or crocheted booties and bonnets for the layettes . . . If you'd like to make one pair or a dozen out of yarn scraps for use in these layettes they'll be welcomed . . . For more chairman of the sewing committee . . or if you'd like to make some, just give them to a Guild member who'll turn them in in your name. . .

The Guild president and secretary, Mrs. E. D. Hawley, and Mrs. Karl Schultz, represented the organization at a meeting of North Central Association of hospital auxiliaries at Grayling last week . . . They were asked to bring with them the ideas the local group uses as fund raising projects as well as projects for the hospital and patients. . .

A big thank you to Mrs. Ralph McRae ,chairman of the tray favor committee, for the darling tray favors which made their appearance on Lincoln's birthday, Valentine's Day, Washington's birthday and more recently, St. Patrick's day . . . These little favors do much to brighten the day of a patient . . .

Mrs. James Gallagher who is in charge of gifts and memorials reports that contributions have been made to the Guild in memory of Thomas Hosen by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meier, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McRae, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McPhillips, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Versal Seymour, Mr. and Mrs .Wilson Baker, Mrs. Henry Partridge, Mrs. F. F. McMillan, Mrs. Lyla Arvilla, Mrs.Abe VerWys and Mrs. James Gallagher . . . Persons wishing to, may contriubte in memory of or in honor of someone . . . Fitting cards are sent to the recipient or the family of the one being remembered . . . For this service call Mrs. Gallagher, Mrs. Freedman, Mrs. Hawley or Mrs. Albert Cook.

Mrs. Harry Stewart Presents Program At Shakespeare Club

"Our Talented Youth" was the theme of the program presented before the Shakespeare Study club by Mrs. Harry Stewart's Speech class at the Charlevoix high school.

Included in the program was a one act play, "Sham" written by Frank Thompkins and presented by a cast composed of Michael McCann, Patricia Belfy, Mark Cross and John Haggard. Monologues were given by Sharon Swanson, Jill Davis and Judy Ingalls.

On Monday evening the group presented the same program for the Monday Study club of Boyne City.

Mrs. Jack Rader was hostess to the club Monday afternoon. Mrs. Lyla Arvilla was program chairman.

ADVENTURES IN UNDERSTANDING

Notes from A Northerner's Diary

By Harold E. Kohn

Robins: Winged Particles of Greatness

March days are fickle. They begin with bright promises of sunshine, but before noon prankish clouds drop slippery sheets of snow on pavements and sidewalks. March dawns break quietly and peacefully, but within an hour boisterous winds plaster trees and houses, roads and cars with thick layers of sleet.

March warmth invites over-wintering robins away from the shelter of deep cedar swamps and Northward from their Southland resorts. Then capricious winds whistle up a snowstorm to take these early birds by surprise. They huddle and fluff out their feathers, insulating their tender bodies against the cold. They face into the wind and occasionally offer to the world a gloom-shattering, happy song, as if they knew that God and creation are not nearly so well served by groans as by cheer.

Above all else an early returning robin is a symbol of brighter days ahead, a harbinger of hope. No matter how unseasonable the weather may be, no matter how heavy the clouds or severe the storm, he changes the complexion of the day for us. Snow or sleet may be falling fast, but a robin's sharp notes puncture the overcast and let a glimmer of spring shine through. We may have suffered reverses in the weather, but a robin's red breast beats with summer sunshine and gladness and its joyous pulsations echo in our hearts. The sight of a robin makes a difference in a March day.

It is this cheer-bringing capacity of our late winter friend that convinces me that he is a winged particle of greatness, for what is greatness but a talent for making the world happier and better because we have passed that way?

Someone has defined personality in these radiant terms: "When I met him, I was looking down. When I left him I was looking up." That is greatness, no matter where it is found. It is the effect that Christ has had on the world. More than any other person in the world's history, He has invited the world to look up.

If even a lowly robin can draw the world's attention upward and lift many a downcast spirit, so can you, and your ability to do that is your measure of greatness.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

"Sound Idea"–But—

Hap Wilson is a young fellow on our paper—and crazy about that little daughter of his. But like all of us he's learned that kids can present problems.

"Every night I have to read her the same story," he complained. "The most sugery one in the book—about Billy Bumblebee!" So I finally recorded the story on a tape recorder. Showed her how to play it whenever she wents.

"Know whet she seys? Thet it sounds fine hut that sha can't sit on the machine's lep!"

From where I sit, Hap had good intentions, but he has to understand his daughter's point of view, too. Many of us often meke the same mistake. For instance, you may like tea, I prefer a glass of temperate beer. The important thing is that we both understand each other's point of view. There are two sides to every "story"!

Amateur Rocketeers Warned By Special Hazards Committee

Amateur rocketeers are literally playing with dynamite, the Association of Casualty and Surity campanies have warned in a report released by the Special Hazards Subcommittee of the Association's Accident Prevention Department.

Because of the hazards involved, the estimated 10,000 members of the country's mushrooming rocket clubs are urged to switch their attention from live model experiments to research and study programs. Extreme caution and close supervision by qualified persons also is urged in cases where experimentation does progress to the stage of fuel development or the actual firing of the rockets.

The sudden interest in rocketry is "highly commendable" and "characteristic of the younger generation" the committee agreed in urging that it be encouraged and constructively guided. However, it pointed out that the promiscuous building and launching of rockets is not a safe way to build useful knowledge, but is, instead, "the road to possible death, injury or severe property damage".

Fuels being compounded as propellants can be compared in energy value to high explosives. They definitely are not materials to be handled indiscrimately by either children or adults.

It was also pointed out that the possession or use of propellant materials constitute a violation of local ordinances in many communities.

Seven suggested measures intended to eliminate uncontrolled experimention are included on the following list compiled by the committee: Hazards should be publicized through the press, youth and parents groups and schools; merchants should discourage, insofar as possible, the purchase by minors of materials known to be used in rocket fuels; Parents should make certain that their children are not experimenting with explosives without adequate supervision; Actual rocket firings should be restricted to designated firing ranges under the direction of qualified persons who are familiar with the hazards involved.

The following basic precautions should govern every experiment involving the development of fuels or the actual firing of a rocket: each person associated with a project should become familiar with the toxic, flammable or explosive properties of the materials involved, whether used alone or in combination and proper clearance should be secured from authorities having jurisdiction before any launchings are attempted.

Instead of experimenting with live rockets, it is recommended that activities be confined to the study of models. Study programs for the collection of information on rockets, upper atmosphere, space navigation and aerodynamics can be made interesting and exciting.

What's a Vigintillionth?*

TRYING TO PICTURE a vigintillionth of anything is beyond the comprehension of most of us.

Almost as inconceivable for many is what life in America would be like without the motor truck.

Mass production and sub-assembly operations—the very heart of our technological economy—would be utterly impossible without the 'round-the-clock delivery of materials and parts trucks now provide.

And certainly there would be a tremendous "change" in our eating habits if trucks were removed from the picture because everything that comes from the farm—including meat on the hoof and dairy products—depends on truck transport for distribution to retailer and consumer.

Roads, buildings, public services, national defense—all these as we now know and rely on them—reflect the indispensability of the motor truck, and we could go on and on.

So, next time you see a truck on the street or highway remember—it's there because it has a job to do for you and 165 million other Americans!

Kiwanis Club to Sponsor Second Soap Box Derby

Plans for the second annual Soap Box Derby to be held July 27 under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis club have been announced by Leonard Burns, chairman of the Soap Box Derby committee.

The race will be open to all residents of the Charlevoix school district between the nges of 11 and 14 years.

Contestants must build their own racer with the help and encouragement of their parents. All racers must be equipped with adequate brakes and steering mechanisms. One week prior to the race all racers must undergo safety inspection at one of the following garages: Uhrick Pontiac-Cadillac Sales, Brown Motors or the Charlevoix Oil Co. This service will be free.

Wheels on the racers may not exceed 12 inches in diameter and the total weight without the driver may not exceed 75 pounds. Because of the difference in the size of the drivers it is suggested that the racer be so constructed that sand bags can be added to equalize the weight.

Three prizes will be offered. They include a bicycle, first prize; a camera, second prize and a wrist watch, third prize. All those participating will receive an entry prize.

Entry blanks may be obtained at school. They must be signed and returned to the Charlevoix Cleaners or Harbor Hardware no later than July 19.

Other members of the Soap Box Derby committee are Arnold Wadas and Dr. Robert G. Martin.

Central Drug Awarded Trophy By Rexall Co.

Harley I. Ochs and Franklin Ochs, owners of the Central Rexall Drug Store, are among a selected group of Rexall druggists to receive the new Mortar and Pestle trophy presented by the Rexall Drug Co., as an annual award to outstanding member druggists.

The awards are presented annually to Rexall druggists who meet exceptionally high standards of professional ideals, ethical practice and community service.

The award is an authentic replica of a mortar and pestle dating back to Spain in the 15th century. It was presented Tuesday by Rexall representative Reed L. Wierks at the store.

The trophy is mounted on a black walnut pedestal with a plaque inscribed with Mr. Och's store name. It is on display in the store's prescription department.

The Central Drug store was moved into its new quarters, a one-story fireproof building, at the corner of Bridge and Clinton sts. last month. The new structure was constructed on the site of the three-story frame building which had housed the drug store for more than 60 years.

Funeral services were held at the Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City Saturday with burial in Maplelawn cemetery.

A native of Saskatchawan, Can., where he was born in 1878, Mr. Dixon came to Charlevoix as a young man. In 1900 he was married to the former Carrie O'Neil. They lived at Boyne Falls and later they lived in Midland and other southern Michigan communities. He was an electrician by trade.

He is survived by his wife; four sons, Harry W. and Glenn E. of Boyne City, Arden T. of Pontiac and Marvin M. of Midland; two daughters, Mrs. O. L. (Minnie) Hastings of Berkley and Mrs. Dorothy M. Max Hosmer Named President of New Chamber of Commerce

Max E. Hosmer was named president of the newly reorganized Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce following the election of a nine-man board of directors at a public meeting attended by 85 representatives of local business, resort and industrial interests.

Other officers are: first vice president, Robert Miles; second vice president, Robert Neff; temporary secretary, Richard Fochtman and treasurer, Norman D. Ance.

Other members of the board of directors are Robert Lieberman, Frank Boss, Earl A. Young and Dr. Walter Hoffman. Ance, Hosmer and Lieberman were elected for three-year terms, Boss, Neff and Fochtman for two year terms and Young, Hoffman and Miles for one year terms.

The nine directors were elected from 23 candidates presented by a nominating committee headed by Harold Totten and three names nominated from the floor.

Prior to the election of directors, Norman D. Ance, chairman of the incorporation and by-laws committee read the articles of incorporation and the by-laws as set up by his five-member committee. With a few minor changes the articles and by-laws were adopted as presented.

According to the articles of incorporation, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce is to be a non-profit organization whose major purpose will be "to advertise, exploit and make known the industrial, commercial, education, recreational, civic, resort, agricultural and other advantages of the city of Charlevoix and surrounding areas and to do all things to encourage, promote and advance the civic, trade, business, resort, agricultural and industrial development and the growth and general welfare of the city of Charlevoix and the surrounding area".

The board of directors, as approved, is composed of nine persons representative of the various interests in the community. After this year, directors will be named to three-year terms.

Under the new set of the Chamber of Commerce is to be a self-support membership organization deriving its funds from membership fees rather than from funds appropriated by the city as hed been the practice for many years. The withdrawal of this support by the city is the reason the entire structure of the Chamber of Commerce had to be re-vamped.

One of the new president's first acts was to name a finance committee whose job was to work out a feasible membership rate for the various types of interests in the community. Named to the committee were Mr. Lieberman, chairman, E. D. Hawley, E. J. Edwards, Harold M. Totten, Maurice J. Foster and Robert Livingston.

The finance committee met Monday and worked out a tentative membership program which showed that the potential was there if the entire community would cooperate on the proposed rates to be presented by the committee.

A spokesman for the group said that if the memberships come up to expectations with the city underwriting the costs of advertising as city officals have said they would do, then it would be possible for the Chamber of Commerce to carry out a well-balanced program as set forth in the articles of incorporation.

Mr Hosmer plans to name other committees before the next scheduled meeting of the new organizations.

Time to Push---Not Ride

The recently organized Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce got off to a good start. The exceptionally large attendance at the two organization meetings should be conclusive evidence to the newly elected directors that the community is ready to support a progressive program.

The big job, however, lies ahead. With the summer season close at hand it seems imparitive that we double our efforts during the next few weeks in getting the membership, organizing committees for the over-all program, and, at the same time, handle the immediate projects.

It is going to take more time than the directors will have at their disposal. The test will really come when the directors call on individuals to assume some of the responsibility in getting the various jobs done promptly. In this case a tremendously big job for a few can be accomplished quickly and efficiently with many individuals each contributing his small share of time to the program.

Success is certain if we all work together for one purpose—the promotion of the entire community.

What's the Real Issue?

Method of selecting delegates to a state constitutional convention appears to be the real issue should the electorate vote affirmatively for the convention. The constitution now provides that delegates to a constitutional convention shall be chosen on a basis of three to each senatorial district. This method spreads control of a convention over the entire state.

Plans are now being formulated by labor leaders and Democrats to select delegates to a constitutional convention on the basis of population, thus centering control of the convention to the densely populated area of Wayne and Oakland counties. If this section of the state is in control, it goes without saying that union leaders will "sit in the driver's seat." That is the way we see it outstate.

Do we want the authority of a state constitutional convention spread equally throughout the state or do we want to hand control over to large cities dominated by union bosses? Certainly it would not be in the interest of good government to have a constitution dictated by ANY powerful self-interested group.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

Aren't you happy that we missed the big storm that hit Pennsylvania and elsewhere in the east . . . We're glad to see winter leave us . . . without fanfare . . And all in all, it hasn't been a bad winter . . . We were a bit surprised the other day to see that a few brave tulips and other spring flowers were sticking their little noses through the leaves . . But they'd better watch out because March is apt to go out like a lion.

With Easter only 10 days off, let's hope the good weather continues and the days remain sunshiny . . . It's so good to feel some warmth from Old Sol again after catching just a glimpse of him for the past few months . . . But, the grass will be green, the flowers blooming and the days warm before you know it .

The drift ice will have to leave Lake Michigan before all this can take place . .. But be patient and one of these days, who knows, maybe it will really be spring.

Now that the basketball season's over maybe everyone will settle down again to the routine of living . . . Especially the people of Harbor Springs who really went all out for their Rams . . who lost in the semi-finals to the team that went on to take the title . . . Ever notice how often that happens . . . The news of the antics of the town of Harbor Springs hit newspapers all over the country . . . We saw it in the Chicago Trib., the Harbor team had a wire from someone who'd seen it in a Phoenix, Ariz., newspaper and Bill Graves sent us a sports page of the Miami Herald which carried the story . . about the black and orange hair (which you couldn't believe til you saw it!), and all the other things that made good copy . . Everyone we know was happy that Harbor went as far as they did . . . Have you noticed how many teams from this league in recent years have advanced to state competition . . Sure speaks well for the brand of ball we play in these parts.

A belated birthday greeting to Mrs. Fred Dittmer who celebrated her 75th birthday anniversary last week . . . Mrs. Frances Hillerman of East Jordan called it to our attention . . . We hope you will have many, many more . . . and each happier than the last, Mrs. D.

From Holly Hill, Fla., a card from the Gus Fochtmans who've been in the south for the last two months and who plan to return home after Easter . . About the time many more of our people will be starting for home.

Mrs. Edward Beene of Ironton has passed along to us the Ten Commandments for Teen-Agers which she found in the Tuebor, the Detroit Police magazine which appears each month . . . We agree with her that they're pretty darned good so we're passing them along to you: 1. Stop and think before you drink. 2. Don't let your parents down. They brought you up. 3. Be humble enough to obey. You'll be giving orders yourself some day. 4. At the first moment, turn away from unclean thinking—at the first moment. 5. Don't show off when driving. If you want to race go to Indianapolis. 6. Chose a date who would make a good mate. 7. Go to church faithfully. The Creator gave us a week. Give Him back an hour. 8. Choose your companions carefully. You are what they are. 9. Avoid following the crowd. Be an engine, not a caboose. 10. Keep the original Ten Commandments.

These are directed toward teenagers but we think they contain a lot of good thoughts for everyone . . . Hope you like 'em.

P.T.A. Speaker to Discuss Reading Deficiencies

Dr. B. H. VanRoekel, associate professor at Michigan State University, will be the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the P. T. A. scheduled for 8 p. m. Wednesday in the high school band room.

His topic will be "Presisting Problems in Reading Instruction". Parents whose children have reading deficiencies are urged to attend this meeting to hear what Dr. Van Roekel has to say about the problem.

The meeting is open to all people in the school district whether they are members of the organization or not.

Mrs. E. D. Hawley, president of the group, said, in announcing the program, that Charlevoix was fortunate, indeed, to have a person of Dr. VanRoekel's standing on the program and urged that all parents come to hear him.

A brief installation ceremony will open the meeting which will be devoted entirely to Dr. Van-Roekel's talk.

Cunningham-Farmer Vows Exchanged Saturday at First Methodist Church

The First Methodist church was the scene Saturday evening of the wedding of Janice Carol Cunningham and Phillip Daniel Farmer.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cunningham and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Farmer.

The Rev. Frederick McNeil officiated at the double ring service in the presence of more than 200 guests. Baskets of white gladioli and snapdragons, candelabara and palms decorated the church for the ceremony.

Mrs. Leonard Burns, at the organ played a program of traditional music and the wedding marches and accompanied the soloist, Don Bogart, who sang "Because", "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of white brocade satin for her wedding. The fitted bodice featured a round neckline trimmed with rhinestones and medallions and long tapered sleeves. A bow at the waist and flowing pleats added back interest to the floor length skirt. Her fingertip veil fell from a seed-pearl tiara and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white hyacinth florets.

Mrs. Dale Mathews as her sister's matron of honor wore a ballerina length gown of emerald green taffeta fashioned with green chiffon sash and full skirt. Her headdress was of braided net and pearls and she carried a bouquet of yellow mums.

Mrs. John Sladek and Sharon Cunningham, sisters of the bride, and Mrs. William Cross of Saugatuck, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids wore gowns identical to the honor attendant's in mint green taffeta, matching head-dresses and carried bouquets of pink roses.

Kitty Cross of Saugatuck, niece of the bridegroom, as flower girl, wore a floor length gown of yellow taffeta, a white daisy head-dress and carried a bouquet of pink roses and carnations.

Mr. Cross assisted his brother-in-law as best man and Harrison Elzinga was groomsman. Seating the guests were Mr. Sladek, brother-in-law of the bride, and Kenneth Balch.

Mrs. Cunnigham chose a navy crepe dress, pink accessories and a pink rose corsage for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Farmer, mother of the bridegroom, wore a black dress with white accents, black and white accessories and a corsage of white gladioli.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the V. F. W. post home. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Cunningham, as master and mistress of ceremonies, were assisted by Ann Cunningham, Mrs. Eugene Drost, Mrs. Orlin Cunningham and Barbara Nielsen.

After a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the couple will make their home at 704 State st. For traveling the bride chose a navy wool dress, red accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Both are graduates of the Charlevoix high school. The bride is presently employed at Stream-Eze Inc. The bridegroom is a recent graduate of Humbolt Institute in Minneapolis, Minn.

Wedding guests were present from Mt. Pleasant, Lansing, Saugatuck, St. Louis, Mo., East Jordan, Ellsworth and Traverse City.

Mr. and Mrs. Farmer, parents of the bridegroom, entertained at a rehearsal dinner at their home Friday evening. Twenty-six guests gathered for the buffet dinner served at a table centered with an arrangement of daffodils and pussywillows and lighted yellow tapers and set with silver and crystal. Mrs. John Geer and Mrs. Don Bogart assisted.

Always read the directions on the label of your prescription. These are your doctor's instructions. They must be followed carefully if you are to obtain the results and benefits for which the prescription is intended. Taking prescribed medicine in larger quantites or at more frequent intervals than specified will not hasten your recovery. Michigan Mirror

by Elmer E. White
Michigan Press Ass'n

Stormy Winds of the economic climate have toppled thrones and crushed empires.

Historians report that Herbert Hoover was a good president but a victim of the times. The possible application to Michigan politics and government is as haunting as Black Friday in 1929.

Universities and colleges have critical need for more money to meet the need for their services.

Prisons, mental health institutions, public welfare, elementary schools and other functions the public has come to consider a responsibility of government are all crying for help.

"The only answer is increased taxes or fewer services. It is as plain as that", said a leadinf Democrat.

"We must live within our income," said Senator Clyde H. Geerlings (R-Holland), Senate tax committee chairman.

The impact on partisan politics, always a factor of some sort over the past decade, will be more severe in 1958 as Democrats seek to control the legislature and Republicans seek to recapture the executive side of state government.

The voter—and the taxpayer— will give Michigan the final answer next November.

Republicans, realizing that a tax increase when more than 250,000 are jobless in the state will hurt more than help, are fighting to hold the line and cut government spending.

One proposal in the House to cut the number of state employes already is in trouble.

Even some Republicans in both House and Senate are certain the budget cannot be cut from current spending. There are tax bills waiting for action.

The only major proposal is Gov. Williams' $20,000,000 intangibles tax increase. Republicans claim this will hit the small depositor and those with fixed incomes from securities; but the governor holds that the tax will hit only the holder of many assets.

Republicans are fighting for recaptured funds to help chop down the extra expense to a "manageable deficit" less than $15,000,000, to wait for the results of a revenue study next year.

The main bill has been a plan to delay payment for liquor purchased by the state's monopoly for 90 days. This procedure may or may not be practical.

Optimistic estimates were that this would bring an extra $20,000,000, but delays in enacting the proposal have dropped the estimate to $8,000,000 at the end of May.

The bill was passed by both houses and Williams said there "will be no delay" in putting the delayed payment plan into operation from this point.

The political impact?

When the voter goes to the polls in November, he will, in effect, be making his decision whether Williams and the Democrats or the Republicans were right.

Does he want more government or more economy?

The answer will decide who inhabits the capitol for the next two years.

Economy threats and maneuvers have made a difference in Lansing.

Six weeks ago, Senator Elmer R. Porter (R-Blissfield) esimtated that coffee breaks, late breakfasts and extra time off costs the state up to $15,000,000 a year in employe time.

Administration executives, noting the economic recession, claim that workers have become more conscientious—especially since Jan. 1.

Porter's attack on the coffee break has had its impact, too.

"I understand abuses have been reduced since then", he said.

Michigan Has Another Fitzgerald waiting in the wings for his try at politics.

First there was John W. Fitzgerald, the member of the House who held office. Then came Frank D. Fitzgerald, his son, who was the state's Republican governor in the 1930's.

Now comes the second John W. Fitzgerald, the son of the former governor, who has announced his candidacy for the State Senate in the 15th district.

He will run in the primary against two political veterans, Jay Terbush, Shiawassee county prosecutor, and Rep. Adrian de Boom, a House member for several years. Both are from Owosso.

The Chesapeake Bay Bridge spans four miles of water to link Maryland's eastern and western shores. It cost $44,000,000, and required 3½ years to build. A suspension span in the center lifts the roadway 198 feet above the channel, allowing ocean-going vessels access to Port of Baltimore, the National Geographic Magazine says.

Card of Thanks

I wish to express my heartfelt appreciation to all who helped brighten my days spent in the Charlevoix hospital. My sincere thanks go to those who were faithful in prayer, who visited, and who sent cards and flowers.

Sculptor Harris Awarded Prix de Rome Fellowship

Allen Harris, young sculptor who has been a summer resident here for many years, has been awarded the Prix de Rome Fellowship by the American Academy in Rome.

A native of St. Louis, Mo., who now lives in Philadelphia, Pa., Mr. Harris is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Harris of University City, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis and summer residents at Ironton for many years.

The American Academy in Rome grants the $3,000 Fellowship to further the development of the fine arts and classical studies among Americans.

Mr. Harris, whose work has won a series of awards, received a sculpture award which will permit two years study in Rome.

Mail Easter Seals To Raise Funds

The annual Easter Seal campaign to raise funds for the Charlevoix county chapter of the Michigan Society for Crippled Children and Adult will be launched this weekend when letters containing the familiar Easter Seals are placed in the mail by a committee headed by M. Funds derived from the sale of Easter seals are used to provide hospital care, appliances and training for crippled children and adults who are not eligible for assistance from other sources.

Ray Pawlowski of Menominee was in Charlevoix this week to assist with the preparation for the mail drive.

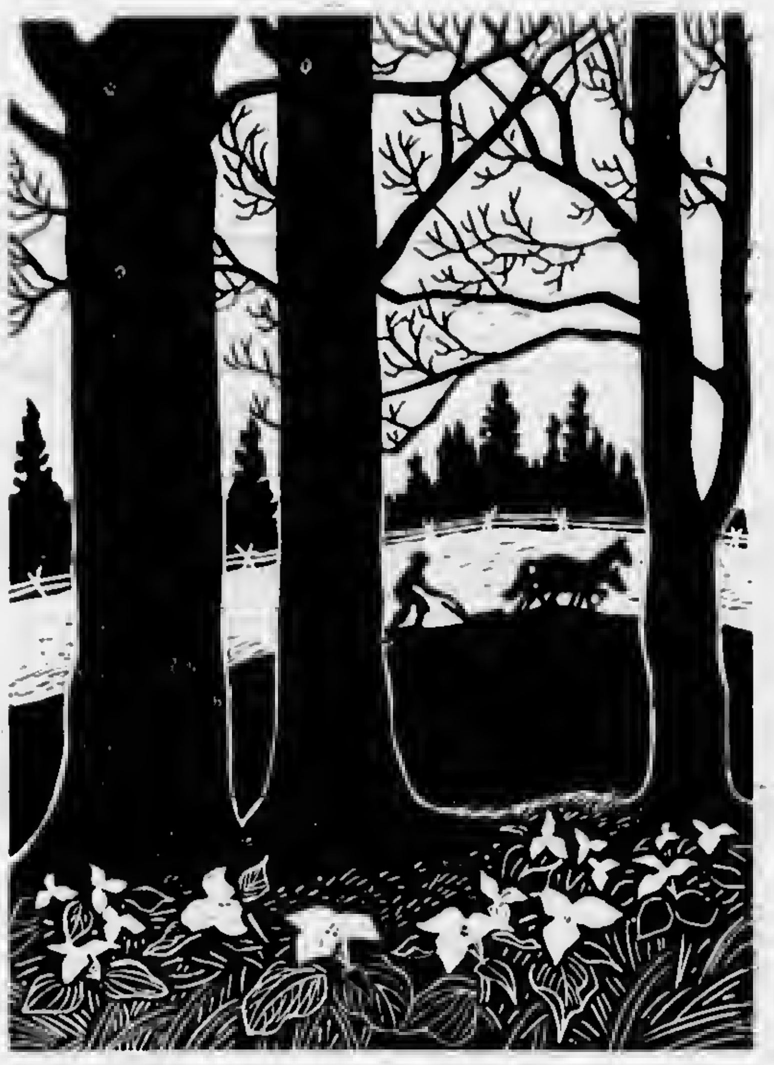
ADVENTURES IN UNDERSTANDING

Notes from A Northerner's Diary

By Harold E. Kohn



Nature's Big-Heartedness

The earth has begun to respond to spring. From our front windows we watch the slow breaking and melting of Lake Charlevoix ice. Wide cracks appear around the old offshore pilings, and a large pool of open water has begun to form there. Any day or any moment now American golden-eye ducks and buffleheads will make their first spring visit to this bay, gliding in over woods that fringe the lake and landing in a fine spray of chill water. There they will swim and preen their feathers and converse in a low, confidential duck manner.

The soil, as well as the lake, is coming to life, a sleeping beauty awakening to the kiss of spring sunshine and the caresses of warm winds. Soon the air will be faintly scented with spring flowers and freshly plowed soil. I know now where trilliums will nod at our woods edge, as they have bowed in greeting to the advent of spring each year since long before the first plow split Michigan earth in preparation for the white man's crops. Golden bees will soon drone from one fragrant blossom to another. Everywhere in the Northland, lake and lakeshore, open meadow and deep forest, will feel the gentle grace of the shining sun and everyplace will respond with its own peculiar zest and beauty.

As winter retreats to the far North and spring comes on we become more aware of the magnanimity of Nature, a sort of elemental big heartedness and inclusive inpartiality that is a reflection of the character of God. Spring sunshine will not fall on beautiful, graceful birch trees alone, but upon the less loveable scrub pine and alders and willows, too. April showers will not pick and choose, playing favorites with the daffodils and crocuses and shunning objectionable dandelions and lowly violets, blessing the arbutus and avoiding the blood root and wild strawberry. The great sun will warm the acres of saint and sinner alike. The warm rains will beat with equal benefit upon the gardens of the grateful and the grumbling.

Nature's inclusiveness is a reminder of the great heartedness of God, who cares for those who love Him and for those who are indifferent to Him, who has room in His attention and concern for those who praise Him and for those who lightly use His name. As Jesus put it, "He makes His sun rise on the evil and the good and sends rain on the just and unjust."

This is one meaning of Godlikeness—caring for people who do not care for you, loving those who hate you, doing what you can to help those who would do all they could to hurt you.

Perhaps the nineteenth century American preacher, Henry Ward Beecher, was no thorough-going saint, as some recent biographers have hinted, but he did possess this grace of magnanimity. He treated his enemies as kindly as he did his friends. One man in Brooklyn once detested Beecher with a hot and bitter hatred. But later he became one of Beecher's most devoted admirers. He explained his change of heart by saying that whenever anyone did anything to hurt Henry Ward Beecher, the great orator was miserable until he had done that enemy a good turn. The word was passed around Brooklyn, "If you want a favor from Beecher, kick him!"

Henry Ward Beecher illustrated in his life a little of the spirit that motivated Jesus. When a person abused the Master, He saw the wrong as a sign of some deep need in the man's life. His attention was on his enemy's welfare rather than on His own hurt. Wherever that attitude is found it is a mark of godliness.

Springtime would be an appropriate time to get some of this magnanimity of Nature and this greatness of God into our living. You must know someone upon whom you can start using it.

New Dollard Red Clover Available To County Farmers

Dollard, a new medium red of June clover which has been the outstanding varitey in tests at the Lake City Experiment Station, is now available at a reasonable price to Charlevoix county farmers.

During five years of testing, this variety, which was developed in Canada, yielded 2.8 tons per acre as compared to 2.4 tons for Michigan grown clover. This 17 per cent or 2-5 ton increase of hay is worth $8 and can now be obtained at an increase in seed cost of about $1 per acre.

In addition to yielding more hay, Dollard has been clearly the best variety in the northern part of the lower peninsula because of its resistance to northern anthracnose disease, according to Milo B. Tesar, farm crops researcher at Michigan State University.

This disease causes leaves to turn brown and drop off before harvest. The results is severe reduction in yield in cool, moist spring and summer periods typical of northern Michigan. Dollard's resistance to anthracnose also helps in making better quality hay.

The supply is adequate for 1958 planting, reports Tesar. Seed stores have it at a slight increase in price over Michigan-grown clover—about 12 cents a pound or $7 a bushel. Michigan farmers north of the Bay City-Muskegon line will like its high yield; those growing it for seed should find a greater demand for the seed.

Dried foods such as beans are easy to store and they keep almost indefinitely, say Michigan State University food specialists. Store dried beans in a well covered container in a cool, dry place.

Elk in Northern Michigan

This member of northern Michigan's elk herd stopped a moment for the Conservation Department cameraman before trotting back into his Pigeon River state forest home. The herd is located northeast of Atlanta and numbers 600-700 animals.

Michigan's elk herd, which now numbers 600-700 animals, continues to grow in numbers, but seems to be having trouble expanding its range.

The bulk of the herd lives in Pigeon River state forest, northeast of Gaylord.

The herd started in Michigan in 1918, when seven animals were trapped at Jackson Hole, Wyoming, and released near Vanderbilt. Since then, the herd has grown and faltered at various times, but in recent years has been developing strongly.

At present, 90 percent of the herd is enclosed in the area from Gaylord to Atlanta to Onaway to Indian River and back to Gaylord. Also, a concentration may be found west of Black Lake, another near the Hardwood nursery at Boyne Falls, and a few animals have been seen east of highway M-33 and north of Atlanta.

But for some reason, the herd remains focused in the Pigeon River state forest area. A few animals have been seen near Cheboygan, Alpena and other northern cities, but home base remains the area northeast of Gaylord.

Several years ago, blindness began to show up in some of the elk, also some lost their fear of humans and others seemed generally dopey.

Conservation Department research indicated the animals might not be getting enough of certain minerals in their diet. So the Department began to distribute treated salt each year in the elk range.

Whether the salt turned the trick or whether the blindness and disease died out by itself is unknown, but in recent years very infrequent cases of disease have appeared.

At present, the Department distributes about two tons of salt each year throughout the elk range.

AMERICA'S FAVORITE FAMILY WAGON...PLYMOUTH
Plymouth carries more . . . does more . . . provides more family fun than any other wagon in the low-price 3 because it's BIGGEST IN THE LOW-PRICE 3. You can't buy bigger at any price!
Maybe you're a station wagon family right now. More Americans are each day! But do you know all the really astonishing facts about the Plymouth wagon . . . how much more it gives you than other wagons, at a low budget price?
Size alone is only part of it! The Plymouth wagon is big as wagons in the high-price field that cost $5500 and more . . . but, in addition to extra size, this glamorous beauty offers a wagonload of other features that are exclusively Plymouth in the low-price 3!
You simply can't get 'em anywhere else in the field. And once you try them . . . learn how little the years-ahead Plymouth wagon costs . . . you'll never settle for less! Why should you? Your Plymouth dealer has the money-saving story, and he's waiting for your visit.
5 big reasons why your wagon should be a Plymouth:
1 BIGGEST OF THE LOW-PRICE THREE: Big as wagons costing thousands of dollars more. You can't buy bigger at any price! 122" wheelbase.
2 HOLDS SO MUCH MORE THAN THE "OTHER TWO": Over 7 cu. ft. more passenger and cargo space. Extra "secret luggage" compartment in 6-passenger models.
3 REAR-FACING 3rd SEAT: Folds flush into the floor; you don't have to store it outside when it's not in use. Easy to enter.
4 DISAPPEARING REAR WINDOW: Rolls down into tailgate. Doesn't get in the way. Only Plymouth has it in the low-price field.
5 TORSION-AIRE RIDE—AT NO EXTRA COST: Only on Plymouth in the low-price 3. Big-car luxury. No sidesway on turns or nose-dive on stops.
They don't come any bigger... Plymouth station wagons

Emmet College Is Approved By Superintendent

A big step toward the establishment of a community college in Emmet county was taken Friday when Dr. Lynn M. Bartlett, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, accepted the recommendation of the Emmet County Community College Study Committee.

The letter of approval signed by Dr. Bartlett will permit the initiation of proceedings to effectuate a community college district to be comprised of Emmet county.

Dr. Bartlett said the next step would probably be a special election in Emmet county at which time the voters of the county will vote on the question of organizing a community college district. If such a proposal is passed, the community college that would be established in Petoskey would take its place along with those of Traverse City and Alpena in serving this immediate area.

Over 100 residents of Emmet and surrounding counties began the study in 1957 under the direction of Dr. Dean C. Burns, chairman of the study committee.

Lighthouse Men Being Stationed For Navigation

The U. S. Coast Guard cutter, Woodbine, out of Grand Haven, transported Coast Guardsmen to four lighthouses in northern Lake Michigan Monday in preparation for the opening of the navigation season on the Great Lakes.

Lighthouse keepers were taken to Lansing Shoals, Greys Reef, White Shoals and Ile Aux Galet (Skillagalee) light stations.

Keepers will be taken to Beaver Head light on Beaver Island and South Fox Island at a later date.

While in northern Lake Michigan the Woodbine entered the harbor at St. James, Beaver Island, to break a path through the ice so the Beaver Island ferry could begin its season.

The cutter, Acacia, out of Detroit, transported light keepers to Thunder Bay Island and Middle Island light stations at the same time. Crewmen were flown from the mainland to the Mackinac Island light station. Those stationed at Poes Reef, Spectacle Reef and Martin's Island light stations will be taken to their respective posts at a later date.

National Circuit Rider to Speak At Family Night

A lady "Circuit Rider on Wheels" the Rev. Miss Leila W. Anderson, Congregational Christian minister, educator, and home missionary, is making her second circuit of the United States, visiting local churches. Miss Anderson will be at Charlevoix's First Congregational church on Monday afternoon, April 7th, at 2:30 for a meeting with church and Sunday school officials, and she will speak on Monday evening at the Family Night Supper, at 6:30 p. m.

Traveling under the auspices of the Division of Christian Education of the Board of Home Missions of Congregational Christian churches, Miss Anderson is making her trans-continental trip in a specially equipped station wagon named the "Pilgrim Circuit Rider". The Rider has a built-in office, display and storage cases, audio-visual equipment which can be used in the car, church school literature, books, mission material, leaflets and pamphlets for distribution.

Miss Anderson travels from place to place, from church to church, visiting for the most part established churches. But she has the finest equipment that the modern world can provide. Thus she brings to people both materials to see and handle and the challenge and inspiration which comes from knowing what others are doing.

Miss Anderson's circuit includes the whole United States. Her first circuit of 73,000 miles across 38 states took from August 1953 to July 1956. The second circuit, begun in the fall of 1956, will take from four to six years.

C. of C. to Start Membership Drive Monday

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce has set a goal of $12,000 for its first membership drive scheduled to open Monday, Max E. Hosmer, president of the board of directors, has announced.

At a special meeting Wednesday, the Chamber of Commerce board of directors reviewed and approved the financial program presented by the finance committee. The plan, which calls for membership participation of approximately 250 business establishments, will give the newly-formed chamber capital for carrying out an extensive program to promote Charlevoix and the surrounding area.

A tentative year-around advertising and promotion campaign now being formulated will he finalized after the membership drive is completed.

Monday has been established for the kick-off of the membership drive to raise $12,000. It will be spearheaded by the finance committee composed of Frank Boss, Fay Davis, E. J. Edwards, E. D. Hawley, Robert Maurice J. Foster and Harold Totten.

The Chamber of Commerce was re-organized recently on a membership basis after the City Council, which had for many years underwritten the cost of operating the Board of Commerce withdrew its financial support.

Rather than see the organization become non-existant, resort, industrial, professional and retail interests met to reorganize as the Chamber of Commerce. The new Chamber will be supported by memberships.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

It's the season of April showers which, we're told, bring the May-flowers . . . We haven't had a sign of a shower as this is being written but if the warm sunny days continue, we'll soon have May flowers and all other wild flowers which are the harbingers of spring in northern Michigan . . . We're willing to bet that if you'll look on the south or sunny side of many leaf-covered hills, you'll find that the flowers are beginning to grow.

Have you noticed that the buds on the trees are beginning to grow . . . At this rate it won't be long before the early flowers in the gardens will be blooming . . . as will the flowering shrubs and trees . . . But we still haven't seen a robin.

Everyone has enjoyed the bright sunny days but the same weather has made everything so dry that it's like tinder . . . so be careful . Last Saturday there was a bad fire near Ironton . . . a grass fire . . . Luckily it was noticed before it spread to some nearby houses but it spread like mad and a call to the fire department was necessary before it could be extinguished . . . If you must burn grass, call the fire department and get permission . . . and if you live in the country, call who ever must be called for a fire permit. . . This can be dangerous and much valuable property could be destroyed if you're not careful . . .

Though the days are warm and sunny, the temperature has been dropping to 20 degrees or so every night . . . making what is known as ideal sap weather . . Sugar bushes are going full blast all over the place . . . The youngsters in the elementary grades paid a visit to the Clarence Smith sugar bush on the Boyne City road last week . . . Saw how the trees were tapped, the sap gathered and boiled down to make syrup . . . Everyone had a taste of the warm sap and then was given a small bottle of syrup to take home . . . A wonderful outing for the youngsters . . . and something they'll always remember.

We happened to visit school the next day and saw some of the pictures drawn by the youngsters of their visit to the sugar bush . . Not many things missed their observing eyes and they did a grand job of putting the picture on paper . . . There was one especially that we liked . . no doubt there were others equally as good but the one we liked was drawn by Bobby Dennis . . If you could see it we're sure you'd like it as much as we did.

If you're not conscious of the fact that it's Easter time, you should visit school . . . Never saw so many reminders in our life as we saw there . . . And many of them real works of art . . Everything from Easter eggs made with balloons and paper mache to chikens, bunny rabbits and other animals made by the youngsters. One youngster had even a Siamese cat that was cute as a button . . . another a skunk so real you wouldn't want to meet it on the street . . . And we never saw such a collections of rabbits . . . a huge one made by one of the First grades to tiny ones in any color you'd like to mention . . . And Easter baskets . . . every shape size and color and each cuter than the other . . . Everyone's having kittens these days about our educational system and all the things wrong with it . . . If you could see the imagination and ingenuity that these kids put in the things we saw you'd readily see that there's not too much wrong . . . with either the schools or our kids today . . . So they're not all going to grow up to be scientists . . So what? . . . A world full of nothing but scientists would be a mighty dull place to live in . . . And if they were all master minds who'd make the things they'd think up . . . Sure, there's nothing so good it can't be improved . .. but there's nothing so bad it must be discarded entirely . . . And if you don't believe it, take a tour through the school as we did.

Another sign of spring you'll be hearing regularly will be the boat whistles . . . The Emerald Isle, was scheduled to start Tuesday . . . One of the buoy tenders was to take the lighthouse keepers to the lights in northern Lake Michigan Monday . . . And it won't be long before the first oil tanker will be inching in to discharge a million gallons or so at the terminal on Lake Charlevoix . . . But with the inland lakes still covered by ice it will probably be some time before a coal cargo gets through to Advance or Boyne City . . . unless the coast Guard goes into action on Lake Charlevoix as they had to last year . . . We're told there's about 18 inches of ice at Ironton so it will be a while before the ferry will be running . . . unless we get some high winds that will break up and move the ice.

Did you happen to go to the concert the bands gave the other night to launch their annual candy sale. . . If you didn't you missed a real treat . . the senior band playing the music they'll present in the state festival at Ann Arbor later this month . . . and the senior and reserves bands as they joined forces to play three selections . . . Until you've heard 103 young musicians performing as they did you can't imagine what a beautiful sound it is . . . And if you think those kids aren't trained . . . well, you're just plain crazy . . . they're terrific . . . Oh yes, and if you haven't bought your candy, there's still some left.

Have you seen the wonderful new book written by our own Rev. Harold Kohn . . We were about to say beautiful because it is just that . . . made so by his drawings which are as refreshing as a walk through the woods . . . And the things he writes are always so down to earth and yet so inspiring that it's a joy to read them.

Lots of things in the mail this week . . . including a note from Tucson, Ariz., with a picture to show how hard our own Bob Bridge, president of the bank on the corner, was "working" while in the west . . . With him were a couple of our summer residents, Jack Osier and Bill Cotter . . who were working equally as hard . . . Thanks for the note and pic, fellas, but we think you'd better start taking it a little easy . . . After all, there's a long, hard summer comin' up.

From Honolulu, Hawaii, a card from Bill George, who with his charming wife, operates Maria's on Susan Lake during the summer . . . On a well earned vacation in the islands, Bill writes that he could lay on the beach and sleep for a week . . Imagine wasting time sleeping on the beach at Waikiki.

And from Portland, Ore., a note from Pat and Rita Ramsey, former residents, who wrote that one of our senior citizens, Elmer Ostrum, who is visiting them will observe his 78th birthday anniversary April 14 . . . They asked that all his friends remember him with cards to be sent to their residence, 14212 SE Fair Oaks Drive, Portland, 22, Ore. Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey send their personal regards to all their friends back here . . Mr. R., you'll remember, operated the DX Tower service station at Antrim and State, until 1946 when he sold and moved to the west coast.

To all of you from all of us at the Charlevoix Courier a wish for a joyous Easter season . . At this sad but glorious time of the year when the world is full of hope and love, we hope that you will know every happiness in the days ahead.

A former resident of Boyne City who is well known here, Homer Talboys, has broken into the song singing business, in case you haven't heard . . Singing with the Merrymen, he has a recording out under the name of Lee Talboys entitled "Gradually" . . . a real seller . . well on its way to the hit list . . . Not knowing too much about the 'shop talk' regarding recordings we'd hesitate to describe it . . . But we do know that it's darned good listenin' . . Incidently, the song-boy, Talboys, is the brother of Mrs. Rex Davis.

Such a nice way to say

"Happy Easter"

ADVENTURES IN UNDERSTANDING

Notes from A Northerner's Diary

By Harold E. Kohn

Carrying On

When I was a little lad and one of the youngsters in our family or neighborhood would boisterously misbehave, I would hear some of the old folks exclaim, "How that kid carries on!" I never could discover the origins of that quaint, folksy expression, but I knew then and know now what they meant by "carry on." Children who "carry on" are making nuisances of themselves, getting into mischief, causing anxiety.

However, "carrying on" has a higher, larger meaning, too, and I am reminded of it as springtime brings manifold changes to the North. Birds are returning. Yesterday we saw our first killdeer of the season on our beach and today a robin jauntily hopped across our front lawn. They have returned to these haunts for mating and rearing their young and "carrying on" their race.

A few days ago at Hidden Brook I saw in the crotch of an arthritic old apple tree the abandoned nest of a wood thrush. Perhaps the builders of that nest are dead now, but their offspring will be returning to the North within the next few weeks, and we shall hear their plaintive call, "ah-oh-lee, oh-lee-lay, pee-dle-ee," ringing through our woods as their spot-breasted forebearers have sung for ages, and we shall see them darting among the trees with building materials for their homes. They will be "carrying on", singing their ancestor's unfinished songs, bringing more small, winged carolers into the world so that the music of the forests need not be forever stilled.

Last year's yellow ladyslippers and marsh marigolds have long since wilted, drooped and died. But all along our brook bank there will appear this spring the descendants of last year's flowers, carrying a tradition of quiet beauty into a year the parent flowers will never see.

Springtime is courtship time, mating time, family time, blossom time, renewal and resurrection time, when all Nature is "carrying on".

One of the most powerful motives to be found in human hearts is the incentive to "carry on" for someone whose life's work is done. George Gipp, one of the greatest football players the game ever knew, died at twenty-three years of age. He had been a rugged, hard-hitting player on one of Knute Rockne's Notre Dame teams and was affectionately known to his teammates and to football fans across the nation as "the Gipper." When death was near Knute Rockne was called to the hospital to see Gipp. Fumbling for words to say to the dying boy, Rockne bent over him and said, "It's pretty tough to go, isn't it, Gipp?"

The boy smiled and answered, "What's tough about it? I've no complaints." Then he added, "Rock, I've got to go, and it's all right, and I'm not afraid. I'll plunge into this game of dying as I did into West Point and Southern California. Sometimes, Rock, when the going is rough and everything goes wrong, and our team isn't getting a break, tell our boys to go in there with all they've got and win one game—just one game—for 'the Gipper.' Rock I don't know exactly where I'll be, but I'll know about it. I'll be watching from somewhere. You can count on that."

Two years passed. Notre Dame's football team experienced a difficult season. Many boys suffered from injuries, and the team's spirit was low. Then came the Army game, "the Gipper's favorite, and the hardest game of the year. At the end of the first half both teams were scoreless.

Between halves Knute Rockne talked quietly to the nearly demoralized team. He told them about his hospital call on George Gipp during that football hero's last days. He relayed to them the dying wish of the great athlete—"Win one game, just one, for 'the Gipper.' "The boys were hushed, reverent, and inwardly moved.

At the beginning of the last half they ran out on the field and, as the sports writers put it, "seemed inspired, exhalted, overpowering." After a few minutes of play with sweeping end runs and precise forward passes Notre Dame was within stricking distance of their goal. Chevigny was given the ball and bulldozed his way through Army for the winning touchdown. As Chevigny pawed his way out of the heap of players who had fallen over him, he smiled and said, "Boys, that's one for the old Gipper," Notre Dame had "carried on" for George Gipp.

There is a unique, incomparable satisfaction in feeling joined to those who have gone on before us, so that their work cannot die but continues to find expression through us. I know from experience. My father-in-law, Dr. John S. Deabler, was a splendid minister of the Gospel and served more than forty years among Michigan churches, preaching, comforting the bereaved, bringing hope and reassurance to the sick and wise counselling to the problem-ridden. Then one night a telephone call brought us the news that he had died suddenly of a heart attack. He had preached only a few days before and planned to preach again and again. He hoped to call on the needy and help the distressed for some years to come. He died in the midst of much he still wanted to do. Even now, fourteen years after his going, there are occasions when I leave the pulpit, a hospital room, or a consulation, thinking to myself with a glad sense of privilege, "That's one for Dad Deabler." It is gratifying to be able to "carry on" for someone who has gone before us, to "carry on" for some their day.

Patriotism is a kind of "carrying on", a presistence in bearing the highest, noblest aims of the founding fathers of our nation into eras they could not enter and applying their insight, wisdom, courage, and selfless concern for the public welfare to present-day problems. It is a willingness to sacrifice for our country' good in our time as our fathers did in their day.

One could say nothing better about a modern day disciple of Christ than, "See how that fellow carries on!" Isn't that what Jesus expected of those devoted to Him—that they would be extensions of Himself, walking where His feet had never trod, speaking His words in languages his lips never uttered, using instruments of mercy His hands never touched. How else could one interpret His saying, "He who believes in me will also do the works that I do and greater works than these will he do, because I go to the Father." A disciple of Christ can be defined in many ways, but my choicest definition is, "A disciple of Christ is one who carries on for Him."

How have you been "carrying on"?

Largest reptile in the U. S. is the alligator.

EASTER

An Easter Message

It's Easter, time of rejoicing, of hope and faith renewed, when in song and story, the glorious Easter message is heard again. May it bring to you gladness of heart and exaltation of spirit.

Charlevoix Businessmen

Greetings for Easter

To you, at Easter, we extend our sincere greetings, with the hope that you will have a joyful Easter season and with the passing of Easter let us all work together each day of the year—work to make this—our community a better place in which to live.

an Easter prayer

Almighty and Everlasting God, who in love hast fashioned the earth on which we dwell and breathed into being all living things, we thank Thee for this joyous season when Nature throbs with a new-found joy as the drabness of winter shrinks before the coming of spring. Especially are we grateful for Easter Day, for the Christ whose triumph over death we celebrate. For His birth amidst commonplace things, for His words of grace and truth, for His acts of kindness and for His death and resurrection which have changed the complexion of the world and have brought hope to downcast hearts everywhere, we give Thee thanks.

Forbid that amidst life's busyness we should ever forget that One who was clothed in our flesh, walked our earth, felt our pain and died our death. Grant to us more of the keenness of His vision and the appreciations of His heart that we may see the beauties stored around us in the flowers of the field, the green trees, the vaulted skies, and in the penitence, humility, the faith and hope of human hearts. Grant us, too, more of the spirit of Him who came into the world not to condemn the world but to save it, not to blame but to help.

We pray for a larger measure of His serene trust in Thy goodness, that we may live courageously each day, Black Friday, Easter Sunday, and all our common days alike, in the steady faith that whether we live or die we are with Thee and our welfare is in Thy capable and loving hands.

Let the light of eternity fall upon our passing days, showing us what is perishable and what it is that lasts. Teach us how to devote our hours and our strength to those tasks that merit Thy smile of approval, and when our years of service here are over grant us a place of welcome and usefulness in our Father's House. In Christ's name. Amen.—By Rev. Harold E. Kohn.

Charlevoix Telephone Lines

LES JOHNSON
Michigan Bell Manager.

HERE'S YOUR CALLING CARD, a 5 by 11 inch metal card with holes punched in it. Its job is to automatically pick the speediest route for your Long Distance call. And it does this with the speed of light. For instance, if you call Atlanta, as soon as the Michigan operator dials the Atlanta number the "Atlanta card" automatically pops into place and a light shining through holes in the card automatically connects your line with wires through Cincinnati to Atlanta. If those lines are busy, it connects with wires running through Chicago to Atlanta—or through New York to Atlanta. When an emergency requires an entirely new routing, someone at the switching center just punches a new card with a different set of holes and—bingo—your call takes the new routing. This saves issuing instructions to many different operators when a route has to be changed. Pretty good example of how Bell scientists try to give you the best and fastest service at low cost, don't you think?

EASTER SUNDAY is one of those days when all of us like to be near our loved ones. But this isn't always possible. The next best thing to being all together is a Long Distance phone call. Your voice over the telephone will be as welcome and cheering as Spring. And it will cost you very little. Places a whole day's drive away can be reached by phone for a dollar or less. The usual low "after 6 p.m. and all day Sunday" rates apply all day Easter. Make a list now of all those you want to phone a "Happy Easter."

A meeting of managers and sponsors is scheduled for the near future to discuss the propused draft plan for Class A players. Fire Severely Damages Home On Clinton St.

The two-story nine room frame home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. McKenney was severely damaged by fire believed to have started frum an overheated furnace early Saturday evening.

The couple and their four children were away from home when the fire was discovered by Mrs. R. G. Bennett who lives next door at 6:30 p. m.

Fire Chief John Curtis suffered a badly fractured ankle while fighting the fire and is still confined at the Charlevoix hospital where hospital attendants reported his condition as satisfactory.

The fire, whipped by a 40-mile an hour east wind, burned from the basement to the roof through the outside partitions of the house. Asbestos shingles on the exterior confined the fire to the partitions. The house was in the process of being re-shingled. All possessions and furnishings were ruined by water, smoke and heat.

The couple had made extensive repairs on the house and had only recently purchased new furniture.

The loss was partially covered by insurance. No estimate was made of the fire.

The McKenney family is staying with Mrs. McKenney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Poole.

Permits Required For Outdoor Fires In Rural Areas

Grassland and forest fires, capable of causing tremendous damage to natural resources, also may bring about legal troubles for Michigan residents.

Several landowners face court action for violation uf state laws governing use of fire, while some convictions already have resulted in such cases.

State law requires a permit for anyone intending to burn brush, grass, debris and other matter outside the limits of cities and villages. Permits can be obtained from Conservation Department field offices, conservation officers, fire officers or furest fire lookouts.

An Ashley resident, who failed to secure a permit before starting a fire in a rural area, was cunvicted recently in an Ithaca justice court and fined $15., plus court costs.

Extreme care is necessary in the use of fire as Michigan's fire conditions grow more serious. Through March 30, spring fires damaged some 851 acres of state and private forests and grasslands, including 498 acres burned during the week of March 24-30.

Heaviest losses this year have occurred in the southern lower peninsula where dry foliage and high winds increase the danger of fires spreading. Throughout this region to date, fires burned 427 acres.

Fire damage to state and private land in the northern lower peninsula through March 30 totaled 184 acres. In the upper peninsula, where snow on the ground helped reduce hazards, losses had been held to 40 acres during the same period.

Dr. VanRoekel Cites Children's Reading Problems

Dr. B. H. VanRuckel, associate professor at Michigan State University, spoke on the subject of "Persistent problems in reading instruction" at the regular meeting of the P. T. A. held Wednesday evening at the high school band room.

In opening his talk Dr. VanRoekel said that problems in reading were not peculiar to any one community and added that though this was recognized as a problem everywhere there were many phases of it for which there were no answers.

In a typical community, he said, there are 15 per cent of the children who fall in the lower end of the mental scale. These children will never become good readers. Another group includes children who are quite bright in every other respect but who never become good readers. This number along with the first group includes approximately 22 per cent of the students.

The third group which includes some 75 per cent of the total are children who perform well on reading tests but do not grasp what they are reading about because they have not developed good reading habits.

He went on to say that children carry these shortcomings intu college where it has been shown that many students are unable to understand what they have read.

He uffered a list of things parents may teach there pre-school children which will help them to develop good reading habits in the classroom. This includes familiarizing the children with numbers, colors, teaching them right from left, that there are spaces between words for a reason, to tell time, teach them words which will give them a background of the language, read to children and once they start to read give them basic reading material.

He concluded by saying that students must learn more responsibjlty for themselves and must develop mature reading habits.

At the conclusion of his formal talk he answered questions regarding reading problems.

New officers were installed at a brief ceremony at the opening of the meeting. They are: president, Mrs. E. D. Hawley; first vice president, Russell Dohm; second vice president, Mrs. Harold Kuhn; secretary, Mrs. Robert Hamilton and treasurer, Mrs. Robert Pearl.

The Rev. George L. Majors gave the invocation.

Refreshments were served in the cafeteria by a group of fifth grade mothers.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

Who would have believe it . . . After weeks of beautiful sunny weather with temperatures edging the 60 mark, what did we wake up to Easter Sunday but a snow storm . . . A few daring souls braved the elements and wore their new Easter bonnets to which [illegible] but not without a shiver or two . . . We didn't hear of any hats blowing away in the gale but no one would have been surprised if they had.

Guess we're going to get our March winds this month . . . To our way of thinging Mother Nature is sure a crazy mixed-up gal . . . What with giving us a green Christmas, snow for Easter and March weather in April.

We were bragging that the first robins had moved into our neighborhood last week . . . We heard the first one chirping Wednesday night, and we understand from the Ted Feiereisels that they arrived even earlier down city hall way . . With this kind of weather we wouldn't be a bit surprised if they turned right around and went back south where, we understand, it's finally [illegible]

The biggest, prettiest crocuses we've heard about in recent years were blooming in the yard at the Irv Raeignols on the south side . . . But we wouldn't be surprised if they got nipped by the frost . . . But maybe not 'cause they're hardy little things . . . . They'll have to be to bloom in the spring in northern Michigan.

Got any old Petoskey stones laying around the house that you have no use for? . . . If so, the Boy Scouts are looking for some . . . As you probably know, Charlevoix's to be the scene of the annual Camporee next month . . Since Petoskey stones are something peculiar to this immediate area, Boy Scout officials here in town thought they'd give each of the visiting Scouts and leaders a thousand or so, a Petoskey stone as a souvenir of the event . . . They have quite a few but are in need of more so if you have some you'd like to put to good use, call Pete Burns, Bob Bergmann, Arnold Wadas or any other member of the committee who'll be happy to pick them up .

That Camporee, by the way, is going to be quite an event . . . It's going to be held out on the old golf course where boys from all over the north will pitch tents, do their own cooking, enjoy a big camp fire and have a whale of a time the third weekend in May . . We've never had one here before and from what we hear it's quite an event so put that date on your calendar and plan to pay a visit to the camp site . . . It sounds like great fun.

Isn't it good to have the boats coming and going again . . . The Coast Guard cutter Woodbine was in last week and so was the Arundel out of Chicago . . . . both helping the Mackinaw with ice breaking duties in the lakes . . But after the big winds we doubt that there'll be much ice to break up . . . Maybe they'll have to come into Lake Charlevoix and break the ice in the South Arm so the Ironton ferry can be placed in operation . . . If you remember, one of the cutters had to break a path for a coal carrier in Lake Charlevoix about mid-April . . last year.

Can Reduce Fire Losses by Co-operation with Departments

A request to all residents of the area to observe certain procedures in reporting fires has been issued by the Cooperative Fire Fighters Association composed of fire departments of Charlevoix, Ellsworth, East Jordan, Boyne City and Walloon Lake.

In presenting these procedures, a spokesman for the association said that by following the procedures listed below each resident of the area can be prepared for any emergency which may arise and can be of great assistance to the fire department.

First, know the correct number of your fire department and keep it near your telephone. If you live in a rural area you should learn which of the fire departments serves your home. The majority of areas outside the city limits are divided into districts and are served by one fire department. If you do not know which fire department serves your home or farm, call your township supervisor who will give you the name and telephone number of the correct department

Call the fire department immediately upon discovery of a fire, no matter how small. Do not attempt to extinguish the fire yourself before calling. Several times in recent months people have tried to put out fires without calling the fire department with the result that the fire was out of control and too far along to be extinguished by the fire department when it was finally called.

Make certain you call the fire department as soon as possible for it is fully equipped to handle any type of emergency.

When calling the fire department to report a fire, be calm and give a clear description of exactly where your home is located. Also try to give a description of the type of fire, that is, whether a house, chimney, barn or grass fire. A good description of the type of fire can aid the fire department in determining what and how much equipment to bring to the fire. If you live in a rural area which is not on a main road, try and have someone meet the fire department and direct them to the fire.

Everyone's attention is called to local ordinances regarding grass and rubbish fires. Many home fires are started by the careless burning of grass or rubbish this time of year and most areas require a permit before starting any type of outside fire. All rural area residents are required to obtain a burning permit from the Conservation Department before starting an outside fire.

Any questions anyone may have regarding fire protection or the above information can be answered by calling the Fire Chief in charge of the Fire Department serving your area.

It's a 1-2-3 Game of Fashion

Can you name the topic of fashion most talked of, argued about, and jibed at for the last 8 months? Yes, the chemise.

Regardless of what we, as individuals may think of the style, it has been winning the battle of acceptance. Women of fashion are still divided into 3 categories in regards to it.

NUMBER 1. the very enthusiastic enthusiasts from THE BEGINNING

NUMBER 2. THOSE WHO ARE RESIGNED TO IT AND WILLING TO MAKE A GO OF IT

NUMBER 3. THOSE WHO FIRMLY AND CONSISTENTLY STAND AGAINST IT.

As a result of this controversal thinking we now can find Chemise and modified Chemise that are extremely attractive to the feminine figure

Fay's Dress Shop takes a 1-2-3 look at the situation and Fay's dress stocks are constructed to please 1-2-3 opinions in regards to the new fashion. There's a fashion for you at Fay's—whether you be a number 1 for enthusiam, A number 2 for a willingness to be shown and accept or a number 3, who prefers to drape her own personality into its own beauty.

Ag Programs Net Farmers $42,000

[illegible] Charlevoix county [illegible] approximately $42,382 [illegible] for their participation in the various programs handled through the Charlevoix County ASC Committee by the office in Boyne City. Incidentally, the members of this committee for the year have been Carlton H. Smith, chairman; Clayton Healey vice-chairman; and Robert E[illegible] regular member. The [illegible] office committee [illegible] office for 1958.

In round figures, $27,200 either has been or will be paid to Charlevoix county farmers for carrying out such practices as contour and field stripcropping, sod waterways, establishing permanent vegetative cover, tree planting, pasture improvement and summer and winter cover crops—to mention only a few. This figure represents more than 100 per cent of the 1957 allocation—showing an increasing interest in soil conserving practices and the better care of the land.

More than $1,400 was paid out in incentive payments for lamb and wool production to just four Charlevoix county producers. The wool marketing year for 1957 ends on March 31, 1958, and all receipts for lamb or wool sales must be in the ASC office not later than April 30, 1958 in order to be eligible for payment.

Charlevoix county farmers received $13,556 in Soil Bank payments in 1957. This covers both the Acreage Reserve and the Conservation Reserve parts of the Soil Bank. The 40 farmers having Acreage Reserve Agreements in 1958 receive payments totaling more than $9,296—agreeing not to raise wheat on all or part of their wheat allotment acres and to lay aside that acreage all during the 1958 crop year, no grazing or harvesting permitted.

The sum of $4,460 has gone to 14 farmers having contracts under the Conservation Reserve brand of the Soil Bank. About $650 of this sum was payment for establishing conservation practices on the contract acres and the balance of $3,810 was annual payment for acres taken out of production for periods ranging from 3 to 10 years.

'Tree Farm' Signs Indicate Growing Interest in Forestry

Detroit (Special) — Diamond shaped, green and white Tree Farm signs—now seen in increasing numbers throughout Michigan—are symbols of sound forest management on taxpaying forest lands.

In fact, said Charles G. Allen, chairman of Michigan Forest Industries and a Scott Paper Co. official, tree farming in the state has become "quite fashionable" among landowners looking for an added source of income.

"Forest industries are encouraged by the popular appeal of Michigan tree farming," said Allen. "The sign erected at certified Tree Farm sites is an expression of thanks from the wood-using industries to the woodland owner for growing trees as a crop," he added.

Michigan tree farming is a segment of the American Tree Farm System sponsored by American Forrest Products Industries, Inc. It is administered locally by Michigan Forest Industries in cooperation with the Michigan Conservation Department and other organizations and individuals interested in the fullest development of Michigan forest resources.

The program had its inception in the Pacific Northwest in 1941. Since that time the movement has spread to 45 states and encompasses 10,739 tree farmers who own more than 44 million acres of timberland.

Of the 45 states active in the American Tree Farm System, Michigan's 479 Tree Farms comprise 986,917 acres, ranking it eighth in number of certified Tree Farms and 18th in total acreage included.

Tree Farms have been certified in nearly every Michigan county. They range in size from a 5-acre plot in southern Michigan to an industrial forest of more than 300,000 acres in the Upper Peninsula.

In the United States today are some 4,400,000 small woodland owners whose holdings are under 500 acres in size. These private owners control 61 percent of the country's commercial forest land. Each year they harvest 700 million dollars worth of forest products. With more than 60 per cent of the timberland held by private landowners, timber harvests are an important source of income to thousands.

Tree farming is no longer associated only with the Michigan farmer. Many business and professional men and women have recognized the advantage of growing trees as a crop and are actively engaged in tree farming, either as a hobby or as an investment venture.

In many instances money derived from the sale of the annual wood growth has helped pay taxes, defrayed the costs of farmstead improvements, sent a child to college, and supplemented retirement incomes.

"Tree farming has helped establish the value of the growing tree," Allen said. "It has encouraged the small woodland owner to do a better job on his lands. Tree farming is something that the farmer can do for himself—and make money while doing it. It is also responsible for improved game habitat, better watershed control, fishing opportunity and general recreation with easy access.

"Good forestry on privately-owned lands is the nation's assurance of a future wood supply. The principles of tree farming guarantee future wood crops, continued mill production, and a high standard of living for our citizens" Allen concluded.

Persons interested in having their woodland acreage considered for certification in the Michigan Tree Farm program should write Forester Rowland W. Blair, chairman, Michigan Tree Farm Committee, American Box Board Co., Filer City, Mich.

Tree Transplanting Methods Suggested

Thinking of transplanting a shade tree in your lawn?

That job can be done in fall, winter or spring, depending on the kind of tree, says Ed Rebman, Charlevoix county agricultural agent. Trees are dormant in these three seasons, making transplanting possible for most trees except some with fleshy roots such as birch, sassafras, Magnolia, dogwood and tulip poplar. These trees are best planted in the spring because their roots are easily damaged by freezing.

Agent Rebman reports that a new bulletin on transplanting shade trees is now available in the county extension office. Copies are free for the asking.

Written by Harold Schick, Michigan State University extension specialist in park management, the publication contains information about where to plant trees, how and when to do it, what trees are desirable and how to care for trees after transplanting.

Ask for Extension folder F-250, "Transplanting Shade Trees."

Booklet Gives Facts on Home Sewage Systems

Advice about home disposals systems is contained in a new booklet published jointly by the Michigan Department of Health and Michigan State University, according to John Reynolds, sanitarian at District Health Department No. 4.

The publication, "Questions and Answers about Home Sewage Disposal" can be obtained at the local health department office in the county building or by writing to Michigan State, State Health Department or county cooperative extension services offices.

Among the items included in the booklet are soils and how to test the rate at which they absorb water, drainage fields, cleaning of septic tanks, the size of septic tanks and other important information necessary to building and locating a home sewage disposal system.

The booklet also emphasizes the importance of consulting with the local health department or county agricultural agent before buying, installing or altering a home sewage system.

Mrs. Earl Kroll

The Sunday school, beginning on Sunday, will start at 11:00 a. m., from now on, instead of 11:15 as in the past.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Nielsen, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Knudsen and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kroll attended the 4-H leaders banquet in East Jordan on Monday night.

Joyce Nielsen returned to her home Saturday after spending the past ten days in the Little Traverse hospital in Petoskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Boyer and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Boyer spent Easter Sunday with Billy [illegible] in Muskegon where he is attending school.

Guests of the Earl Kroll's Sunday afternoon and evening were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Heckman and daughters, Bonnie and Connie, and Mr. and Mrs. George Bergmann and son, Steven.

Mrs. Pete Kanoff and son, Donnie, spent last week in Warren with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Crane, and Mrs. Kanoff's grandmother who is seriously ill.

Pinochle club met with Mrs. Joyce Hasmer. Prizes were won by Mrs. Mary Hubble, Mrs. Millie Leppla and Mrs. Lois Parsel.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nachazel all arrived home last Wednesday after the winter spent in Florida.

A female beagle has found her way to our house and though we'd like to keep her, I'm sure there must be someone in the area unhappy over losing a well-cared for dog. She has been bedded down and fed during her stay with us but with our crew of six plus dog, cat, canary, and puppies, another dog is excess baggage. So I hope she will be claimed before too many more days. Our phone is LI 7-2074.

Although snow fell for Easter it didn't seem to dampen or cool the spirits of the small fry at Church Sunday. Because of the weather, the Easter egg hunt was held in the basement of the church and a wild time was had by all the youngsters who also received a basket of candy to take home with the eggs they found. Mrs. Carl Anderson's Sunday school class met at the Anderson home last Thursday evening to dye the eggs for the hunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Meyers were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchinson for dinner Easter Sunday.

Grown-up "Kid Stuff"

The kids around here are sure pulling a lot of weight with local businessmen these days.

For instance, Mack McCarthy has collected and patched old inner tubes all winter. He'll pass them out for the swimming hole season—with this stenciled on: "Courtesy of McCarthy Auto Service."

And Mr. Troy, over at the bank, has put in three new shiny high chairs—for visiting mothers to park their kids in. There's a sign over the chairs: "Save now for a happy future."

From where I sit, I like the way people take to new ideas to promote their business. It shows that they are open-minded. We all could stand a little more of it in our personal lives too. For example, you may prefer tea or buttermilk to my choice of a glass of beer. But if we're "open-minded" we accept the other fellow's choice.

Farmers Warned to Investigate Seed Corn Offered

Charlevoix county farmers are urged to be on the lookout for seed salesmen suggesting they plant sweet-dent corn hybrids for silage this year.

County Agent Ed Rebman explains that some of the extravagant claims being made, such as more and better quality silage, higher sugar content and more palatable silage, aren't all the salesmen say they are.

Sweet-dent corn is a hybrid which produces ears with about one-third the kernels being sweet corn and the rest regular dent corn.

Five years of testing by Michigan State University farm crops researchers show these results with sweet-dent corn hybrids.

One—Grain yields from the sweet-dent corn are lower than the best recommended dent hybrids. The most important consideration in high quality corn silage is grain content, Rebman says.

Two—Regular dent corn makes better silage than sweet-dent if you consider the best measure of silage quality—grain content. Keeping quality of both types of silage is the same providing both are ensiled at the proper stage of maturity.

Three—Sweet-dent silage may be higher in sugar content which might make it a little more attractive to livestock. However, the small difference would be more than offset by the lower grain content of the silage.

Also, the agriculturalist adds that should some of the corn be harvested for grain, you can expect trouble. Sweet-dent ears are slower to dry because the sweet corn kernels give up moisture very slowly. The slightly higher sugar content coupled with higher moisture contributes to rapid molding and spoilage in storage.

Rebman stresses that farmers will be further ahead to plant the regular dent corn hybrids recommended for the soil and climatic conditions on their farms. Information on how various hybrids perform in this area is available at the Extension office in Boyne City.

Michigan produces about a third of all the dry beans grown in the United States. And Michigan produces over 95 per cent of the U. S. supply of pea beans.

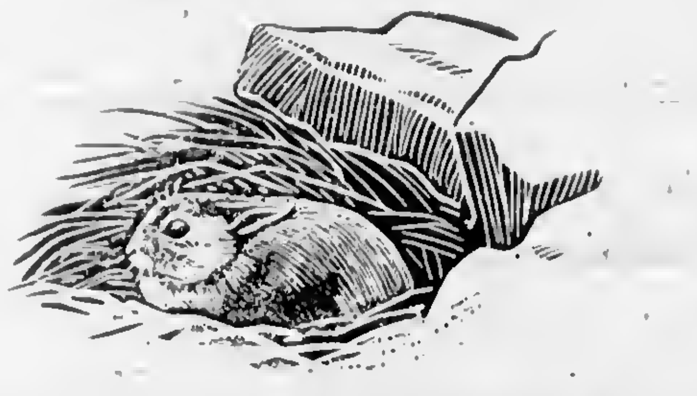
ADVENTURES IN UNDERSTANDING

Notes from A Northerner's Diary

By Harold E. Kohn



Effort Is Not Enough

The last patches of snow are rapidly disappearing now as spring advances and the sun warms the ground. Much of the grass on our lawn has already turned green, and in a few places it has grown enough to give our rabbit neighbors cover as well as food. Insects are emerging from their hiding places. Chipmunks and skunks, snakes, toads and frogs are awakening from winter sleep. Hepatica, trillium and yellow ladyslippers will soon burst into bloom, and trees are tinged with the yellow-green cast of leaves that are on the verge of opening. Killdeers call along our shore, and migrating ducks can be seen from our front windows, dipping offshore, seeking a traveller's snack of minnows or crustaceans. Earth and air are replete with signs of renewal.

But the earth does not revive itself in spring. No inner effort and strife will suffice to bring [illegible] them and draw the warblers northward. What is it then that unlocks the soil so that green grasses and bright, multi-colored flowers might come trooping forth?

Spring begins far away in outer space where whirls that golden star, the sun. From ninety million miles away the beneficent sun shines upon the earth, sending down heat and light. As our earth spins around the sun, held by its tether of gravitational pull, this little satellite turns on its tilted axis at an oblique angle of 23½ degrees. In December, January and February the Northern Hemisphere turns away from the sun and the Southern Hemisphere inclines toward it, while during June, July and August this obliquity inclines our hemisphere toward the sun. Springtime is that in-between period when the earth is changing its position, turning the North toward our great source of heat and light, allowing the good influences of the sun to fall upon us and make all the changes we know as "springtime." Spring is that time when our hemisphere simply moves into the position where the sun can bestow its favors, and the sun does the rest.

One secret of successful and happy living is that of recognizing and employing the principle of placing yourself in the position where the best things can happen to you. Miracles of spiritual change can then take place which effort alone can never perform.

No worse advice could possibly be given to some people than to "Try! Try harder!" A person who suffers from chronic fatigue, or strain, or one who has experienced shock knows full well that his efforts to improve himself are unavailing. Often much of his problem can be blamed on trying too hard. What he needs is not more effort but more resources, not more pressure on the accelerator but gas in the tank, not more fertilizer and hoeing, but more spring sunshine and rain.

Effort has its place in life and it has its limitations, too. Effort can get you to a concert on time, but it will not sufffice to enjoy the music. Strain to listen, stretch to get every note and you will be miserable. But sit back with open mind and heart, as a field in springtime is open to the sky, and let the music fall upon you. Soak it in. Let it seep down into the roots of your being, and a good response will have a chance of flowering.

Effort will get you dressed into your car and to your friend's home for dinner and conservation, but effort alone will not make a pleasant evening. Try hard to impress your friend with your good will, your intelligence, your prestige, try hard to have a good time and you will ruin your evening. Friendship is enjoyed most when effort is least apparent, and when each participant is quietly absorbing the good in another's life, as the earth drinks in the warmth and light of the sun with effortless ease.

Effort will aid in following a doctor's orders concerning taking medicines regularly, following a rigid diet, getting sufficient rest or enough exercise. But effort itself will not heal. God heals, quietly, silently, through the recuperative powers He has stored in you, and with the aids provided by science, while you sleep, while you think of other matters besides health and while you are not trying at all.

Effort will provide a time and place of prayer, but effort alone does not supply us fellowship with God. Some people conceive of prayer as the effort made to get God to listen to them and do their will. To them prayer is a matter of mastering the right vocabulary, learning the magical formula that will assault God at His weakest points and make Him give in to their whims. Such exertions are poor substitutes for meaningful prayer. Prayer is listening to God as well as talking to Him. It is thanking God as well as trying to get something from Him. Prayer is testing for awhile in God's greatness.

Doing most things requires some effort, as when plowing ground and sowing seed. But the best things that ever happen to us do not come from effort alone, but by quiet, receptive waiting, too, as the earth now patiently waits for spring sun and rain to call the flowers out and bring the birds back home.

Indian Trails Set Pattern For Many Michigan Highways

You can' thank the Indians as you go whizzing along Michigan highways. The first land communication lines in Michigan were Indian trails, according to information in the University of Michigan Historical Collections.

The late Roger L. Morrison, for many years a member of the U-M faculty, wrote in a Michigan transportation article, "These formed a network over the state, some being parts of overland routes extending from the Atlantic Coast and other far distant points. Many — if not all — later became roads for the white man.

"Several of the great modern highways leading out from Detroit were originally trails, used probably for centuries by the Indians. A century and a half after the first settlements were made in Michigan Territory, and after Detroit had been occupied for more than a century, there were still no wagon roads anywhere in Michigan except possibly in the immediate vicinity of the settlements.

According to Morrison, "The most important Indian trail was that known as the Great Trail which ran from Fort Pitt, at the site of Pittsburgh, Pa., to Fort Detroit and an extension of Braddock's Road from the Atlantic Seaboard. This trail crossed the Maumee River just above the present site of Toledo and from there led northward to Detroit.

"One of the most important of the old Indian trails was the Sauk Trail from the Detroit River westward to the lower end of Lake Michigan and the Chicago River. When the white man came, he also used this trail, but after the War of 1812 it was inadequate for the demands made upon it by the settlers.

"In 1824 Father Gabriel Richard, then serving as a delegate in Congress from the Michigan Territory, moved to have the advisability of opening up of a road from Detroit to Chicago investigated and Congress appropriated $3,000 for a survey of the route.

The route through Ypsilanti, Jonesville and White Pigeon is practically that now followed by U. S. 112.

"Construction was begun in 1829 and by the end of 1830, 64 miles had been completed. Even before it was finished the Chicago Road became a vital factor in the settlement of southern Michigan," Morrison wrote.

"Settlements were being pushed northward as well as westwards from Detroit and when the Chicago road was under construction, roads were also projected from Detroit to Saginaw and Fort Gratiot (Port Huron).

"Construction was begun the following year. Progress was slow but the road was completed to Pontiac in 1831 when a French traveler, DeTocqueville, was informed at the Detroit land office that beyond Pontiac the country was full of nothing but Indians and wild beasts. By 1834 the road was extended to the Flint River and five miles beyond Flint in 1835".

'Ten Commandments' Booked for Ten Day Showing at Boyne

An outstanding spectacular in motion picture production. "The Ten Commandments", produced by Cecil B. DeMille, has been booked for a ten day showing by the Boyne Theater, Boyne City. The showing begins next Wednesday with a matinee and evening show on the opening date.

"The Ten Commandments" is a dramatization of the Book of Exodus, starring Charlton Heston as Moses, Yul Brynner as his implacable enemy, Ramese II, Anne Baxter, Edward G. Robinson, Yvonne DeCarlo, Debra Pagent and John Derek.

Running three hours and forty minutes, the Vista Vision technicolor film is the account of the life of Moses from the time his mother set him afloat on the Nile, through his years as a mighty general ni Pharaoch's army, to his betrayal and exile in the dessert, an finally his deliverance of the Israelites and his receipt of God's Commandments.

Many of the scenes were made on Mount Sinai, on the Red Sea and the same dessert locations where the real life story occured.

Canadian Geese Find Haven On 225 U. S. Operated Refuges

Among visitors to the United States, none is more hospitably welcomed and pampered than the Canada goose.

Sounding their clarion notes on still nights, the wild geese come in V-shaped formations to pass the winter on ancestral feeding grounds. They are among the first birds to start north again in early spring to breed, the National Geographic Society says.

Though hunted by fair means and foul, the big Canada geese are more than holding their own. The population trend is upward. The Fish and Wildlife Service estimates that some 327,000 came down the Atlantic Flyway alone in 1957 as compared to 266,000 in 1954. These and Canada geese migrating along other flyways find winter haven at 255 Federal refuges totaling 9,422,935 acres.

To assure the welcome guests plenty of food, crops are set out in refuges along the flyways. Fields are burned well in advance so the geese will be greeted with an expanse of tender green shoots. Oats, rye, soy beans, and clover are planted in clearings.

The Canada goose (Branta canadensis) gets around more than perhaps any other water fowl. The species is seen seasonally from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Artic Circle.

Adults have a wingspread of about six feet and weigh from seven to 14 pounds. Boldly marked, the brownish-grey geese have black heads, white cheeks, and long black necks or "stockings".

Like periscopes, the black necks and heads of sentinels protrude above the backs of a feeding flock. The guards remain tensely alert until relieved by others to take their turn eating.

Far from being silly, the Canada goose is famous for its wariness, wisdom, and fidelity. It is an expert at playing possum— even on water. Audubon wrote that it could easily distinguish the crackling of a twig by a harmless deer from the same accident caused by man.

Canada geese mate for life and show great concern for each other. The gander doesn't deign to sit on the nest, but it keeps constant watch, and is a fierce defender of the family.

The goose usually lays five or six eggs, which hatch in 28 to 30 days. Gosling training begins at once. First order of business is a swim, with the gander leading, the goslings following, the mother bringing up the rear guard. To one downy chick, the mother may point out a floating seed. She calls another's attention to a tasty slug.

Nature grounds the geese for family duties in summer by causing their wing and tail feathers to molt. At the beginning of September, the adults have regained their flight powers and the young are strong enough to undertake an aerial voyage of 4,000 miles or so to wintering grounds.

Strong, trusted ganders lead the wedge-shaped flights in formation gives the other birds clear vision, ample wing space, and a minimum of air resistance. A flock can average about 55 miles in hour.

Though the Canada goose is man shy, it quickly learns friend from foe. A few years ago, nine big Canadas found asylum at a pond on a farm near Ansonville, North Carolina. The word apparently got around, for thousands winter now at the private refuge.

Gov. Williams will be the first Michigan chief executive getting a chance to use reorganization powers sought by government reformers for eight years.

Many people were amazed when Republicans joined Democarts to enact a law enabling the governor to reorganize state government, held in check only by a legislative veto.

The whole system reverses the normal relationship between the legislature and the governor, in which the law makers enact and the governor vetoes or approves.

The history of the idea in Michigan began with an ambitious research program started eight years ago.

Launched by the legislature, the survey dug into every phase of state government and made 31 reports. The executive reorganization plan was the pivot of them all.

Numerous proposals for specific reforms were the twigs on the tree, hut the executive reorganization idea was the trunk.

Researchers reasoned that the administrative head of government should be responsible for his own operations and should be the most familiar with the weaknesses and strengths of the agencies.

The executive reorganization plan was offered to the legislature each year and each year it was defeated or left to gather dust in a committee room pigeon hole.

Only a few political scientists believed it would pass this year. It passed the House 66-36 and the Senate 19-11.

Critics of the idea argued that the legislature is the state's lawmaking body and should propose, debate and iron the kinks out of reorganization ideas before they are put into effect.

Backers of the idea said that the legislature, in session for three months or more each year, could not possibly know the details of a functioning department and whether it should be merged with another.

The bill, as passed by both houses, allows the governor to propose mergers and abandonment of agencies but he cannot propose new agencies.

Safeguards have been written into the law.

The governor may make his proposals within 30 days after the legislature convenes in January. The legislature then will have 60 days in which to act.

If the legislature does not approve or disapprove of the proposals, they will become law 90 days after the session ends.

Either house can veto the proposals and affirmative votes by both are needed before the proposals can be put into effect.

For years, separate attempts have been made to merge all health agencies under a single administrative office; each operating separately, but their work coordinated by a single head.

It has also been proposed that the dozens of state regulatory and licensing ageneies be merged, that a clear distinction be made between some overlapping welfare and health functions.

The whole idea of the survey eight years ago was to centralize control of government as well as responsibility, giving voters a clear-cut view of the record of candidates.

The new law is a personal victory for Senator Frank Andrews (R-Hillman) but the manner of its birth as a law deprived him of credit for its passage.

Andrew inherited chairmanship of the legislative committee on state government reorganization (the "Little Hoover Commission") from former Rep. Robert M. Montgomery in 1952.

Research work had then been accomplished and Andrews undertook the tougher job of piloting its recommendations through the legislature.

Built-in opposition to giving Williams more power thwarted him at almost every turn.

Time after time, the proposals were introduced by Andrews, only to be killed off in committee. Occasionally, some reached the floor where the demise was a public affair.

This time, the reorganization bill was first sponsored in the House of Representatives. Andrews, who did the grueling work of promotion, cannot be listed as sponsor.

But, when the people who followed the course of the program see it in action in the future, there will come to mind the tall, strong figure of the man from Hillman.

To help sell $100,000,000 in bonds for building of the Mackinac bridge the Michigan legislature in 1953 voted an annual appropriation of $417,000 from the highway fund for operating and maintenance costs of the huge span. This assures that toll revenues will be reserved exclusively to meet interest payments and retire the bonds.

Council Starts Suit To Recover Damages

The city of Charlevoix has started a suit against Charles Weaver, 19701 James Couzens Highway in Detroit for breach of contract arising out of damages sustained by the city because of the failure of performance of the city's 1954 Diesel engine generator purchase contract.

The city will be represented by Norman D. Ance, city attorney, and Clark C. Coulter, counsel, in the suit.

The decision to sue Mr. Weaver was made at the regular meeting of the city council Monday night.

At the same meeting the council adopted a budget of $168,129.44 for 1958-59 which is some $500 less than last year's budget of $168,729. A tax levy of 17 mills, the same as last year, on the city's equalized valuation of $5,061,650 plus estimated revenues of $83,155.90 from other sources will finance the new budget. Charlevoix's valuation has been increased $49,450 over last year's figure of $5,012,200.

The City Superintendent was authorized to purchase at the best price obtainable electrical equipment and supplies for use on various projects including docks, boat slips, distribution system and U. S. C. G. cutter Sundew and one oil meter for use from the Cities Service storage tanks to the city power plant tanks.

Bids on a one-half ton pick-up truck for use by the water department submitted by Northern Auto. Co., Charlevoix Oil Co. and Brown Motors Inc., were opened and referred to the finance committee and City Superintendent for tabulation and evaluation. A report will be made by the committee at the April 28 meeting.

Harry Gebeau was named mayor pro tem for the year of 1958-59.

Rates for Charlevoix municipal golf course were approved. They are as follows: Season tickets: single adult, 18.00; husband and wife, $30.00 and student tickets for players of high school age, $9.00.

Daily rates: nine holes, adults, $1.25; 18 holes or more, adult, $2.00; all day, student, .50 cents. A limited number of complimentary tickets will be issued to U. S. Coast Guardsmen stationed at various installations here and one to the mayor, council members and clerk.

Tax Allocation Board to Meet For Organization

The organizational meeting of the Charlevoix tax allocation board will be held at th office of the county clerk in the new county building at 1 p. m. Monday.

Making their initial appearance at the meeting will be the three new members appointed to the board by Probate Judge William T. Downs. They are Harlan E. Rubach of Boyne City, William G. Boswelf nf East Jordan and Albert H. Smith of Charlevoix.

Other members of the board, by virtue of their offices are Lillis M. Flanders, county treasurer, Charles A. Robinson county superintendent of schools and Russell L. Curtis, chairman of the finance committee of the county board of supervisors.

Mr. Downs said that Mr. Ruback was named to the board to represent city government, Mr. Boswell was named as a member at large and Mr. Smith to represent boards of education.

Fenton R. Bulow, clerk of the board, has asked that all tentative budgets be filed with the office of the county clerk before April 21.

Gov. Williams Administers Oath to Judge

G. Mennen Williams, making one of his rare appearances here, administered the oath of office to Charlevoix county's new probate judge, William T. Downs, East Jordan attorney, at an impressive ceremony at the new county building Monday.

In a brief talk Gov. Williams complimented the residents of Charlevoix on their attractive new county building. He then went on to say the judges play important roles in the communities in which they serve. They are not only ministers of justice but interprete changes made in the laws from time to time, must know the feeling of the people in the community, serve as an example to all who know them and understand the problems and shortcomings of people with whom the court deals. Above all they must like and understand children and realize that the problems brought before them are

Six Softball Teams Entered In League Play

The 1958 softball season here promises to be the best yet Dean Davenport, city softball manager, said following a meeting of sponsors, managers and team members held Friday night.

The league will again boast six teams but each team will be stronger than any fielded in the past under the new set up, Mr. Davenport said.

There will be three local teams, that is, teams with local sponsors. In addition, the U. S. Coast Guard will be joined by crewmen of the cutter Sundew in forming what should be a very strong unit. Ellsworth will again be a member. Boyne City, which in the past played in the Petoskey league, has joined the Charlevoix association to round out what should be the strongest group in the north.

Mr Davenport said that there was a possibility of fielding a 'Sunday team', a group of players selected from the three local teams who would play home and away games each Sunday throughout the season.

Players were also drafted by team managers at the meeting. In this way, the teams will be better balanced and thus more evenly matched, Mr. Davenport said.

ODDS 'N ENDS

by Fran Martin

Play Ball! was heard round the land Tuesday to launch the 1958 baseball season . . . and whether you like the game or not you're going to listen to it, watch it, or read about it if our modern means of communication have anything to do about it . . . How is your favorite team going to do . . . Wanna make any bets this early in the season? . . . It's going to be interesting no matter how the season ends, come October . . . In between there's going to be a whale of a lot of baseball played . . on and off the diamond . . . So instead of points scored or passes caught we'll be talking batting averages and the lingo that goes with the country's greatest sport . . .

Frank Bird stopped in the other day to show us the darndest thing . . . a piece of driftwood so much like a human skull that we got shivers just looking at it . . . It's amazing how those pieces of wood grow up into the most unusual shapes.

Have you noticed those beautiful sunsets we've been having recently . . . the most heavenly colors and no two of them alike . . . . Once you see sunsets over the water, all others seem to lack something . . . One day last week the water was the same color as the sky and it was hard to see where one left off and the other began . . . We'll be seeing plenty of them from now on .

Anybody know any thing about the smelt . . that is, if they're running yet . . As this is being written we haven't heard a thing about any except a possible run at Advance . . . We're told by those in the know that a warm spring rain would do wonders . . but as yet we haven't seen anything that resembles a warm spring shower . . We hope there's a good run because we know scads of people are just waiting for the word to come north . . . And in addition, we kinda like the silvery little fish too.

And speaking of fish, it won't be long before the trout season opens . . . April 26 . . . to be exact . . . All those good fishermen around town will be taking to the streams for the elusive rainbows, browns and what have you.

That reminds us that it will be less than two months before the bass season opens which should bring cheers from our fishermen friends. Bill Jenkins, down Bedford, Ind., way and Sol Marcus out east . . two of the most avid bass fishermen we know . . . As far as they're concerned there aren't any other fish in the lakes.

As long as we're on the subject of fish, we might as well mention the perch which should be running here before too long.

We'd better change the subject . . . After all, not everyone's interested in baseball and fishing . . . although those are the two main topics of conversation at the moment.

Don't know whether you happened to read the story we had last week on the student code that being considered for the Charlevoix high school . . . Sandy Cunningham brought us a copy of it . . . We think it's pretty terrific . . the student council has certainly put a lot of thought into it . . If it could be applied to our school it certainly would do away with a lot of problems which face both students and parents . . We hope everyone has an opportunity to read it . . . We're sure you'll feel pretty much the same as we do about it.

Dig That Wig!

One to top them all in fashion news is the introduction of the wig. New York fashion houses display wigs to match costumes.

Imagine a midnight chat between two window mannequins.

"Is nothing sacred, darling?" says the blonde in the righthand window.

"What have the beasts done now?" Replies the brunette in the window to the left.

"They almost sold the wig right off my head today, darling!" Says the blonde. "I thought scalping went out with Custer's last-stand but I've got news for you—since toupees have become chic we're in danger of becoming bald any minute!"

"Are you serious?" Asks the brunette. "I thought we had the exclusive on the wig bit."

"Don't be archaic, darling," hisses the blonde. "Didn't you see the window cards? They're plugging our fake coiffures. Wigs are big!" (We quote)

We at FAY'S don't have wigs but we do know that the "One Color Look" that makes exotic fashion and accessory planning a real, live project. You'll want to first shop at FAY'S in this exciting new adventure in fashion planning.

Noted Pianist to Appear Saturday In Concert Series

The Northern Michigan Community Concert Association will present the Eugene List Concerto Festival at the Petoskey high school auditorium at 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

In this concert, the third in a series of four, Eugene List, a musical celebrity on four continents, is being joined by New York's distinguished Knickerbocker Players.

Ever since his brilliant debut at the age of 16 playing the American premiere of the Shostakovich Piano Concerto with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Stokowski, he has been one of the nation's favorite artists. In recent years he has starred in every medium that can use the services of a keyboard artist. He has been a frequent guest on television as well as radio and the concert stage.

His appearance in Petoskey as a featured soloist for the Concerto Festival will be a happy renewal of an old acquaintance for many concert-goers.

The next and last concert of the 1957-58 series will be on May 5 when Clarence Turner, contralto, appears at the Petoskey auditorium.

Jordan Creamery To Hold Annual Meeting Monday

The Jordan Valley Co-operative Creamery, one of the major industries in the area, will hold its annual meeting at the East Jordan high school ouditorium at 8 p. m. Monday according to Percy Penfold, co-operative manager.

Election of two directors, a financial report and plans for the coming year will highlight the meeting which will be attended by a large percentage of the co-operative's more than 1,200 stockholders.

During the past year, the creamery has added two new products to its growing list of dairy commodities manufactured at the plant. The co-operative is now making spray and milk powder for use in bakery quality foods and condensed milk for use in ice cream industry. The company re-converted some of its equipment for use in the making of these food products during the past year, Mr. Penfold said.

A considerable amount of liquid milk has also been shipped to southern Michigan markets via tank car during the year.

Major products made by the creamery are butter and dried buttermilk, the latter for use in mashes for poultry.

That the co-operative is 'big business' in the area is shown by the fact that it did 1¾ million dollars worth of business during the past year.

A total of 21 million pounds of milk was processed and 2¼ million pounds of butter made at the creamery in East Jordan.

The milk and cream needed in the manufacture of these products is supplied by 403 cream and 204 milk patrons on farms throughout the northern tip of the lower peninsula.

Governor Williams Administers Oath

Mayor E. James Hiller welcomed Gov. Williams and introduced visitors who included Judge Edward H. Fenlon of the 33rd Judicial Circuit, Judge Charles L. Brown of the 13th Judicial Circuit, Mayor Vern Whiteford of Boyne City and Mayor Marshall Neymark of East Jordan. J. M. Foster, former postmaster, then introduced Gov. Williams.

Among the spectators who packed the courtroom for the ceremony were Mrs. Downs and four of their six children, Penny, 12, John, 10, Charles 7, and Suzy, 6. The couple's other children are Stephen, 2, and Peter, three months. Others included county officials, employees in the offices located in the county building, city officials, Democrats from throughout the county and school students and other spectators.

Later the Governor addressed the assembled students of the Charlevoix public schools at the high school auditorium.

In speaking to the students he said it was important that they show pride in their state for it was among the greatest in the nation. He mentioned several things in which Michigan rated first.

He then addressed his remarks to the older students, emphasizing the need of as much education as they can get. He said that even in this time of unemployment, there was a shortage of people in skilled catagories such as medicine, teaching, science, engineering and other special fields.

Supt. R. G. Bennett introduced Gov. Williams as well as Mr. and Mrs. Downs, Mrs. E. D. Hawley, president of the P. T. A. M. J. Foster, H. E. Bingham, and Glenn B. Snider, the latter school principals.

Gov. Williams and his party were met at the airport by Mayor Hiller and other city officials and Charlevoix county Democratic leaders headed by Mrs. Theodore Tunison who accompanied him to the county building where he was greeted by the Charlevoix high school band under the direction of C. A. Odmark. Before entering the courthouse he was introduced to members of the senior class.

Before going to East Jordan where he addressed the assembled school students and to Petoskey, Gov. Williams and his aide and Mr. and Mrs. Downs had lunch at the Grey Gables Inn.

Dog Collects Damages for Loss of Eye

Five year old Skeeter testified rather mutely in her own behalf yesterday, and as a result won $530 in damages, reports the San Francisco Examiner.

The Spaniel-Belgian sheepdog lost the sight of an eye when James Candy, 40, of 527 Merrimac St., Oakland, admittedly heaved a brick at her.

Skeeter hopped on the witness chair to show Oakland Municipal Judge Charles W. Fisher her injury. Fisher declared stonily:

"I cannot understand how a man can take a brick and throw it with such force at this little dog. It is most fortunate, sir, that you are not before me on a criminal charge."

Candy said he tossed the brick because he was irked at a pack of dogs that had been scratching up his lawn.

The suit was brought by Skeeter's owner, Harold Vance, 55, of 530 Merrimac St. He was awarded $500 punitive damages and $30 for the veterinarian's bill.

What's Your Record?

Harold E. West, who has driven over 1,600,000 miles without an accident, has been chosen Michigan's 1957 Driver of the Year!

His amazing total of accident-free miles amounts to an average of more than 5,000 a month during the 27 years he has driven a truck for the Geo. F. Alger Company, large Detroit trucking concern.

Like the 11 other truck drivers who were finalists with him in the annual competition (and the drivers of the thousands of trucks which keep Michigan's homes and factories and shops and farms supplied with the things they need), West makes a professional career of safe driving.

Congratulations, Harold West! Keep up the good work—and may your example be an inspiration to Michigan's vast motoring public!

ADVENTURES IN UNDERSTANDING

Notes from A Northerner's Diary

By Harold E. Kohn

Too Much Preparation

On these warm days we see wild ducks flying rapidly over the bay, circling over the woods that fringe the lake, and returning to light upon the dancing waters. Greater scaup rest here on their way from salt water bays along the eastern seaboard of our country to the Artic, where they will rest and raise their young. American golden-eyes relax here and replenish their strength before they continue their flight from the coast of South Carolina to breeding grounds extending from Northern Michigan to Hudson Bay. The small and beautiful buffleheads find a breathing spell in this bay before they resume their travels to western Canada. Before summer arrives an occasional pair of ruddy ducks may drop in to see us, a great variety of other web-foots will quack and gabble here briefly before taking wing for distant ponds and streams, and the familiar mallards will paddle contentedly along our shores and possibly nest in our neighborhood.

One of the traits of the migrating birds that intrigues and inspires me is the spontaneity of their traveling. They make no long, involved, wearisome preparations. Their readiness for a journey is of a simple sort, compoundnded mainly of a strong body, much courage, deep urgency, and a sense of direction. Their modest preliminaries are as few and uncomplicated as those of John Muir, that great-hearted and self-reliant American naturalist, who said that all he needed to do in getting ready for a natural history expedition was to "throw some tea and bread in an old sack and jump over the back fence."

Migrating ducks could teach a valuable lesson concerning our own life adventures. What we need most for our travels through life is not a heap of gadgets, but a sense of direction, courage, and a willingness to move on and do the thing we feel a holy urge to do.

Too much preparation for a task is self-defeating. We can become so over burdened with the fantastic details of getting ready to do a thing that it never gets done. There is an old fable about a foolish knight of yore who prepared to make a long journey. He thought it wise to be ready for every emergency that might arise on his travels, so he put a mousetrap in his pocket in case he should be troubled with mice. Just in case he might be annoyed by bees he hung a beehive over his shoulder. In the event that he should meet with hordes of mosquitoes along the way and they should try to work through the joints of his armor and around his exposed eyes, he placed mosquito netting in his satchel. Because his armor might get dented; he carried a large repair kit. Anticipating that his horse might break its harness straps, the knight packed extra leather and mending tools. On and on, he added one precaution after another until his load was so great that he had to give up making the journey. The knight's dilemma is a human problem found among timid souls everywhere. We are prone to make such elaborate preparations for a task that the duty never gets performed.

We will visit a friend who is in trouble as soon as we can think of something appropriate and impressive to say. But by the time we have developed our pretty little speech the friend's heartache is over, or converted into bitterness, and our opportunity is gone.

We will write that letter of condolence, or gratitude, or sincere praise when we have the time to compose a literary masterpiece, but the burden of such composition is so great that it is postponed indefinitely.

We will serve our community, club, or church when we are better prepared. But the vast amount of preparation is never attended to and the need is neglected, and the cause suffers.

Life is so full of opportunities for which much preparation is absolutely essential—such as choice of profession, selecting a mate, building a home—that conscientious people are apt to make the mistake of undertaking nothing without long consideration and complex planning. We need to make room in our living for spontaneous acting upon good implsues. As Henry Amiel once said, "Life is short and we have not much time for gladdening the hearts of those who are traveling the dark way with us. Oh, be swift to love! Make haste to be kind!"

Ex-Dope Peddler To Hold Services At Local Church

During the 10-day period he is here he will preach from night to night on the following subjects: "The Devil pays with death" "The second coming of the Lord is leteral and soon," "The baptism of the Holy Spirit is for you", "How to know Christ" and others. He will also tell how he was saved from the underworld where for several years he was a dope peddler and a member of the Dallas underworld. It through the efforts of his mother and friends that he was persuaded to seek God and was converted.

Mr. Weaver travels with his wife and small son.

Everyone is invited to hear this young man at the Assembly of God church at 8 p. m. nightly April 20 to 30 with the exception of April 21 and 26. The service on April 28 will be a Youth Rally.

Solarium Offers Scenic View

The solarium serves as a haven for convalescing patients who are able to leave their rooms to seek the beauty and changing atmosphere found there. I that become the most popular spot in the hospital according to Miss Anne Baumgartner, superintendent of the hospital.

The picture formed by the ever-changing lake which can be seen from windows on three sides of the room is supplemented by the beauty of the room and its furnishings. Walls are done in a pale blue which is repeated in the wrought iron furniture covered with floral prints in pastel blue and a pastel pink. The blue theme is carried out in the navy flecked with white rubber tile which covers the floor. Soft white drapes frame the windows. At night modernistic lamps light the room.

A 21-inch color television in a blonde cabinet placed in the southwest corner of the room is a popular place during the afternoon and evening.

The room was furnished by Mrs. Charles K. Foster of Chicago, a summer resident at the Chicago club.

The solorium was completed recently at the cost of approximately $22,000. It was financed by a $12,600 grant from the Ford Foundation and contributions by summer residents.

The room can be used as a hospital ward in the event of an emergency.

The work was done by the Ernest Priebe Construction Co., of Petoskey under the direction of the Charlevoix hospital board of directors headed by Fred W. Willis.

Reported Perch Catches Indicate Run Near

Smelt Dipping Time

Smelt spawning runs are a sure sign of spring in Michigan as thousands of persons line streams to dip these tasty little fish each year. Dip nets, not more than five feet in circumference, may be used to take smelt from designated Michigan streams during the March 1-May 31 season. A list of these streams can be obtained from Conservation Department district offices.

A batch of eggs brought from Maine some 46 years ago are paying dividends today for Michigan fishermen.

The eggs — obtained by the old state Fish Commission from Green Lake, Maine in 1912 — were hatched and the young fish were released in Crystal Lake. This planting is believed to be the source of smelt now found in most of the Great Lakes.

Actually, smelt originally were introduced in the St. Mary's River in 1906, but the Crystal Lake planting was the most successful and is credited with the spread of these little silver fish.

Today, thousands of Michigan residents and tourists get plenty of sport and good eating when smelt make spawning runs from the Great Lakes up streams thruout the state.

During the spawning season, which usually hits its peak during April, smelt dippers line streams with dip nets, buckets, washtubs and other implements to harvest millions of smelt.

Hand nets, not more than five feet in circumference, may be used to take smelt in designated waters from March 1 to May 31. Lists of these waters are available from the Conservation Department's Lansing offices, or at field district headquqarters.

The best locations for successful smelt dipping normally are in streams flowing into the northern third of Lake Michigan, including Green Bay. Other good spots include streams and cuts draining into Saginaw Bay.

Avid smelt fishermen claim this fish is tops in tasty eating, and the abundance of the species provides for many a fish fry. Incidentally, the name "smelt" has nothing to do with odor; it's the English form of an older Anglo-Saxon word, "smelt," which means smooth or shining.

Missionary From Lyberia to Speak At Sunday Service

The Rev. James Barnard of Olivet will present "The Challenge of Liberia" at the Assembly of God church at 11 a. m. Sunday, according to Rev. T. B. Thodeson, pastor of the church.

A native of Alpena, the Rev. Barnard is a graduate of the Central Bible Institute in Springfield, Mo. He and his wife were appointed recently to serve as missionaries in Liberia and are now itinerating among the churches to raise their support.

The Assembly of God in Liberia are becoming indigenous but still desire the help of missionaries in the training of their nationals in church organization and in the translation of church literature into the tribal dialects.

This feature of the Liberian work is considered of greatest importance, according to the Rev. Thodeson who feels that the Rev. Barnard is well prepared for the work.

Though the church is sponsoring a series of evangelistic meeting hy the Rev. James Weaver, the Rev. Barnard's presentation is of such importance that room was made for it to be given.

H S Band Wins Top Rating At State Festival

The Charlevoix high school band directed by C. A. Odmark won its third consecutive first division rating in Class C competition during the annual State Band and Orchestra festival in Ann Arbor Saturday.

This is the seventh time in 12 years that the Charlevoix band has won the coveted I rating. Previous winners were the bands of 1950, '51, '52, '54, '55 and '56.

A first division rating denotes the "best conceivable performance, worthy of distinction of being recognized as a first place winner."

Judging the band were Dr. William Revelli and Dr. Allan Britton of the University of Michigan, Roy M. Miller, Professor emeritus of Music at Wayne State University and William D. Fitch, Professor of Music, Eastern Michigan College of Education.

Their comments were very helpful, while technical in most respects, and each had fine words for the musicianship of the local group. Dr. Revelli said the strong points of the band were "musicianship, taste, style of conductor and sensitivity of the band." Dr. Miller said "Strong points of the band are balance, rhythmic values and musicianship" Dr. Britton wrote that "I would like to congratulate the band and its conductor on a generally fine performance. This is a splendid band which has learned to play with good musical feeling."

The 58-piece band returned home early Sunday morning, tired but happy over their success in state competition. They had left here Friday morning for southern Michigan. After spending Friday night at the Hotel Porter in Lansing, the group went to Ann Arbor Saturday for their appearance at the new Ann Arbor high school. They started on the return trip at 4:20 p.m., stopping enroute in Mt. Pleasant for a chicken dinner served by the Lutheran Guild. They arrived at 12:40 a.m.

A splash of red tulips in the Floyd Supp yard on Michigan, a bed of grape hyacinths in the Puffpaff yard on Upright and beds of bright yellow daffodils all over the place . . . the willows across Round lake look like gold and everywhere you notice signs of spring.

One of the nicest signs of the season is the blooming of the Beautiful but shy arbutus . . . We're happy to say that we have a lovely bouquet of the delicate pink and white flowers with the shiny green leaves . . . thanks to the Sims Bakers who must have a secret bed of the flowers because they always seem to have them when no one else can find even one.

And then there's baseball . . . which everyone has been watching like mad . . . Our Tigers sure got off to a terrific start . . . which everyone hopes they can live up to . . . Everyone's optimistic . . . so we hope they can keep up the wins coming.

A letter this week from the Pat Ramseys in Portland, Ore., telling us that Elmer Ostrum who is spending some time with them received a total of 33 cards on the occasion of his 78th birthday anniversary . . . We carried a little squib on it recently and the note brought loads of response, as you can see . . . We hope Mr. O. has a whale of a time in the west . . . and that we'll soon be passing the time of day with him around town.

Notice all those beautiful tans that are appearing around town . . . worn bv those lucky people who spent the winter in warmer climes . . . A sure sign that our travelers are returning to their homes here . . . We're sure happy to see them . . . even if we turn a little green with envy . . . But just give us natives a little time and weather and we'll lose this pale face look.

Every year we say this and every year we mean it more and more . . . the Father and Daughter banquet sponsored annually by the Girl Scout council is just about the nicest event all year long . . . It's the time when proud daughters go out with their equally proud dads . . . for an evening together . . . When a family boasts two or three daughters, fathers cannot be divided so these girls take on 'borrowed' dads who thoroughly enjoy their roles . . . We know several fellows around town who've been going to the dinner for several years who wouldn't miss it for the world . . . And neither would we.

One of the busiest places in town these days is the buoy depot located on the channel between Round lake and Lake Charlevoix . . . where the tender Sundew has been picking up the massive buoys and other aids to navigation, as they're called . . . The ease with which they handle those things that weigh tons never ceases to amaze us . . . and there's nothing we like better than to watch the operation . . . especially on bright sunny day like we had last week . . . You can see the bright orange one from Bridge st. but you can't realize their size until you meet up with one . . . Like ice bergs, the major portion of them are under water once they're placed in the lake . . . with just the upper framework showing . . . It's quite an operation that we wouldn't mind seeing all the way through some time.

An inch of topsoil takes three to 10 centuries to build, but it can be washed away in a single storm. Vegetation prevents erosion and retards runoff.

Dear Sir:

Thanks to you for the timely news in the April 17th issue of the Charlevoix Courier of the action taken by the Board of Supervisors at their last meeting at which time the Board voted themselves a $5.00 per diem increase in pay. This is a 50% raise. At this time, too, I believe the voters and taxpayers will be interested in knowing how the supervisors voted on this particular item of business.

We note the following supervisors voted against the pay increase: J. Topolinski, Boyne Valley; Wm. M. Sanderson, Eveline; Don Kondzlela, Melrose; T. R. Miller, Charlevoix; Jesse Smith, Charlevoix; Clyde Warner, Norwood; and Robert E. Barnett, East Jordan. Ben Gardner, Boyne City, did not vote.

Sincerely,
A concerned Citizen

Wash 'n Wear

It's a "New Phrase" world in regard to fabrics. New and familiar fibers, blends, and finishes make a whole new way of easy living. "This washes Like a Dream". "This Requires No Ironing", "This Drips Dry", "The Pleats Are Permanent". Easy care is what we all want in fabrics—acetate. Acrilan, Arnel Dacron, Nylon, Orlon and their appropriate blends.

1. A fabris is properly called "Wash 'n Wear" if it is treated with resin for easy ironing.

2. A "Deep-Dry" fabric is one that will dry quickly and regain its original shape without ironing.

3 A Dacron-cotton blend to be completely "Wash 'n Wear" must be 65% Dacron and 35% cotton.

4. Wrinkl-Shed, Everglaze Minicare, Saylerized Freshtex are processes of "Wash 'n Wear" treatment.

5. To make pleats permanent, heat, chemicals and extreme pressure are used.

Feeds Penicillin As Preventative For Pasture Bloat

If you have trouble with bloat among your dairy cows, you may want to consider feeding them penicillin during the pasture season.

Roy Emery, dairy researcher at Michigan State University, first reported late last summer that penicillin offered promise as a bloat preventative. He recently made a more complete report that has helpful information since the bloat season is just ahead.

Emery found that pasture bloat could be reduced by about two thirds by feeding 100 milligrams of procaine penicillin per cow per day, either in the grain or in salt on a free-choice basis.

Emery's study included 739 cows on 20 farms. Herds in the study seemed to be either 'bloaty' or 'non-bloaty.' That is, they were either quite a bit above average or quite a bit below average.

The researcher says that farms with a bloat inident higher than the average about 10 per cent should find that feeding penicillin will pay off.

Emery olso noted that the penicillin loses its effectiveness as farmers continue to feed it. As a result, he recommends it only when the need is present. A particulary important time to feed it would be when cows are turned on a dangerous pasture. When the cows are put on a less dangerous pasture, the penicillin should be withdrawn.

Chances for bloat are usually greatest on pastures with an abundant growth and high precentage of legumes. Cows are particularly prone to bloat when changed to a new and better pasture.

It may also be helpful in stretching the effectivenesss of penicillin to begin feeding it at the rate of 50 milligrams per cow per day and gradually increase the amount of 100 milligrams as the feeding period goes along.

In his work, Emery fed the penicillin on top of the grain mixture in a soybean oil meal carrier containing 850 milligrams of penicillin per pound. The salt mixture was a trace mineralized product containing 3 grams of penicillin per pound.

Urge Quick Spray On Red Pine Trees

This in a warning from the entomology department of Michigan State University for the European pine shoot moth. The spray to control this should be applied by this Friday, April 25.

The material is one gallon of 25% D. T. D. emulsion to 100 gallons of water. This is the insect that is detroying our red pine.

MSU Specialist To Meet With Pig Raisers

There will be a meeting of all folks interested in a feeder pig program this Friday evening, April 25, at 8:30 p. m. The meeting will be held in the High School Cafeteria at Charlevoix.

A number of folks in Charlevoix county have been asking questions this past winter relative to the feeder pig program. Because of this interest Ed Miller, extension specialist in animal husbandry at Michigan State University, will be with us on that date. There will also be several farmers from Emmet county who are interested in the feeder pig program present also.

Anyone who is interested in the production of feeder pigs is urged by Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, to attend this meeting. Many feeder pig buyers in southern Michigan would like to obtain feeder pigs in areas such as this where good quality diseased-free animals can be raised.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Shades of Toni Sawyer

Everybody knew Community Hall couldn't go another season without a paint job. So Judge Cunningham asked for volunteers—and about a dozen people raised their hands.

Trouble was most of the volunteers never got around to working. Weeks went by. Last Thursday the Judge got an idea.

He painted the name of each delinquent volunteer—in big letters—across the part of the building the man had agreed to paint. That did it—we'll have a fresh-painted Hall by the weekend!

From where I sit, sometimes we have to be reminded of our obligations. Like every so often, I try and point out how important "neighborly respect" is in a community. You may prefer soda pop. I like an occasional cold glass of beer. We ought to respect each other's choice. Excuse me now, I've got to go help paint Community Hall.

Political signs of 1958 point toward the voter as the man of the year.

Both major parties are busy trying to put down rebellions. A change af philosophy might be in the making for Republicans, but Democrats envision their brightest hour in Michigan.

The developments made the voter a king whose decision next Nov. 4 will decide the kind of government the state will have for at least two more years.

Gov. Williams, at the crest of a decade of power, is seeking his sixth consecutive term.

Republicans have two candidates ready for the primary with another said to be ready in the wings.

Democrats were the first to run into trouble.

A group of rebels headed by former Congressman Frank E. Hook, of Iron River, charged that Williams and labor bosses are "leading the state down the road to socialism".

They argue the loyal, oldtime Democrat is being read out of the party, with Williams and "the crew-cuts" of a latter-day liberal wing taking command and running the show.

State Chairman Neil Staebler immediately denounced the rebels.

Republicans hope the group will help them. It has already entered a slate in the Democratic primary for the first time since Williams became the party choice for governor in 1948. The campaign can show how much opposition there is to the governor within his party.

Williams will be going into the election with Senator John B. Swainson (D-Detroit) as his running mate. Democrats are already guessing whether they will win by 300,000 or 600,000 votes.

Dissention among Republicans is on a more idealistic plane.

The active 14th district organization in Detroit has repudiated "modern Republicanism," chargingit is a "me-too" approach doomed to defeat from the better organized Democrats.

They call for a return to traditional conservative Republicanism. GOP leaders are fearful that the split-off will cause trouble when all are asked to back the candidate after the primary.

Considerable support for the conservative approach has developed among some legislators, who are pressuring Senator Edward Hutchinson (R-Fennville) to carry their banner.

Tha most likely Republican candidate is Paul D. Bagwell, professor of communications skills at Michigan State University, who has a leave of absence without pay.

His salary runs to $1,400 a month at the university.

Another candidata is little-known Richard I. Moore, a Wayne automobile saleman. His present political obscurity is reminiscent of 1948 when the politicians asked, "Who's Williams/"

Baywell is 44, three years younger than Williams, and is nationally known as an educator and as once national president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

He sufered a football injury 26 years ago and the complications of polio made him permanently disabled. He walks with a cane.

Bagwell, who led the Republican ticket two years ago as candidate for auditor gendral, has led March of Dimes campaigns and other civic under takings in Michigan.

Superimposed over the bickerings in each party and the formal appearance of candidates is the state of the state's finances and those of its people.

Michigan's state treasury is headed for a deficit that could climb to $65,000,000 next year. More than 415,000 workers are jobless. More government services are needed for an expanding population.

The search for answers to the problems has created still another camgaign issue.

Williams is seeking a bigger budget and more taxes, pinpointed on corporations and banks.

Republicans are seeking to cut spending in state government and to delay new taxes until they finish a sweeping study of the state's revenue sources next year.

• Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Young had as their weekend guests the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Erick Young of Iron River.

Local Student Named Candidate For Scholarship

Evart 'Ted' Mason and his instructor, Robert Cook, of the Charlevoix high school were in Kalamazoo Saturday to attend the sixth annual Atlas Press Co. industrial arts competition at Western Michigan University.

They were guests of the company at a luncheon and Saturday evening attended the annual industrial arts banquet.

Twelve high school seniors and their instructors were invited to appear before an examining board. The winner will receive the $500 scholarship award.

Fire Fighters Ready

Conservation Department crews get fire fighting equipment into condition for distribution to "keymen." 1,000 private citizens throughout the state who aid the Department in discovering and controlling forest and grassland fires. This group, coupled with the Department's full-time force of fire fighters and mechanized equipment, keeps fire losses to a minimum.

A vast organization involving thousands of persons plus mechanized equipment and communications systems - protects Michigan forests, property and lives from destruction by fire.

This fire-fighting organization centers around the Conservation Department's fire control section but also includes many private citizens.

Among the most important persons in the organization are some 1,000 "keymen" throughout the state. These keymen are private citizens who voluntarily play a significant role in controlling fire losses by spotting, reporting and helping to suppress fires.

Each of the keymen is supplied by the Department with hand equipment for fire-fighting. Alertness of this force, plus the availability of hand tools, often means a small blaze is extinguished before it can spread and become a costly and dangerous forest fire.

Prevention and control measures have helped Michigan to establish an enviable record in reducing fire damage. About 25 years ago, the average forest fire in the state devastated approximately 44 acres. Today the average damage per fire has dropped to less than five acres.

Speed, of course, is an important item in controlling fires because quick suppression saves money, property, valuable natural resources and perhaps lives.

Fire control experts point out that the public can do its share in preventing needless damage by observing safety measures when using the outdoors and by promptly reporting any outdoor fires sighted.

Anglers Prepare For Opening of Trout Season

An estimated 235,000 trout fishermen are checking equipment and regulations as the April 26 opening day of Michigan'n 1958 trout fishing season nears.

Mild weather during recent weeks holds promise for a successful opener, particularly if warm rains make an appearance during the week preceding the season. Streams generally have been low and cold this spring, and some precipitation probably would boost catches when the season gets underway.

The beginning of trout season also opens all trout waters in the state to fishing for other species, except bass.

In addition to the $2 resident fishing license, Michigan trout anglers also must purchase a $2 trout stamp. Other regulations are listed in the "1958 Guide to Michigan Fish Laws," available from license dealers or Conservation Department offices.

Traveling Walleye Gets Their Transfer

Conservation Department fish workers are on the lookout for a Walleye bearing the tag number 66141, wondering where the fish will show up next.

This wandering Walleye originally was tagged in August, 1956 during a transfer of fish from Lake Michigan to Hamlin Lake in Mason county. In 1957, this Walleye was netted in the Muskegon River during the Newaygo transfer and was placed in the Hardy impoundment.

This year the fish again showed up in the Muskegon River below the Newaygo dam, was netted and released upstream in the Rogers impoundment. There's no telling where its travels will take No. 66141 next.

Today Proclaimed National Law Day by President

Thursday, May 1, has been proclaimed Law Day by President Eisenhower in order to call attention to the fact that the government of the United States is a government of laws rather than of men.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams has joined with President Eisenhower in asking that the day be observed throught the state. Courts across the land will pause briefly at 11 a. m. today (Thursday) and read the following entitled "A Prayer for Law Day U. S. A."

"We think Almight God for this America of ours, the land of opportunity, freedom and equality before the law, for its government of laws, instead of men, for the privileges and duties of citizenship which it grants and imposes upon us.

We deplore the sinister influences, from within and without, which seek to destory her and pledge ourselves to oppose the same with all the strength and vigor which we possess.

We pray Thee to grant us leaders who will invoke, be given and avail themselves of Thy aid and guidance in these troublous and unsettled times and who will keep us strong and free as a nation.

We pray for peace in the world and ask Thy help in attaining it Amen".

V.F.W. Auxiliary Observes National Teachers Day

The second annual observance of National Teachers Day will be held Sunday, May 4, under the sponsorship of the National V. F. W. Auxiliary, according to Mrs. Calvin Metz, president of the local Auxiliary Post No. 1153.

The national organization is the sponsor of the idea for a National Teachers Day which is observed annually on the birthdate of Horace Mann, founder of the first public school in the United States.

"We are increasingly aware of the role our schools play in the life of the community. Today, with the enrollment in the nation's schools climbing annually we are aware as well how vital a role the school teachers play in the lives of our children in giving them a foundation on which a successful, happy, well-adjusted, secure future can be built," Mrs. Metz said.

In leading the nation in the observance of Teachers Day the V. F. W. Auxiliary hopes to establish this as a time to bring to the attention of the people due recognition of all teachers of the United States as a group of citizens who are devoting their unselfish efforts in molding the character of the youth of this country through education and moral guidance.

Democrats Plan Campaign Dinner

Plans for a Democratic campaign kick-off dinner have been announced by Mrs. Theodore Tunison, chairman of the Charlevoix county Democratic committee.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Marlin

Charlevoix's band has done it again ... racked up a first division rating in Class C competition throughout the state ... one other item of interest is the fact that two of the three first division ratings given this year went to bands from Charlevoix county . . Boyne City was the other area band to win a top rating . . . The third given in the entire state went to Portland. So northern Michigan can well be proud of its musical groups . . . On Saturday Max Smith, whom everyone knows, took his Petoskey band to southern Michigan and captured a first division for the first time . . . Elk Rapids came up with one in Class D which speaks might well for music in northern Michigan . . . Don't you think?

This you won't believe but we think it's just about the darndest thing we've ever heard . . . and leave it to the ingenious Irish to think it up . . . Beaver Island was jam-packed with perch fishermen over the weekend . . . In fact, so many came that they ran out of boats . . . Now it's a crime to have someone come to fish and then find themseleves without transportation to the fishing grounds . . . But the problem was soon solved when someone came up with the idea of anchoring the Emerald Isle in the bay and fishing from its decks . . . The idea turned out to be an excellent one with one of the island boats running a ferry service to and from the ferry . . . Make sense . . . Perhaps not in print but in reality it did . . . Archie LaFreniere who told us about it said that the island had just about its biggest weekend of the year . . . which is good news to everyone interested in the Emerald Isle . . . and we mean Beaver Island.

There was a grand opening down St. Petersburg, Fla. way recently of local interest . . . The owner of the beautiful new 5 and 10 store located in a shopping center on U.S. 19 is a former local resident, Chuck Pontius, who made his first sale to another Charlevoixan, Vern Mathews, who happened to drop in after having worked on the construction of the building . . . To make it official Mrs. Pontius even sent a picture of the transaction and sure enuff . . . there they were big as life and good to see . . . When you've seen people around as much and as long as the Pontiuses were here you sure miss'em . . . We sure hope their decision to move to warmer climes because of their daughter's health proves successful.

Know any one who caught any brook trout over the weekend? . . . The weather was so cold we don't know who would brave the elements . . . A couple youngsters we know caught a few and were proud as punch . . . They told us about something that burned us up and we think it will you too . . . As you know, there's a limit on the number of trout you can take in a day . . . Two fishermen they didn't know not only filled their licenses but took home more than a few extra . . . We were always under the impression that laws were made to live by and not to break . . . These two people were certainly setting a fine example for a group of youngsters, don't you think? And then people wonder why there aren't trout in the streams.

It's practically the first of May and what do we see in place of the traditional May flowers? . . . Snowflakes . . . that's right . . . there were flurries of them all day . . . We'd sure appreciate if Mother Nature would get things back on schedule . . . sure a white Christmas and a green spring instead of the other way round . . . It would be less confusing for everyone . . . Something good did come out of all this changeable weather though . . . we had a good rainstorm last Trursday which wetted things down a little . . . after weeks when everything was tinder dry . . . But we can't have mushrooms without warm weather . . . let alone flowers and gardens and leaves and what have you.

Charlevoix's band will be taking a trip come Wednesday . . . to Boyne City where they'll play in the massed band festival . . . Once upon a time . . and it wasn't too long ago . . . there was one festival and about 10 or 12 bands took part . . . Then it became necessary to have two because no school was equipped to handle the number of entries . . . For two years now it's been necessary to have three . . . with at least 10 bands attending each one . . . which certainly speaks well for the music in our schools . . . We think it's terrific and we know we'll be mighty proud off our band as they step it off down the streets of Boyne City Wednesday . . . We're just sorry it isn't possible for our reserve band to take part. . . . but there's the matter of instruments and music which makes it quite impossible.

And if I may be personal for one moment I'd like to mention the tragedy that struck my family last week when we, my six brothers, four sisters and I lost our mother . . . We have always felt that our family was rather unique in that for so large a family we were very close . . . held together by this wonderful person who was so very dear to us. In her own quiet way she influenced our lives and took care of us despite the fact that we are now all adults . . . And I think she did a pretty good job . . . As we always told her . . . none of us ended up in jail Her interests were as varied as the personalities of her children. Her capacity for love was boundless and she loved each of us as well as her 34 grandchildren and one great-grandchild, in a way that I find hard to describe . . . As one of my sisters-in-law said . . . she had a faculty for making each of us in-laws feel that we were a perfect choice for her son or daughter and that our children were the most important in the world . . . Not an easy job for someone with so many in-laws . . . Everyone at some time suffers this same loss . . . we are grateful that we didn't suffer it 'til now . . . In behalf of my entire family I would like to thank the many, many people who in so many ways remembered us and thus softened the shock a little. We shall be ever grateful to all of you.

WE NEED HELP AT BOTH CAMPS:

Some of the troopleaders find it impossible to go to camp this year. Some of the leaders have contacted mothers of their troop members and have had no response. Under Girl Scout regulations we need one adult for each six Brownies and one adult for each eight Intermediate and Senior Scouts who go to camp.

The Girl Scout Council has decided that troops who do not meet this minimum requirement for adult help will not be able to go to camp this year. The Council has recommended that this open letter be put in the Courier two weeks, asking that any one over 18 who is interested in helping at either camp please to so, the council would like to see that all girls who want to go to camp are able to go.

Brownie Day Camp will be Monday through Thursday, June 9 to 12, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. and Friday, June from 2 p. m. to about 7 p. m.

Troop Camp for Intermediate and Senior Scouts will be at Camp Sea-Gull, from Sunday afternoon, June 8, to Friday afternoon, June 13. We need adults who can come to camp for the entire period, staying nights and days. We can also use any who can come days only or nights only.

Any one wishing to help out the girls either call Mrs. Robert O. Pearl, 2443 or get in touch with the Troop Leader of the troop you want to help.

Thank you,
Edythe C. Pearl, Camping Chairman

Viotor Hugo wrote in 1843 that he knew of "no spot more charming and magnificent than Biarritz," the French coastal town near the Spanish border. He voiced a fear— "that it may become fashionable"—which was soon realized. Empress Eugenie "discovered" Biarritz and the rich and famous have been flocking there ever since.

Senator Andrews Is Candidate For Re-election

Senator Frank Andrews, Republican. Hillman, representing the 29th Senatorial District, has announced that he will be a candidte to succeed himself to the office. The 29th district is composed of the counties of Alpena, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Montmorency, Otsego and Presque Isle.

Andrews is serving his fifth term in the senate. He has been elected by his colleages to the high office of president pro tem. He is the only member of the Senate who is either chairman or vice chairman of every standing committee of which he is a member.

The standing committees on which he serves are municipalitics as chairman, state affairs as vice chairman, highways as vice chairman and education as vice chairman. He also has been named to serve on several interim committees.

Andrews has always been an ardent supporter of measures to retain authority at the local levels of government and to avoid the trend toward state and federal controls. He has a keen interest in good schools and good roads as part of good government. He has been a leader for several years in the fight to reduce the number of state agencies to avoid overlapping and duplication of effort to give to Michigan a more efficient and economical government.

They don't go as far as they used to...and neither does property insurance based on 1945 values!

A house put up in 1945 could cost almost twice the amount to build or buy today! That's why property insurance that was adequate several years ago doesn't go nearly far enough now. Suppose fire struck your home? Would your insurance cover the full value of house and household contents . . . at today's prices? If not, call us for a property insurance checkup.

Muffed his chance!

Income tax time has come and gone — and gone is his chance to benefit from all the deductions to which he was entitled. That's because he hadn't a complete file of receipts, to prove his claims.

He could kick himself — but instead he's going to act constructively: He's going to open a checking account, and pay all his bills by check from now on. Cancelled checks, you know, are automatic receipts.

Vicksburg President Visits Charlevoix In Mayor Exchange

Charlevoix was host Monday to Village President Gordon C. Daniels and Mrs. Daniels of Vicksburg during the annual observance of Mayor's Exchange Day of Michigan Week.

Mayor Pro Tem Harry Gebeau and Mrs. Gebeau and their committee greeted Mr. and Mrs. Daniels on their arrival at the airport and escorted them on a tour of local industries, the city hall and other city installations, the new county building, the Charlevoix hospital and other points of interest during their stay here.

At noon they were guests at a luncheon at Gray Gables Inn where they were joined by other city officials and members of the city council. Mr. Gebeau presented Mr. and Mrs. Daniels with a gift from the city, maple syrup made in Charlevoix county. Mr. and Mrs. Gebeau then presented them with a copy of "Child of the Sea", Elizabeth Williams account of her early years when she lived among the Mormons on Beaver Island.

After a tour of the school the couple departed via private plane for their home in Vicksburg.

While Mr. and Mrs. Daniels were being entertained here, Mayor James Hiller and City Superintendent Hal M. Hills were guest of the village of Vicksburg where they were taken on a tour of the community's major industry, the Lee Paper Co., the village's new sewage disposal plant, city hospital where they had lunch and were presented with stationary made at the local paper company. The visit was concluded with a tour of the community's new consolidated elementary and high schools which were opened only recently. Though the community has a population of only 2,212, it boasts a Class B high school.

Thomas Weeks, a member of the village council and Jess Barker chief of police accompanied them on the tour. Other members of the city government joined them for lunch.

Mayor Hiller and Mr. Hill then made a business trip to Detroit before returning home Tuesday.

Ramblers Edge Charlevoix to Win Track Meet

The Boyne City Ramblers edged the Charlevoix Rayders by a one-point margin, 66½ to 65½. Last week to capture their first Northern Michigan Class C Conference track and field title in the 22 year history of the event.

The event was held at the Petoskey track where the defending champions, the Rayders coached by S. E. 'Irish' Coleman, found them selves with a two-point lead with one event, the 880-yd. relay, remaining to be run. The Ramblers won the meet after taking this event as Charlevoix finished in fifth behind Gaylord, Mancelona and Grayling.

The Charlevoix team was weakened by the illness of Ron Anderson and Bob Mol who barely placed in events in which they usually excel and who were unable to participate in others.

In the meet Gaylord finished in third place with 25 points;Garyling in fourth with 12½; Mancelona in fifth with 12; East Jordan in sixth with 11½ and Pellston with four points. Harbor Springs also participated but did not place.

Despite the fact that the meet was run off in weather that saw the temperatures dip into the 20's, two new records were set in track events and a third tied.

Carl Charon, outstanding Boyne City athlete, broke a broad jump record that had stood since 1936 with a jump of 21 ft. 3 in. The old record of 20 ft. 10 in. was set by Bill Stanek at the first league meet.

Big Steve Williams, also of Boyne City, snapped a record of 5 ft. 10 in. set by Richard 'Big' Bergmann of Charlevoix in 1938 by jumping 6 ft. 2 in.

Williams then went on to tie the record of 16 seconds for the high hurdles set by Bill Bennett and tied by Ron Holowaski last year.

Is it or isn't it? Spring, we mean . . . What with a little of everything in the way of weather recently it's hard to know whether to keep on the ole red flannels or to haul out a spring jacket . . . Even the buds on the trees have called a halt after poppin' just so far . . . But we can just be a little patient we're sure spring will arrive . . . eventually.

All sorts of things happening these days . . . among them the junior play which sounds like great fun . . . It's about a couple of [illegible] . . . full-fledged one . . . [illegible] "Down to Earth" which is also the name of the play . . . to fulfill an assignment . . . But the fellow who causes all the difficulties is [illegible] who tries to accomplish [illegible] of [illegible] to earn [illegible] wing . . . The action which follows is hilarious to say [illegible] don't miss it.

London has nothing on northern Michigan Saturday . . . as you probably noticed . . . The old fog horn was blowing for the first time in weeks . . . The white stuff just rolled in off the lake giving everything an eerie look . . . and making us glad that we don't have too much of such weather.

Michigan week . . . a time when the [illegible] state flexes its muscles and sings its own praises for all to hear . . . Did you ever stop to think about Michigan . . . we [illegible] and the reasons why it's such a place to live . . . We can think of lots of reasons but living in Charlevoix as we do we'd probably list the water as one of its greatest assets . . . this same water which attracts so many industries, does so much for shipping . . . but we like the water mostly because of its various moods and there are a million or so . . . But regardless of our personal reasons we'll raise our glass in a toast to the greatest of the 48 with special mention to the community which dots its shore on the Lake Michigan side . . . only some 54 miles from that great bridge we've been hearing so much about . . . Of course you know we mean Charlevoix.

Even stop to think how this land looked to the first settlers. . . . Round lake like a jewel between the big lake and Lake Charlevoix . . . fed onl by slow moving streams overhung with old trees . . . and trees right down to the shoreline . . . where wild animals made their way to drink and where the Indians followed the ancient trails on moccasined feet . . . Just think about it some time . . . It's a beautiful picture . . . if you'll just let your imagination run rampant.

Just a reminder . . . that Sunday is the day dedicated to those special people known as mothers . . . Won't you drop her a letter or a card if you haven't written recently . . . or call her as a surprise . . . Or if she's nearby send her a corsage to woar to church on Sunday . . or drop in for a call . . . or to deliver a little remembrance . . . You know, it isn't the price tag that impresses her . . . it's the fact that you have remembered her on Mother's Day . . . And if you've been a little negligent, here's your chance to get back with it . . . If you don't you'll regret it all your life . . . So please, as a personal favor to us, if for no other reasn, won't you do something just a little extra special this year . . . for your mother.

Jay-walking was costly in the United States last year—2,600 were killed.

Turnabout a la Tony

Have you met Tony yet? He's from Europe—and rents the old Whalen farm.

Tony's a good worker and has that farm running pretty slick. Funny though—on days off—Tony hangs around the barbershop listening to the political discussions. But he never says a word.

Last Thursday, though, Tony was there and was speaking his mind. When I asked him about the sudden change, he smiled and showed a brand-new set of citizenship papers. "Now I talk up like an American should," he said.

From where I sit, every citizen has a right to speak his mind—on all subjects. For instance, I happen to feel that beer is just about the best refreshment beverage there is. Nobody has to agree with my choice—but there's no arguing my right to "sound off" about it.

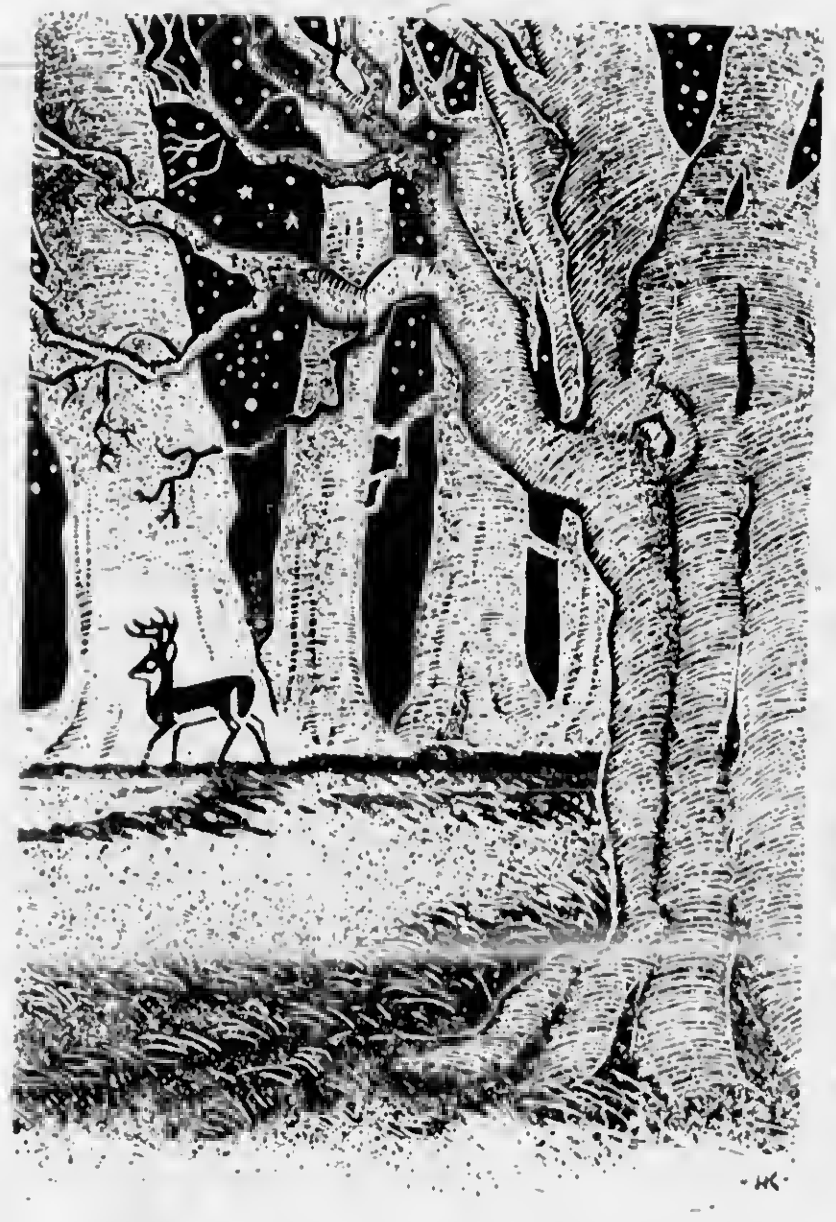
ADVENTURES IN UNDERSTANDING

Notes from A Northerner's Diary

By Harold E. Kohn

Beauty and Blemishes



May 5th 1958-

On an early spring evening I spent a while among the trees at Hidden Brook. Leaving behind my favorite white birches, I gave special attention to a grove of hardwoods, the gnarled and venerable [illegible] twisted with the [illegible] age, and senile beeches with swollen joints, gray skin. These ancient trees stand [illegible] to each other to whisper [illegible] breezy, wind-gossip about their animal neighbors, yet [illegible] apart to maintain [illegible] independence of [illegible].

In the quiet of this woodland I was aware once more that Nature need not be perfect to be beautiful or to accomplish her work. These trees bear all the marks of their dotage, broken limbs, hollows and holes here and there, bacteria and virus infections. Their troubles are not enough to destroy the health of the trees completely or to deface their beauty entirely. But the defects are there, reminders that even Nature is imperfect in her accomplishments.

Elsewhere at Hidden Brook other flaws appear. Here a marauding porcupine has girded a tamarack, killing the tree near the crown. Over there the deer have browsed some seedling maples too closely. Now they will never grow to maturity. The grasses here, as elsewhere across North America, are vulnerable to the attack of various grass diseases, one hundred and twenty-five species of rust afflicting nearly four hundred species of grasses in the United States. Moles make humps in the sod. Insects attack the leaves of spring flowers. Everywhere the discerning eye looks closely enough there is some blemish, some imperfection.

Still, all in all, the total impression these acres make upon the observer is one of unutterable beauty and total sucess—loveliness of color and form, of light and shade, and prosperity of tree, shub and flower, health of bird and beast and fish. Nature need not be prefect to be beautiful successful and useful.

One of the greatest deterrents of happiness and usefulness is a fanatical perfectionism. When person cannot accept or enjoy anything short of perfection he [illegible] himself to wretchedness and condemns those near him by his disapproval and carping criticism.

One would think that the perfectionists, with their high ideals, would be God's cause people and the cream of any community, but they are not. As a rule they [illegible] rather than blessing, wherever they are found.

[illegible] Frank W. for an example—[illegible] in the wool perfectionist. (Frank is not from [illegible], so there's no use in trying to identify him!) He has tried all sorts of jobs, but none exactly suit his talents, and he will not compromise by taking anything less than the ideal situation. Of course many kinds of employment have seemed ideal on the day he was hired, but before long some flaw appeared. Sometimes the employer was cranky. Again, raises did not come frequently enough. The hours were too long. People were unappreciative. Frank moved from job to job and from town to town until his wife tearfully complained that she never lived in a place she could call home for long.

The churches did not suit Frank either. Some did not "preach the true gospel." Others did not elect him to high office. One was not friendly enough. Another's revival meetings were not as fervid as Frank though they should be.

So Frank has moved constantly on, from town to town, from job to job, from church to church, forever seeking a perfection that he has never found. His life has been one disappointment after another, and he has dragged his wife and four children with him on his futile quest for a model town, a faultless job, and a perfect church.

Yet some people have remained inthe towns from which Frank fled and have improved them with their presence. Someone has taken every task Frank quit and has made a success of it. Someone has worshipped and worked in every church Frank has deserted and has helped make it God's instrument for good in the community.

The perfectionist is more to be pitied than blamed, for he is the tragic victim of his own unrealistic, rigid standards He panics when he makes a mistake and cudgels himself with self-recriminations whenever his morbid self-examination reveals the slightest defect. He drives relentlessly for faultlessness in his friends and withholds wholehearted affection and high regard from those who do not exactly conform to his own high standards (although the One Perfect Man loved, in an unrestrained manner, the rankest sinner). He possesses feelings of superiority over those who have not achieved his own high level of moral and intellectual attainment, but sometimes succeeds in hiding these feelings behind a polished mask of friendliness. Still, he is torn between his inner unfriendliness and his attempt to be outwardly gracious.

The perfectionist can never enjoy anything on earth completely because the things of earth come with built-in blemishes, and it is the flaws that catch his attention and hold his interest. (Most of us have a little of this trait, but in the perfectionist it amounts to a zeal.) Draw a solid black circle, one inch in diameter on a yard square sheet of white paper and hold it up to an audience and ask the people what they see. The almost unanimous reply will be "a black dot!" Yet the black dot occupies only a small fraction of the space on the paper. A more exact answer would be "a large sheet of white paper with a small black dot." But we are accustomed to seeing the small black dots rather than the large white sheets, the little fault in a neighbor's life rather than the enormous amount of good that is there, the little hardships of life rather than the abundant opportunitnes, small shadows rather than a flood of sunshine.

There is one kind of perfectionism that is wholesome rather than fault-finding, that is an incentive to better living rather than a barrier. The Master spoke of it when he said, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect." By that He did not mean that in this life we can be as flawless as God is. Where Matthew used the word "perfect" Luke translated it "merciful." We are to be as lacking in vengeffulness as God is Godlike in our readiness to forgive. While one cannot be utterly perfect in all things (which the perfectionist aims for and insists all his acquaintance achieve) we ean seek for Godlike excellence at one specific point—in magnanimity, being as big-hearted in dealing with children of earth as God is. And that is a big enough order to keep all of us busy, and striving, and humble.

You Can Help too

A Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce has been organized and a commendable start has been made in getting memberships to support the organization. Thus far most memberships have been obtained by solicitation with the result that only about 80 memberships have been signed.

As might be expected, there have been a few who "want to wait and see what the Chamber of Commerce is going to do." But the over-all response indicates that there are a lot of business people in this area who are convinced that we can do a better job of promoting for the future if all get together in one big concerted effort.

Those who are working on the membership solicitation have not only paid their membership, in addition they are sacrificing time from their respective businesses. Considering the worth of their time, the price comes high. The least the rest of us can do is take out a membership when a solicitor calls or, better yet, voluntarily hand our membership to Bob Lieberman, chairman of the finance committee.

We are going to be either boosters or freeriders and if we are to do a 100 per cent job we are going to need a 100 per cent membership.

Look over the membership decals conspicuously displayed by businesses supporting the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Meguzee Spring Meeting Ends Today With Elections

A business meeting and election of officers at the Masonic Temple this morning (Thursday) will conclude the two-day meeting of the Meguzee District Association which opened here Wednesday afternoon.

A luncheon at the temple dining room for officers will be held at noon.

Mrs. James Hiller, association president, presided at the business sessions during the spring meeting. Mayor Hiller welcomed the more than 300 members from 14 northern Michigan cities to Charlevoix.

The banquet at St. Mary's school hall was followed by a reception honoring committee woman, Mrs. Minnie DesJardins of East Jordan. During the evening session at the high school auditorium, Mrs. William Clark of Jonesville, Worthy Grand Matron, Thurman Laud of Saginaw, Worthy Grand Patron and other state officers exemplified the degrees of the order.

The Charlevoix chapter No. 72, OES, headed by Mrs. Melvin Plum, was host to the meeting.

Council Approves Advertising Fund

The Charlevoix city council, at its regular meeting Monday night, voted to back the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce to the extent of $1,085 in a campaign to publicize the city and its tourist attractions.

The council approved $300 for advertising in the June issue of Lakeland Boating magazine and $785 for erection of 10 attractive signs directing visitors to various points of interest in the city. The signs will be set in stone planters filled with flowers through the cooperation of the Garden club. All signs would be located on US 31 and would direct visitors to such places as bathing beaches, yacht basin, golf course, athletic field and other spots.

The bid of Edwards Florist in the amount of $155 to fill the city's 50 hanging flower baskets was accepted. The baskets will be filled and hung from lamp posts by Memorial Day.

Bills amounting to $19,397.56 were approved and ordered paid. The increase in the amount of the bills is the result of a new bookkeeping system whereby all city departments pay for utilities and services.

Driver Injured When Thrown From Tractor

The condition of Clarence Hunebauch, 35, Marion township resident who was seriously injured in an accident near Rogers City May 7 was improved, attendants at the hospital informed Mrs. Hunebauch Wednesday.

Mr. Hunebauch who was employed by the Hodgkiss and Douma Co. of Petoskey on a road construction job near Rogers City suffered a fractured pelvis, internal injuries and severe bruises of the left side of his body when a medium sized catapillar tractor knocked him to the ground and rolled onto him last Wednesday. Only the fact that there was soft earth into which he was thrown by the tractor saved his life, according to fellow workmen.

Mrs. Hunebauch said he was removed from the 'critical' list at the hospital Tuesday.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

CHARLEVOIX'S music department at the local school is presenting its spring concert tonight . . The event will feature more than 200 students . . . from the sixth through the 12th grade . . . in a program which promises to be one of the best ever . . We'd like you to take a look at those youngsters tonight because we think they're pretty representative of our school . . . You'll find that they're from everywhere in the school district and we defy you to sort them out and say this youngster has more than that one . . . There's no discrimination . . . and one looks just as nice as the next one . . And another thing we'd like you to note . . . there's no problem of juvenile delinquency there either . . . Of course we have very little of that here . . . we're very fortunate . . . but maybe such things as this and sports and other activities have a lot to do with cutting it to a minimum . . . Anyway, we're proud of this group . . . just as we've been proud of our football, basketball and track teams and anyone else who's done an outstanding job . . . just as we're proud of the class of 1958 who'll still be marching down the aisle in cap and gown to receive that long-awaited diploma.

OH YES, lots of luck to our little old track team that has two big meets coming up . . . the Class C regionals and the Petoskey relays . . . On Saturday and Tuesday . . . We think they have done a whale of a job this season . . . yes, they lost league title to Boyne City by one point . . . but gee, when you've had it for 20 of the 22 years the event's been held you can't feel too badly . . . It should be passed around a little bit, don't you think . . . Incidently, through all those sucessful years Irish Coleman has been the track coach . . . Quite a record to say the least.

DON'T THINK there's been anything in town in recent months that's attracted the attention of the entire public as much as the Michigan Week exhibit of art and literature arranged by Mrs. Kit Carson . . . Didn't know there were so many artists in town . . . people who dabble with oils or water colors just for fun . . . Everyone was lovely . . . in its own right

And then there was the display of books by local authors . . . quite an impressive group of writers who call Charlevoix their home . . . We think it's something we all should be very proud of . . . An orchid to Mrs. Carson for arranging it.

AND GUESS WHO made the effort to get down town to see it . . . None other than one of our most illustrious citizens who is an artist and a writer in her own right . . . Mrs. Rosa Nettleton who observed her 94th birthday anniversary earlier this year . . . One of the things that's kept Mrs. Nettleton young, to our way of thinking, is her keen interest in everything and everyone about her . . . This exhibit was no exception so off she went to see it despite the fact that she rarely gets out.

Spring may be a little late this year as far as most spring flowers are concerned but there's one bright spot one sees everywhere . . . much to the dispair of those who are fighting a losing battle with the darned things . . . We mean the hardy dandelion which seems to get its bright color from Old Sol himself . . . They may be pesky weeds but they're mighty purty after a dull dark winter.

Con Operators 'Lift' Cataracts To Fleece Victims

Revival of a con game in which gullible victims living in rural areas are supposedly "cured" of cataracts on their eyes has brought a warning from Michigan State Police.

The operators attempt to convince their victim that he has cataracts on his eyes and then offer to remove the cataracts for a state price. They will then apply a liquid to the victim's eyes and show him a film like substance which they claim to have lifted from the eyes.

Two such cases have been reported in Michigan recently and in one case the victim was fleeced of $1,750. Persons approached with similar proposition should report to law enforcement officials immedlately.

H. S. Musicians Play in Massed Band Festival

The Charlevoix high school band of 58 pieces augmented by 20 ninth grade members of the reserve band participated in the annual Massed Band Festival at Boyne City last Wednesday.

Guest conductor of the 381 piece massed band was Nilo Hovey, educational director of the H. & A. Selmer Co. of Elkhart, Ind. Mr. Hovey welded the huge group into what has been considered the best massed band heard in this area in several years. He was high in his praise of the ability and musicianship of the band. The students rewarded his efforts with a first rate performance.

Earlier in the day the Charlevoix band, directed by C. A. Odmark, played for criticism by Mr. Hovey who called the local group "a very, very fine band." The band parade through the business district of Boyne City was blessed with perfect weather and large crowds of people from throughout the area were on hand to watch the parade and to hear the massed band concert Wednesday evening.

Similar festivals with Mr. Hovey as adjudicator and guest conductor were held at Mackinaw City Tuesday and Grayling Thursday.

MUST TEST SEED BEFORE SELLING

Some growers are advertising for sale, seed of their own production without first having a purity and germination test made to determine if they are marketable as required by law.

This is the announcement from the Michigan Department of Agriculture's seed testing laboratory at Lansing, where John E. Garver is chief analyst.

Under these conditions of sale the farmer may be in violation of the Michigan seed law, according to Mr. Garver.

The Michigan seed law permits the farmer to sell his own unadvertised farm seed grown by himself to neighboring farmers without complying with tagging repuirements of the act.

The purpose of the law, explained Mr. Garver, is to assure persons the seed they are sowing is free of noxious weed seed and also that germination is sufficiently high as to indicate good vitality. In the case of seed purchased from a commercial outlet it is always desirable to read the seed tag on the container, he suggested.

Recently surveys were made by seed laboratories in some of the other midwestern states. It was found, according to Mr. Garver, that many farmers were planting seed of low vitality with a high percentage of weed seed. In these instances the seed was the growers' production or that pruchased from a neighbor.

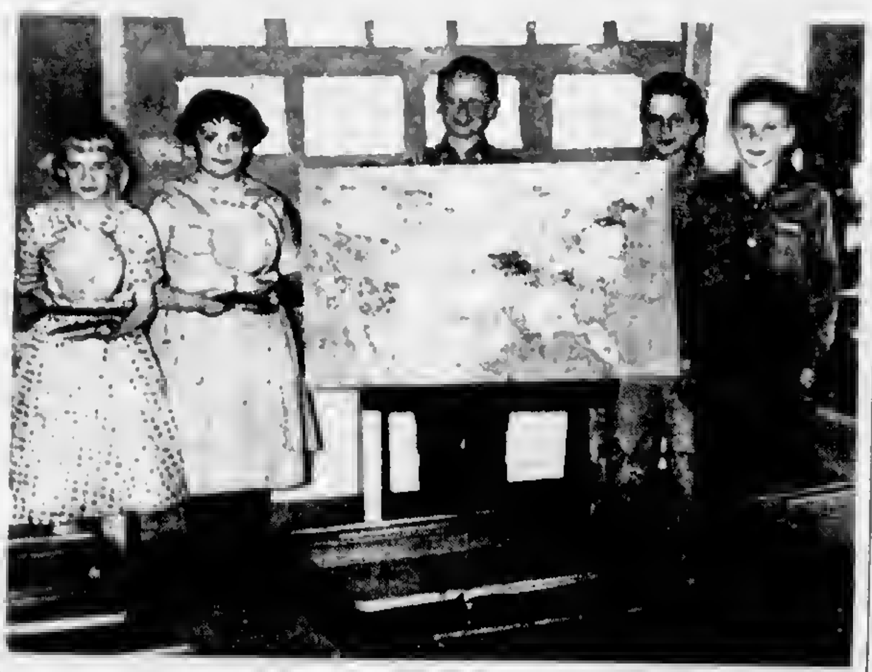
Learning By Doing



That fourth grade students may have a greater knowledge and appreciation of the topography of the United States as well as the world, Mrs. Gordon Moeller has taught her fourth grade students to make relief maps of the United States and globes of the world which also are done in relief.

Using a number of materials including plaster of Paris, tha students made both projects from beginning to end.

C D Organizing Class to Detect Radio-activity

The increasing importance of early detection and evaluation of radio-activity fall-out in the event of an enemy air attack has prompted the Civil Defense organiation of Charlevoix county to sponsor a second class for monitors and meter readers of radio-activity fall-out.

The class, which will be open to all persons interested in the detection and evaluation of radio-activity fall-out in northern Michigan, will be held at the Boyne City high school at 7:30 p.m. each Tuesday beginning May 27 and continuing for 10 weeks. The class can accomodate 25 to 30 students.

Anyone wishing to enroll or obtain more information regarding the course may call the instructor, Wallace Roeske, JU 2-7508 or contact local Civil Defense directors.

All northen Michigan cities and counties will need many meter reades and monitors with previous training in case of an attack.

Fisherman's Delight

Michigan's 36,000 miles of streams attract thousands of trout fishermen who claim this sport is tops in outdoor enjoyment. Trout engling continues to grow in popularity and more than 225,000 trout fishermen are expected to test their skills during the state's April 26-September 14 season this year.

[illegible] trout planting and [illegible] improvement programs are helping Michigan to maintain its position as one of the nation's top trout fishing states.

The exciting sport of trout angling has enjoyed a tremendous boom in popularity in recent years, adding about 10,000 new enthusiasts each year.

In 1951 Michigan had approximately 186,000 licensed trout fishermen; today the total is in the 225,000-240,000 range.

To meet the demands of these fishermen, the Michigan Conservation Department releases more than 2,000,000 hatchery-reared trout in public fishing waters annually. In 1957, plantings included 2,560,000 brook, brown and rainbow trout.

In addition, the Department's lake and stream improvement program handles the task of making fish habitat more suitable for natural reproduction. Work under this program includes stabilization of eroding stream banks, and installation of structures in streams to regulate water flow.

Some oldtimers recall the "good old days" and look with dismay at "artificial" trout fishing, but modern day conditions mean nature often needs an assist from science to meet demands on fish and wildlife resources.

Michigan's population has nearly doubled in 30 years and probably will continue this rapid increase. In addition, shorter work weeks and more leisure time mean added pressure on natural resources.

Meanwhile, trout waters in the state are faced with the advance of civilization and industry, and cannot be expected to produce more and more fish to keep ahead of the growing army of anglers.

The playful otter, although never plentiful, is one of the most interesting of Michigan's many wildlife species. At home in water or on dry land, otters spend most of their lives traveling among the streams and lakes of a considerable region. Because of their secretive habits, however, otters seldom are seen even by many persons who live in northern areas where these animals are most abundant.

Michigan's largest otter take was recorded this year when trappers bagged 883 of the valuable furbearers throughout the state.

The previous high mark was 663 otter taken during 1957 trapping seasons.

Otters are never plentiful, in comparison with beaver and other furbearers, but these creatures are among the most interesting of Michigan's many wildlife species.

Otters and beavers are aquatic mammals and are trapped during the same season, but the similarity ends there. Beavers live in colonies and evidence of their presence can be observed in the form of lodges, dams, canals and timber cuttings.

In contrast, otters live in carefully concealed holes along river banks and spend much of their time traveling over a wide area of lakes and streams. It has been estimated that one otter to eight square miles represents a maximum population, but one to 40 square miles would be a good average.

Along with its secretive habits, another characteristic is the animal's play instinct. Otters display a genuine love of fun and often spend time sliding down steep slopes or engaging in a wildlife game of "tag" with other otter.

Otters primarily are fish eaters, although their diet also includes crayfish, frogs and aquatic insects. Studies indicate the otter is not a serious competitor for trout fishermen, although the animal takes the species of fish most available. Rough, slow types of fish — such as carp and suckers — are more likely captured than the speedy, elusive trout.

Like beaver regulations, otter trapping limits are varied by the Conservation Department to allow maximum harvest without damage to breeding stock in any area.

Hookers Install Laundry Service

Hooker's Cleaners located at 207 W. Garfield ave. has initiated a complete laundramat service, according to Clifton Simpson, manager of the local establishment.

New equipment including automatic washers, extractors and driers have been installed at the plant to make this service possible, Mr. Simpson said.

Patrons may do their own laundry or leave at the laundramat to be done, may use only the washers or driers themselves or bring their laundry to be either washed or dried by plant operators.

In announcing the service Mr. Simpson said that Hooker's was prepared to offer any laundry service the public wishes.

Observe Law Day With Program

Law Day May 1 was observed here Thursday with a special program at the county building attended by the Charlevoix high school government class and others.

Fenton R. Bulow, county clerk, read the President's Proclamation proclaiming May 1 Law Day U. S. A.

Probate Judge William T. Downs spoke on the history of law in this country and outlined what it means to live in a country ruled by law rather than men. He concluded the program with the reading of the President's Prayer for Law Day.

Take Applications For Camp Dagget

Applications for the summer session of Camp Daggett are now available, accordin to Robert Woodruff, camp director, Petoskey.

Dates were announced for two two-week and one one-week sessions for both boys and girls, ages eight through 14.

Boys sessions will be from June 16 through July 19; Girls sessions will be July 21 through August 23.

The Camp Daggett Board approved holding to the same rate schedule as last year with those from Emmet County and Charlevoix at $15.50 for the one week period and $33.50 for the two-week period which includes a full weekend, according to Dr. Robert Cooke, president of the board. This fee includes insurance for each camper.

Twelve Counsellors for each session will be provided from Central Michigan College of Education with physical-education major under contract.

1957-58 improvements for the camp include a new dock, awning for the cabins, showers, new road and parking area, rifle range and four new canoes together with four new cabins completed last fall.

Bob Woodruff suggests that those in the area get their application in soon for the session they desire as the camp is serving a larger area now. He would like former campers to be accomodated as in the past but has to take applications as they come in.

For Registration blanks write to: Director Bob Woodruff, Box 22, Petoskey, Mich.

To Plat Fish in Four Inland Lakes

Four inland lakes in Michigan have been designated to play an important part in the possible restoration of lake trout to the Great Lakes.

Under a preliminary program approved by the state Conservation Commission at its April 17-18 meeting in Lansing, the four lakes would be tapped as a source of lake trout eggs needed in a restoration program.

The four lakes, where planted lake trout have thrived, are Higgins, Crystal, Elk and Torch.

Any restoration program, of course, depends on eradication of the [illegible] lamprey in the Great Lakes. Experimental chemical control of lamprey spawning [illegible] the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service shows promise that this predator will be controlled.

Problems that plagued Michigan when the 1958 legislature convened last January are still unsolved.

Most of the state's problems have dollar signs and all are tied to the economic illness abroad in the land.

The legislature will return May 15 for a two-day adjournment session at which six of the 1958-59 budget bills will get final action.

Warnings three months ago that slump in tax revenue and general resistance to new levies would mean cutbacks were borne out with heavy impact as the regular session ended.

Higher education was hardest hit. Michigan State University was cut $1,011,00 under current expenditures; the University of Michigan $900,00. Smaller colleges got smaller reductions.

Difficult administrative problems resulted from the cutbacks.

Colleges and universities are trying hard to prepare for the "tidal wave" of students which has been moving through grade schools, officials indicated they would be forced to "borrow from the future" by postponing purchases, slowing down programs, maintaining present pay schedules, reducing personnel in some categories, cutting back on building maintenance.

At MSU a way will have to be found to keep in existance the Traffic Safety Center and the Labor Management Relations Institute or they will die. Neither program was provided for in this year's budget. The same is true at U-M's Human Resources Institute.

In closing hours pressure developed quickly and heavily on the legislature to make adjustments. The Republican party in the House held firm for the final vote on the education bill, retaining the cuts.

"If we give ground on education, we would have to relax on everyone else," said one House member.

Various estimates gauged budget cuts as between 2.5 per cent and 10 per cent among the 114 agencies of state government. Republicans said it would mean layoffs of employees.

Reasons for the cutbacks lay in the general economic slump. When sales fall off, sales tax revenue declines. Business, which pays a good share of the state's revenue, pays on the rate of business volume.

Wait 'til next year.

That's the prediction of legislators of both parties. They now base their guesses on national forecasts that the slump will end [illegible] summer and refer to revised state tax structure recommendations that should be ready by 1959.

Two committees of the legislature are hard at work trying to find the answers. An intangibles tax boost, part of one tentative study report, become a major factor in the 1958 session.

Shortly after the report was made and tax experts were studying how it could be applied, Gov. Williams took it over.

The governor's proposal: the tax be imposed this year to pour $20,000,000 into the sagging state treasury. Republicans rebelled and bottled it up in the House.

Next year, it will be embraced in a package of other proposals in an attempt to bail Michigan's government out of a sea of red ink.

Increases in the cost of driver's licenses were enacted by the 1058 session.

They will boost original licenses from $2.50 to $3; renewals from $1.50 to $2 and chauffeur's licenses from $1.25 to $1.50. The $1 fee for minor's restricted licenses will be unchanged.

Biggest part of the increase will be to raise $700,000 for driver education in the high schools, and 25 cents of the total increases will go for identification photographs on licenses.

The legislature ruled that the photograph could not be added until money is appropriated delaying the effectiveness of the new law until 1959.

Labor has two major items at stake when the legislature comes back to Lansing in May.

Still dangling are an unemployment emergency benefit program and a proposal to require labor unions to make annual financial reports to the labor mediation board.

Both are controversial.

Democrats charge that the $1 a week increase and maximum 14-week [illegible] of benefits on a percentage of original benefits are temporary, while other benefits to industry are permanent.

Unionist charge that the "tell-all" bill requiring financial reports is the first step toward a "right-to-work" law, the bane of labor unions everywhere.

RECORD OF THE COUNCIL

April 28, 1958

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Hiller presiding. Aldermen present; Staley, Boss, Gebeau, Hansen, Kipke and Moerland. Aldermen Absent: None.

The minutes of the April 14, 1958 meeting were read and approved.

Moved by Alderman Moerland and supported by Aldermen Boss that the Students and Faculty of the Charlevoix High School be commended on their efforts in preparing their student code and the Council strongly recommends the students to adopt this resolution and adhere to their regulations to the best of their ability.

STUDENT CODE

BASIC RULE.

Parents should know where their sons and daughters are while away from home, what they are doing, and with whom they are spending their time. Parents should also know what time their young people return home.

PARENT-YOUTH PLANNING.

A. An allowance should be planned together, based on a discussion of needs, financial ability, and the management of money.

B. Family Plans should be organized so that (1) necessary transportation for all members of the family can be provided; and (2) individual members can be reached in case of emergency or change of plans.

HOME ENTERTAINING.

The home should be the center of young people's social activity. To accomplish this, the cooperation and support of parents is needed. Young people should be encouraged to bring friends into the home and to accept invitations to visit the homes of friends. Parents should welcome the opportuity to meet their sons' or daughters' companions and friends.

A. It is important the invitations be clear as to the type of function (for appropriate dress), the time of beginning and ending of party. It is the responsibility of the guests to leave at the designated time.

B. Young people and their parents feel more comfortable if some plans for entertainment have been made in advance. Boredom and confusion lead to undesirable results. Well laid plans for a party are disregarded only by a rude guest. A considerate guest will follow the plans of the host.

C. Party crashing is an inexcusable custom and presents a prohlem for the hosts and other guests. Crashers should not be admitted.

D. "Lights Out" has no place in a well-ordered party.

GENERAL DATING.

A. The home should be offered and encouraged as a possible place for dating. Parents should co-operate by providing an agreeable measure of privacy. Public entertainment puts a strain on teen-agers' allowances.

B. Dressing according to the occasion makes a person feel more comfortable.

C. Young people and their parents should agree in advance on a definite time for return from a date. A boy should be given an opportunity to meet the parents of the girl and to discuss expected time of arrival at home.

HOURS.

In deciding on a satisfactory hour for a young person's expected arrival at home from a social engagement, two factors have to be considered: (1) What time will the affair be over? and 2) What is a reasonable amount of time to allow for arrival home following the affair? (If transportation is provided by parents, this is no problem).

A. An invitation issued for refreshments following a dance or other late social function should include a definite time for beginning and ending. One hour should seem adequate for an occasion of this type but is subject to regional conditions.

B. Young people should come directly home from a function unless other plans have been approved by parents. If a young person is delayed for any reason, he should telephone home.

C. Parents should know when young people arrive home.

DRIVING.

A. Parental consent for the driving privelege should be based on: (1) The possession of a driver's license; (2) Young people's proof of ability to control themselves and the car; (3) A healthy attitude regarding the rights and welfare of others.

B. Because it affects the lives and property of others, teen-agers should be allowed to drive a motor vehicle only with a license (or permit) issued by the Drivers' License Division of the State. A licensed driver must accompany the teen-agers driving with a permit. State law prohibits anyone from allowing another to drive a motor vehicle without a driver's license.

C. Trained instruction is urged. Careful driving, as well as good driving attitudes, can save lives and secure the economic welfare of an entire family.

D. It is the duty of parents and youth to make certain that any car driven by young people is in safe operating condition.

E. Young drivers should be expected to assume their portion of responsibility for the maintenance and appearance of the shared car.

F. Parents should be firm in their decision to take away the car priveleges when it is abused. On the other hand, they should be generous in their praise of proper driving attitudes and careful handling of the car.

G. Young people should understand that over-crowding of a car is dangerous.

H. Riders have a share of responsibility for safe driving. Dares and jeers from riders have been responible, for more than one death.

I. Young pople should understand that it is wise to refuse to ride with a reckless driver. Call your parents or call a cab.

DRINKING.

Drinking among high school students presents a serious problem in which parents and youth must consider their responsibilities. Young people confirm that a number of parents serve alcoholic beverages (beer, wine and whiskey) to young guests in their homes. It is well known that alcoholic beverages are brought to parties by guests, and are served by the guests themselves.

A. No one has the moral or legal right to serve any alcoholic beverages to other people's children. The adult who does so may be charged criminally and is directly responsible for any of the serious consequences which may result.

B. Michigan State Law prohibits sale of liquor or beer to minors (under 21 years of age) and forbids serving it to them and consumption by them.

C. Parents should impound any alcoholic beverages which is brought to a party and notify the parents of the offender. No alcoholic beverages should be accessible to young guests.

D. Young people should understand that it is not a disgrace to decline an alcoholic drink.

E. Young people should understand that it is foolhardy to ride with a driver who is under the influence of alcohol, and should instead seek safer means of transportation.

SMOKING.

Michigan State Law States:

A. Any person within this State who sells, gives to, or in any way furnishes any cigarettes in any form to any person under 21 years of age shall be punished by fine not to exceed $50.00 or imprisonment in the County Jail for not to exceed 30 days for each offense.

B. Any person under 21 years of age who shall smoke or use cigarettes in any form, (on any public highway, street, alley, park or other lands used for public purposes, or in any public place of business or amusement) may be arrested by any officer of the law, who may be cognizant of such offense; and further, it shall be the duty of such officer upon complaint of any person or upon warrant properly issued to arrest such offenders and take them to the proper court. C. of C. Employs Full-Time Secretary

Tom Symons Hired To Manage Organization

The board of directors of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce at a special meeting Monday evening engaged Thomas C. Symons of Bay City as a full-time secretary-manager of the organization, president Max Hosmer announced Wednesday.

Mr. Symons has replaced S. E. Coleman who resigned Friday to enable the organization to carry out its plans to employ a secretary-manager on a full time basis. Mr. Coleman who is an instructor in the Charlevoix schools served as secretary of the former Board of Commerce for 17 years on a part time basis.

Mr. Symons has been assistant manager and handled publicity for the Boyne Mountain Ski Lodge the past two years. He assumed his new duties here as secretary-manager Wednesday morning with offices in the Chamber of Commerce information booth in East Park.

Mr. Symons and his wife, June, will reside at 310 Park Ave.

The board decided Monday evening to have the Chamber of Commerce office open daily from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. during the summer season and authorized the secretary to take application for a full-time lady attendant to work in the office during the vacation season. For the present the office will be open daily from 9 to 5.

IN OTHER ACTION Monday the board approved a number of outdoor signs to directing visitors to the interesting and recreational facilities available in Charlevoix. The proposed signs are to be similar in design to the Mt. McSauba Ski run sign.

There are still many prospective members for the Chamber who have not been contacted by the solicitors. Mr. Symons has been directed by the board to work with solicitors in completing the membership enrollment.

Promotional and publicity programs can not go past the planning stage until such time as the directors know what funds will be available for this work.

Regular meetings of the board of directors have been changed from the first Wednesday of each month to the first Tuesday. It has been pointed out that the regular meetings are open to all members.

Three Incumbents File Petitions for Primary Election

Three incumbents filed nominating petitions for the 1958 primary election and thereby became the first office seekers to toss their hats into the political ring this year.

Downs of East Jordan, who was appointed recently to the office of probate judge for Charlevoix county, who is seeking the nomination on the non-partisan ballot.

Mr. Varnum will be seeking election to his second term as prosecutor; Mr. Rose his third term as sheriff and Mr. Downs his first term.

Petitions are being circulated for two candidates who have announced they will enter the contest for Judge of Probate along with Mr. Downs. They are C. M. Bice, local attorney and former prosecuting attorney for Charlevoix county and Russell E. Palmer, M. D., of 201 Petoskey ave. Dr. Palmer practiced medicine on Beaver Island for a number of years before moving to Charlevoix to make his home.

Courier Installs New Offset Press In Printing Dept.

The Charlevoix Courier printing department was expanded last week with the installation of new Davidson Dual-Lith offset printing press and auxiliary equipment for layout work and plate making.

Installation of offset printing equipment greatly expands the commercial printing service available at the Courier. The Davidson offset press will handle sheet sized up to 14x17½ inches at speeds up to 5,500 per hour.

Offset printing is a lithographic process of reproduction invented by Alois Senefelder in 1798. The basic principle of lithography is the fact that grease and water do not [illegible]. Lithography was originally produced from a stone surface.

The modern offset press for lithographic printing uses metal or paper lithographic plates. The image area on a lithographic plate is neither raised nor lowered with respect to the non-image area.

The image is put on the plate by a photographic process which makes the image receptive to ink while the non-image area is water reception. In the actual process of printing the image is first transferred to a composition blanket on a revolving cylinders. During the next revolution the cylinder picks up the sheet of paper to be printed, much as one would run a sheet of paper through a washing machine wringer. The inked image is then deposited on the sheet, producing a smooth, clean-cut printed surface.

Offset printing is adaptable to most kinds of printing and on many types of work is advantageous costwise to use this method. The process is especially adaptable for color work and jobs which have heavily inked areas. It is equally advantageous for the production of complicated ruled office forms.

Ball Diamond Being Improved For League Play

The City Softball league is taking more steps toward making the forthcoming season [illegible] in the league's history according to Dean Davenport, softball director.

Work started on the field at Kipke field over the weekend will be continued tonight (Thursday) when all players who have been drafted are asked to meet with their managers at the field at 6:45 p.m. Everyone is asked to bring a shovel or a spade. The infield grass has been cut and trimmed. More work will be done on the field tonight.

A meeting of team managers was held at the city hall last week. Additional players were drafted and practice dates were assigned. Practice will begin next week in preparation for the season which will open June 19.

Two more umpires are needed. Anyone wishing to apply for the job is asked to call Mr. Davenport.

A meeting of Peanut league managers and all other interested persons has been scheduled for 8.15 p.m. tonight (Thursday) at the city hall.

Welcome Scenic Trail Scouts

Charlevoix extends a hearty welcome to the Boy Scouts of the Scenic Trails Council and their leaders who will be our guests while attending the annual Camporee here this weekend.

The Camporee will be more than just an outing for the Scouts of Scenic Trail Council. It will afford we adults an opportunity to see youth in action. Witnessing their capabilities and self-reliance will undoubtedly strengthen our faith in the men of tomorrow and fan the spark of youth in the older men of today.

The Scouting program can be a vital factor in molding the character of youth. Woven into the glamor of camping and outdoor life are basic lessons in training good citizens. As a code of living the Scout oath and the Scout laws never become outmoded by age.

Staging an event which is expected to attract 1,000 Scouts and 200 leaders, plus many parents who will visit the city at the opening and closing of the Camporee, is a sizeable undertaking. The brunt of the burden in preparing the camp site, platting the grounds, anticipating the needs of a camp for 1000 boys, has fallen on the shoulders of a few loyal supporters of Scouting in the community. They are to be commended for assuming the responsibility of the community in making the preparation as well as for their contributions to Scouting.

Let's Profit by School Survey

Operation of the Charlevoix school and the confused opinions regarding the problems confronting the school district should be considerably cleared after the committees which have been conducting the Community School Survey make their reports at a public meeting next Wednesday evening.

Unfortunately most of us fail to keep informed on the operation of our schools and too often our opinions are not based on existing facts and actual conditions. If we are to benefit from the conclusions arrived at through this survey, a public report of the findings is the opportune time to get basic fact and figures collected by the many public spirited citizens who have generously given of their time in making the survey.

The statistical information which is anticipated as a result of the survey should have a definite value in planning the future of our educational program. It is now up to each individual to learn what the findings are and thereby become better qualified to act in the future

IT'S EVERYTHING you've heard about it . . . beautiful, fabulous, unbelievable . . . We mean the Mackinac Bridge . . . We saw it Sunday for the first time and we're still wondering if it was a dream . . . Since we were just a kid we've been hearing the idea of a bridge across the Straits argued pro and con . . . Now that it's become a reality we still can't believe it . . . If you haven't seen it yet you're in for a real treat . . . It's vastness and its beauty leaves you breathless . . . We could go on for hours but we won't . . . We'll just tell you that now is the time to make that trip you've been planning for the family . . . The country-side is dressed in its newest and loveliest garb and it's an ideal time to pack a picnic lunch and make a day of it . . . As we did Sunday, thanks to the Lawrence Feindts and young Larry,

THERE'S A BIG weekend coming up for it's the time for the annual Boy Scout Camporee . . . It's being held in Charlevoix for the first time . . . on the old golf course east of Mercer Blvd. . . . There are the same old faithfuls who do all the work and they're the same guys who are working on this . . . and there's been a lot of planning in the past . . . And right now these same guys who are executing those plans.

This is going to be quite a sight . . . More than 1,000 Boy Scouts and almost 100 adults . . . spending the weekend under the stars . . . So say a prayer that this beautiful weather holds until after Sunday.

CAN'T YOU IMAGINE these youngsters, pitching their tents, setting up camp, doing their own cooking, making their beds or whatever they sleep on . . . And then participating in all sorts of things planned for their entertainment . . . We hope they have a whale of a time . . . three whole days of it . . . And we hope they will come back to Charlevoix again some time.

And to all those people who've joined together in making this a success . . . our congratulations . . . We won't mention names for fear we'll miss someone but you know who you are so take a bow.

CONGRATULATIONS, TOO, to the Senior class for their super annual . . . we don't mind saying that it's the nicest one we've seen in recent years . . . A lot of work went into it and as a result the class of '58 has something to be proud of.

AS LONG AS we are handing out accolades, we'd like to give one to the music department of the Charlevoix schools which turned out such a wonderful program last week . . . It was really something to see and hear . . . To those 22 Seniors in the band . . . we're going to miss you next year.

THIS IS THE WEEK that the homemaking department struts its stuff . . . Or should we say . . . the gals show off all those lovely things they've been working on . . . We're anxious to see how many of those gals will be modeling the chemise dresses . . . which we remember all too well and can't stand . . . Plan now

Plans for a county art, craft and home industry show to be held during the summer months will be formulated at a meeting to be held Wednesday evening, May 28, at the City Building, East Jordan, Clare Brown, home demonstration agent, has announced.

Tentative plans have been considered for a two- day show to be held annually, rotating between Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City in conjuction with specific celebrations staged by the three cities.

Suggested for the show would be art work of all types, sewing and needle work, weaving, ceramics, wood, leather and metal crafts, basketry and many other home crafts.

Many persons in the county, men, women and youth, are doing commendable work in home crafts, according to Mrs. Brown. These displays, displayed in an annual showing, could be an attraction to visitors to Charlevoix county each year.

Persons interested in a show of this type are urged to attend this meeting to make plans for a show this summer.

Guild Notes . . .

The Women's Guild of the Charlevoix hospital is indebted to Mrs. Homer Nasson and Miss Helen Moench for a new supply of puppets known as 'Perky' which are given to all children admitted to the hospital as patients. The children love 'Perky' and the puppet, in its own little way, makes it easier for each child who must be hospitalized. When the youngster goes home, 'Perky' goes with him and becomes a part of the child's family . . .

Mrs. Wilson Baker is in charge of the sewing committee and is responsible for the making of puppets and layettes. She reports that there is material all cut to be made into garments for the layettes. Anyone wishing to sew these garments may call her for material.

Mrs. Don Gilbert, Guild treasurer, reports that she has written a check for $1,500 to be used toward the cost of the new operating room light at the Charlevoix hospital. The purchase of the lamp was the Guild's project for the year. A new project will be selected shortly.

Several new books have been placed on the library cart which is pushed three times weekly so patients may have fresh reading material. The books were gifts from Mrs. William T. Downs of East Jordan. Mrs. Jack Bacot and Mrs. Franklin Olmstead. In addition to current magazines and a choice of books, the library cart stocks many small items for the convenience of the patients.

Tentative plans for the annual fashion show and other fund-raising projects were made at a meeting of the Guild held Tuesday at the elementary school building.

The nursing scholarship committee reported that no applications for the $300 nursing scholarship have been received.

This is the first time in the three year history of the scholarship that there have been no applications for it. A check on the situation shows that fewer girls going into the field of professional nursing is the main reason for the lack of applications.

Mrs. G. B. Saltonstall, chairman of the membership committee, reports that 80 members have renewed their memberships for the year. Dues are only $1.00 per year . . . Members may be placed on an active or inactive list, as they wish.

Mrs. E. D. Hawley, Guild president, and Mrs. Carl Schultz, secretary, reported on the recent district meeting held at Petoskey. They also reported that the local Guild had requested membership in the state organization and that its application for membership was being considered.

Knittel-Smith Vows Exchanged At Ceremony in California

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Knittel of Redondo Beach, Calif., and Mrs. Ruth Smith and Chester Smith of this city.

The Rev. Fr. John McKenna officiated at the double ring service during the nuptial Mass on May 10. Bouquets of spring flowers and lighted tapers decorated the altar.

Given in mariage by her father, the bride selected a gown of white lace over taffeta for her wedding. Fashioned with a fitted bodice, the gown featured a bouffant skirt of ruffled nylon net and lace. It was worn with a matching lace bolero jacket which had long fitted sleeves. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was secured with a jeweled tiara. She carried a bouquet of sweetpeas centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. P. C. Parrone of San Diego served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a gown of orchid lace over taffeta and a matching lace veil and carried a bouquet of sweetpeas.

Mrs. P. A. Knittel of Redondo Beach, sister-in-law of the bride, Melvine Fuerstinger and Joan Stroup of San Diego were bridesmaids. They wore gowns and lace veils identical to the honor attendant's and carried bouquets of sweetpeas.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Knittel in Redondo Beach.

After a wedding trip to San Francisco and Sacramento, Cal., the couple will reside at Coronado Island, Calif., where the bridegroom is stationed with the U. S. Navy.

The bride is a graduate of Redondo Union high school and Mercy College of Nursing in San Diego. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and a veteran of four years in the U. S. Navy. He is making a career of the service.

Dormouse of 'Alice's' Tea Party Carries on in Much of Old World

The sleepy dormouse whose nose was doused with hot tea at the famous Alice-In-Wonderland tea party was no mythical creature out of Lewis Carroll's imagination.

Though Americans see the engaging little animal only in zoos, it is still very much alive in the Old World, where it rates variously as a nuisance or a useful source of fur and food.

The distinguished English poet and author, Robert Graves, was reported on a recent visit to the United States to be wearing a hat made of dormouse fur.

With velvety coat and hairy or bushy tail, the dormouse looks more like a squirrel than a mouse, says the National Geographic Society. It belongs to the Muscardinidae, or Gliridae, branch of the big rodent family, and is found in England, continental Europe, Asia, and Africa.

The Common Dormouse is only about 5½ inches long, including tail. Larger species barely attain eight inches.

The drowsiness of Alice's teatime companion was characteristic. Hibernating in winter, dormice may sleep as much as six months at a time, waking now and then to eat a bit of stored food.

Dormice are true hibernators. Their body temperature, breath, and pulse rate drop far below the metabolic state maintained by bears and other animals that merely slep for long periods.

Dormouse young, rowever, like human offspring, are less interested in sleep. The youngsters, born in spring and autumn, continue to frisk about for a while before following parental example and seking a tree hollow or other shelter for winter retirement.

When not hibernating dormice sleep during the day and are active at night. They spend most of their lives in trees and bushes, where they build neat round nests of leaves.

They are fond of nuts, seeds, and fruits. Sitting up on their haunches, squirrel-like, they eat from their forepaw. They have five toes and four fingers.

Dormice have been known from ancient days. Aristotle and Pliny wrote of them. Fattened on chestnuts, they were served at Roman banquets with honey sauce. Their fur was believed by some to be helpful in treating paralysis and ear diseases.

At various times and places, multiplying hordes of the animals have spread out to devastate gardens and farms. The descendants of a few European dormice introduced on an English estate half a century ago later became such pests that government and locl officials joined to help control them.

Dr. William Mann, former director of the National Zoological Park in Washington, tells of hearing nightly noises in the rafters of an English home where he was staying in 1948.

Learning that the sounds were made by dormice, and remembering that his zoo had no such exhibits, he later arranged for a pair to be shipped across the Atlantic.

Since dormouse life span is only about six years, the original animals have gone their way. The capital's zoo now has a single dormouse in residence — Grapiurus murinus — from Uganda, East Africa.

CAN YOU BELIEVE IT . . . only two more weeks of school . . . That's right . . . two weeks jampacked full of all sorts of things . . . The first big event is the senior trip . . . The Seniors, 50 or so strong, will leave this weekend for that long-anticipated trip . . . a boat trip from Detroit to Chicago . . . They should enjoy it for they've been working on it long enough . . . So smooth sailing, kids . . . Be real good but have a whale of a time . . . It's possible to do both you know . . . try and see!!

THERE'S A LONG weekend coming up next week . . . the first of three during the next few months . . . That's right . . . the Memorial Day weekend . . . In recent weeks we've been hearing that slogan "Aim to live" . . . we hope you've been listening to it also and will keep it in mind when you take to the highways in the coming weeks . . . Accidents happen every day . . . Every driver knows that but every driver figures it's going to happen to six other guys . . . So you're immune . . . who are you kidding? . . . You can have an accident just as easily as the next guy if you're not careful . . . So keep that in mind so you will be around, come June 2 . . . We love you all very much and we'd hate to have to write your obituary . . . just because of one careless moment behind the wheel of a car . . . So take it easy . . . we'd like to see you around for more than a little while.

TRUCKS HELP MAKE IT SO

Whether it's Michigan's wonderful water resources or her great education facilities — twin themes of this year's Michigan Week — the benefits to the people are more far reaching because of motor transport. For trucks are indeed Michigan's supply lines, transporting everything we eat, wear, or use to every corner of the State — enabling her people to live, shop, do business wherever they please, opening new horizons to new generations . . . Next time you see a truck on the road, remember — it's working for you, serving you, too, so you can say, "It's great to live in Michigan!"

Pauline Ruth Reibel Is Bride of David Stewart in Detroit Ceremony

The First Baptist Church in Royal Oak was the scene recently of the wedding of Pauline Ruth Reibel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Lloyd Reibel of Ellsworth, and David B Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Lindik of Brighton.

The Rev Allen Northrup of Pentwater officiated at the double ring service on May 3. The soloist, Alice Veldkamp sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer" accompanied by the church organist who also played the traditional wedding march.

Given in marriage by the father, the brite chose a gown of lace and net fashioned in a princess style. She carried a boqnet of pink roses and white carnations.

Nancy Liddicoat of Royal Oak was her only attendant. She wore a ballerina length gown of lavender nylon and organdy and a matching picture hat. Her bouquet was of lavender and white chrysanthemums.

Susan Lindik, sister of the bridegroom, and Joyce Ernst, niece of the bride, as flower girls wore gowns identical to the honor attendants and carried baskets of spring flowers.

Ronald Lindik assisted his brother as best man. Ushers were Leighton Reibel, brother of the bride, and Thomas Hansen.

Mrs. Reibel chose a navy dress, white accessories and a corsage of deep pink roses for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Lindik, mother of the bridegroom, wore a beige ensemble and a corsage of yellow roses.

A reception for 125 guests followed at the VFW hall.

After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the couple will make their home at the Marlin Apartments in Royal Oak.

Annual J-Hop Great Success

This year's J-Hop, presented Saturday night at the Charlevoix high school gymnasium, was the most successful in recent years, according to Jill Davis, president of the Junior class, which sponsored the event.

More than 40 couples featured girls in a colorful parade of formals attended the event which featured dancing to the music of the Charles Novotny quartet and refreshments served at a table decorated with spring flowers.

A wishing well, loaned by St. Francis school in Petoskey, and roses and other decorations loaned by the Order of the Eastern Star helped transform the gymnasium into "Spring in Bloom," the theme of this year's party.

Farmers to Vote On Wheat Marketing Quotas June 20

Farmers in Charlevoix county will vote June 20 on whether they want to use marketing quotas for their 1959 wheat crop, Carlton H. Smith, chairman of the Charlevoix county Agricultural Stabiliation and Conservation committee has announced.

Wheat marketing quotas are effective only if approved by two-thirds of the eligible growers in the county. The numbers of eligible voters in Charlevoix county is small due to fact that a grower must have a quota of more than 15 acres in order to be eligible.

The ASC committee will announce the voting place or places at a later date according to Mr. Smith.

If quotas are not approved there will be no restrictions on wheat marketing. Allotments however will remain in effect and growers who desire to comply with their acreage allotment will be eligible to a price support of 50 per cent of parity, Mr. Smith said.

Cruise Ship To Dock Here June 4

This is the second ship of the Georgian Bay line to make Charlevoix a port of call this season. On Sunday, June 1, the S. S. North American, is scheduled to dock here from 9 to 11 a.m. while on a Decoration Day weekend cruise out of Chicago.

Three veteran members of the Charlevoix county draft board were awarded certificates of appreciation in recognition of their outstanding public service to the nation at the Monday meeting of the local Selective Service board.

Awards were presented to J. M. Foster, board member for 15 years, Dr. A. F. Litzenberger, medical advisor for 15 years and Norman D. Ance, government appeal agent for five years.

In transmitting the awards issued in the name of the President and National Director of Selective Service, Roman A. Dubas, chairman of the Board who presented the awards in behalf of Col. Arthur A. Holmes, state director, said "with this certificate goes the sincere appreciation for your devotion to duty, your integrity and leadership and your demonstrated spirit of volunteer public service. These are the qualities which have made it possible for Selective Service to accomplish every mission assigned in peace or war . . . the same qualities for which you have earned the respect of your fellow citizens. In no small measure they have contributed to the security of the nation."

ADVENTURES IN UNDERSTANDING

Notes from A Northerner's Diary

By Harold E. Kahn

What For?

The killdeer on our beach are ready to nest now, but they will make no elaborate preparations for their family. A few stones will be scraped together for a nest and there the female will lay about four buff-white eggs, spotted with chocolate brown and about one and one-half by one and one-tenth inches in size —unusually large eggs for so small a bird. And there is a reason for this size of the eggs. It is because killdeer babies are hatched on the ground in the midst of danger and must be in an advanced state of development when born into the world so that they can run from their enemies and hunt for their own food almost from the moment they emerge from their shells. A big egg is necessary to hold the advanced, precocious, bright-eyed, down - covered killdeer baby — a larger egg than is required for a baby robin which is naked, blind and altogether helpless when hatched. It is no mere happenstance that killdeers, which are robin-size, lay larger eggs than their red-breasted cousins do. There is a purpose in it, as there is for everything that occurs in nature.

Why is a woodcock's long bill hinged on the upper mandible? For a purpose — to permit him to open the end of his bill after the entire instrument has been buried deep into the moist earth. Then he can grip an earthworm and pull it to the surface.

What are earthworms for? They aerate the soil and make it fecund.

What purpise does a crab or crayfish serve? They are the garbage men of ponds and lakes and streams, scavengers that keep the under-water realms clean, as do the snails.

One of the barest essentials for understanding nature is to know that everything has a purpose. Nothing merely exists. Everything exists for a reason, and to know the reason is the beginning of natural wisdom.

An expression commonly heard these days is "A fellow has to live, doesn't he?" An employee approaches his boss, asking for a raise in pay, and his employer wants to know why he should receive an increase. The man cites the rising cost of living, his growing family, and declares that money does not go as far as it once did, and finally he adds, "A fellow has to live, doesn't he?"

Or, a young man is changing his profession. After obtaining a good education he has worked at a low paid position for the Federal Government's Fish and Wildlife Service. Now he decides to go into industry and try to become a highly-paid executive. When he is asked if he does not like his work as a government biologist he answers, "Yes, very much!" Are his employers good to him? Do they treat him decently? Certainly! He could not wish for better employers. Why make a change then? "A fellow has to live, doesn't he?"

Doubtlessly at some time or another you have used this expression, "A fellow has to live!" What would be your reply to someone countered with the question "What for?" Would you be lost for an answer? Squelched? Why does a fellow have to live? What for? To what purpose?

The most fundamental explanation of anything is the purpose it serves, and no one understands much about anything unless he knows its purpose. A person who knew all about automobiles excepting the fact that they are made to ride in would be mighty stupid about them. A person who knew about the printing and binding of books and still did not understand that books are to be read would lack an elemental understanding of books. Anyone who knows all about high school and college curricula, diplomas and degrees, and still is ignorant about the purpose of education is grossly uninformed about education.

An old grandmother entered a hardware store and declared she wanted to purchase a new stove for her living room. The salesman let loose a veritable barrage of sales patter about his latest model heating stove. It had non-corroding bolts. It featured a newly patented insulating material. Just look at the guage steel used in the jacket! Manipulate those clever controls! See the ample combustion chambers! All these gadgets, conveniences and improvements were overwhelmingly convincing, the salesman thought, and he finished his sales talk with a flourish, expecting an immediate and favorable response. But the old lady just looked at him, evidently expecting him to say more.

Taken back, the salesman said somewhat stuffily, "Well, madam, I've told you everything there is to know about that stove. Do you have any questions?"

"Yes, just one," she answered, "Will it keep an old lady warm?"

The most fundamental question that could be asked about a stove is "Will it keep a person warm?" That is what a heating stove is for.

We need to ask such elemental questions these days about life in our world.

Those responsible for the education of our young might well look at our colleges and universities where there is an ever growing list of easy courses in such subjects as folk dancing and fly-fishing and ask, "But does this system of education teach the young how to think and present them with a high standard of values? Do our educational institutions see that this generation's live wires are well grounded?" We have better schools now than the world has ever seen. What for?

People who are building bigger more beautiful houses than have ever before been found on the face of the earth should ask, "But will the house be a home, built of loving deeds as well as of brick, stone, mortar and wood?" Better houses — what for?

Members of cathedral-like churches with a big budget, an impressive staff of ministers, and highly organized ecclestical machinery might well ask, "But does it lead people to a vital relationship with God?"

Many magazine articles and books are being written now about "How to relax" and "How to find peace of mind." But why relax? Why have peace of mind? To what good use will you put your relaxed body and peaceful mind? Most of the pundits never ask that question — or answer it. Happiness is not a matter of relaxation, or tranquil mind, but a state of going somewhere, earnestly, whole-heartedly, with undivided attention and devotion. Profound happiness and purposefulness are inseparable. Relaxation? Peace of mind? What for?

We are living longer than the people of any other generation in the world's history. Children born in America today have a life expectancy of approximately seventy years, more than twice the expectancy of youngsters born in Christ's time. And modern advances in science are pushing our longevity toward one hundred years. It may be good to live longer. It is far more important to live better. Longer lives —what for?

Saint Bernard of Clairvoux plated over his door the inscription "Bernard, why are you here?" so that every time he entered his room he had to face anew the central purpose of his life.

It is a good question to hang above the opening of everyday "Why are you here?"

A fellow has to live doesn't he? What for?

Take the wheel... get the Swept-Wing feel!

Custom Royal

You spend a lot of time in your car—driving to work, shopping, taking trips. How your car rates on the road is important to you. So all we ask before you invest in a new car is this: Come in and take a "road rate" drive in a Swept-Wing 58 Dodge. Really compare it thoroughly on every count. We honestly believe it rides better, handles easier, responds quicker than any other car you've ever driven. But we'll leave the verdict entirely up to you. You be the judge.

YOU BE THE JUDGE! THINGS TO NOTICE IN THE SWEPT-WING 58:

The feel behind the wheel—You feel different because you sit differently. Low and snug and secure, completely in control, almost a part of the car.

The view around you—The glass area is tremendous. The visibility is outstanding in every direction—front, sides, rear.

The ease of push-button driving—Once you try Dodge Push-Button TorqueFlite you'll never be happy with outmoded lever types. Ladies love it.

A ride that's a glide—There's no sway on curves, no dip at stops. Torsion-Aire is standard equipment, too.

This power steering is different—No power steering is like Dodge power steering. It works full time, yet leaves you the feel of the road.

Horsepower and stopping power—You get up to 320 hp. You get new-design Total-Contact Brakes.

PLYMOUTH SAVES YOU MONEY ON GAS...
MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN VICTORY PROVES IT!

New "Fuel-Saver" Choke that helped clinch ti is standard equipment on all Plymouth V-

Pound for pound, Plymouth uses less gasoline than eit of the "other two" cars in the low-price "3"! This w proved beyond doubt when a 1958 Plymouth V-8 officially declared winner of the low-price car competi in the 1958 Mobilgas Economy Run. Plymouth's competitors also entered cars with 6-cylinder engines (supposedly more economical) but Plymouth beat every car in its class—V-8s and 6s alike!

This title-winning Plymouth is exactly the same Belvedere V-8 with TorqueFlite Automatic Transmission that you can buy right off your Plymouth dealer's floor.

Theso tests provo that every Plymouth has built-in economy features not found in the "other twn". For in-nce—one of the most important factors in Plymouth's shing win is the new "Fuel-Saver" Choke that you get no extra cost on all Plymouth V-8s. This ingenious ce employs a triple-stage vacuum piston and a new mostatic element to reduce the amount of fuel you in warming up the engine. So it can save you even e on short-distance drives—the kind most people make.

Among tho many other savings Plymouth gives you is the $140 you save on standard-equipment Torsion-Aire Ride. The "other two" charge up to that much extra for their best suspension systems.

So if you are dollar-conscious, better hustle over and talk terms and trade with your Plymouth dealer. He wants your business, and he'll go all out to get it!

Scouts Take Sun and Rain In Stride at Camporee Here

Tents pitched among the pines, smoke curling upward from a myrard of campfires around which were grouped boys of all ages enjoying good fellowship describes the 1958 Scenic Trails Council Boy Scout Camporee held here last weekend.

Sunshine greeted the boys on arrival Friday and again on Sunday. Rain, however, fell late Saturday afternoon and evening making it necessary to call off the Retreat parade and the Pageant Campfire. Though it dampened the ground, it did little to dampen the spirits of the 851 Boy Scouts and 177 adult leaders from 29 communities throughout the 18 county Scenic Trails Council who had gathered for the event.

A RECORD breaking total of 147 patrols and crews from 50 troops and Explorer and Sea Scout units were represented in the above totals, making this the most successful Camporee since 1950.

In keeping with the theme of the Camporee, "Outdoor Safety," each Scout attending the Camporee received a souvenir patch.

This patch was designed around a typical northern Michigan scene, a sail boat on blue water with gulls flying overhead and a pine tree in the foreground. The words "Scenic Trails Council Outdoor Safety Camporee. Charlevoix 1958" form the border of the patch.

The safety theme was carried out in the actual Camporee program by a 2½ mile safety trek Saturday morning on which patrols witnessed demonstrations of Water Safety by the U. S. Coast Guard from the Charlevoix Lifeboat Station; Safety with Firearms by Michigan State Police from the Petoskey Post and Safety in Archery by members of the Charlevoix Archery Club. Hike Safety and Nature Lore were also incorporated into this program.

ODDS 'N ENDS

BY FRAN MARTIN

IT WAS SOMETHING to see . . . a sight we'll never forget . . . Tents of every description pitched among the pines . . . with camp fires in front of each . . . and kids . . . hundreds of 'em . . . big ones, little ones, fat ones, skinny ones, tall ones and short ones . . . wearing equally diversified kinds of clothing . . . Of course we're talking about the Boy Scout Camporee . . . the most successful since 1950 and that's saying a lot for a community that has never hosted one before . . . Although we visited camp in the rain that made it necessary to call off the parade and the campfire, we found it a most thrilling experience . . . We turned a little green with envy when we saw all those wonderful kids camped in the open, tending their fires, preparing their meals . . . And the fun they had . . . Everyone we know who had anything to do with the Camporee . . . scouts and the many adults who assisted . . . had a whale of a time . . . Pete Burns and Bob Bergmann who headed up the local committee and who worked like slaves on the project told us Sunday night that they've issued an invitation to have the event here again next year . . . all of which speaks well for the many people who assisted . . . to all those who worked so hard, a lot of beautiful orchids for a job well done . . . And to the Boy Scouts, come back again soon.

HARRY BINGHAM stopped by the other day with some info we'd requested about the commencement program . . . We noticed on the program that he'd be introducing the class of '58 and making special awards . . . We asked him how many classes he had introduced through the years and found that it's been everyone since 1935 . . . Quite an impressive record, don't you think.

AND EACH CLASS has been finer than the last . . . this year's class is no exception. . . . This will be the 70th class to graduate from our little ole high school . . . And like each class before it, this one has left its mark . . . There'll be things that will be remembered about that no other class can claim . . . Each of the fifty graduates will go his own way, once he receives that sheepskin . . . We'd like to wish this class loads of luck on their trip down the roads that lie ahead . . . They'll no doubt lead to and through the most unexpected places, . . . but we hope that you will have smooth crusing, that the skies will always be sunny and that you'll know only the best of everything . . . And come next Sunday and Wednesday nights take a good look at those same classmates that you've been gazing on since that first day of school a century or so ago . . . Why? Because, whether you realize it or not, you'll be seeing the class of '58 in its entirety for the last time . . . even if you've sworn that you'll get together ever so often . . . Each will go his way, his interests will change, he'll make new friends and slowly he'll drift away . . . You don't believe us? . . . Well, just as a favor take that look . . . just in case we're right, huh?

WE MENTIONED it last week and we're going to remind you again . . . For heaven's sake, be careful if you have to be on the highway this weekend . . . It will be the kind of a weekend when everyone will be going some place . . . and in a hurry . . . And because of this you'll have to be extra careful if you're behind that wheel . . . It's so much easier to be careful than to try to undo an accident or repair the injuries suffered as the result of one careless moment . . . It can't happen to you? Don't make book on it, bub, or you'll find yourself behind the well known eight-ball . . .

THINK WE'LL have lilacs for Memorial Day? We have our doubts . . . with that old northwest wind blowing over Lake Michigan the poor flowers have not had a chance . . . Many leaves aren't even out yet . . . We were told that everything was covered with a white frost Monday morning . . . with weather like that the poor flowers and trees won't be in bloom for a while.

* * *

HAVING COMPANY over the forthcoming weekend or are you going out of town? Or are you expecting someone for graduation? If so, how's about calling us and telling us about it so we can use it in the Charlevoix Courier . . . We'd like nothing better than to use your name in our paper . . . If you can't get us call the office, 2211, and someone will take your news item . . . Names, you know, make the newspaper . . . so again, won't you let us use yours or that of your guests or both . . .

Charlevoix Telephone Lines

LES JOHNSON
Michigan Bell Manager

ANOTHER SATELLITE rocketed into orbit! Exciting news to read about, isn't it? And did you know that the Bell Telephone System plays a big part in these historical events? The transmitters inside the miniature "moons" use transistors, an invention of the Bell Telephone Laboratories. And a satellite radio that is supposed to transmit indefinitely — years and years — gets its power from solar batteries, which Bell Telephone scientists invented to turn the sun's energy to electricity. These Bell System skills that contribute so much to the Space Age are the same ones that help make your telephone service the best in the world.

PLANNING A TRIP FOR MEMORIAL DAY WEEK END? If so, you'll want to make the most of every free minute and leave all your worries behind. So plan the details in advance, by telephone. Make Long Distance calls to fix up reservations and settle the other details of travel. They're worth far more than their modest cost. And, if you happen to be delayed along the way, telephone ahead to say you'll be late in arriving.

MAYBE YOU'VE SEEN this unusual motor vehicle carrying the telephone company emblem. Unusual, because it has three wheels and is only a third the length of a family car. Because it is economical to run, can "turn on a dime," park almost anywhere, and get a repairman to his destination quickly, Michigan Bell is trying them out in larger cities . . . another example of how the company tries to keep down the cost of telephone service.

Squaw Dress Is Heap Big Hit

Sacks & Chemise fashion, may come & go, but American women will find a summer style this year that has been a favorite for more than 100 years — the squaw dress.

The squaw dress hasn't seen much basic change since the time of its creators, the South West Indian Maidens, yet it continues in popularity with the feminine public. The truth is, that the popularity of this Western Fashion has been consistently on the increase.

Basically, the Indian creation is V necked, full skirted — in tiers — with short or ¾ length sleeves. The costume is heavily trimmed with gold or silver non-tarnishable rickrack and braid around neck, tiers, and hemline —up to 60 yards of it in a single garment.

Squaw dresses, 1 piece or 2 piece, in soft, washable, no iron textured cottons, though first used as a western sports dress, has become widely used for square dance parties, resort wear, and as a general all-year favorite.

Just in; the selection is the Greatest — now at Fay's Dress Shop. You'll want yours early — so shop today at your local Fay's for your new Summer Squaw Dress.

Williams-Swanson Exchange Vows in Church Ceremony at East Jordan

The United Missionary Church in East Jordan was the scene recently of the wedding of Verna M. Williams and Larry J. Swanson.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. George Williams of Mancelona and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Swanson of this city.

The Rev. Charles W. Thompson officiated at the ceremony in the presence of more than 300 guests on May 17. Arrangements of spring flowers and lighted tapers decorated the church for the occasion. Neva Wilson played a program of traditional music and the wedding marches.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a ballerina length gown of white Chantilly lace over satin for her wedding. It was fashioned with a scoop neckline, a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt featuring a satin sash. Her fingertip veil trimmed with white lace fell from a white lace headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Two Muskegon area youths, Francis D. McCarthy, 18, of Muskegon Heights and Dale R. ADVENTURES IN UNDERSTANDING

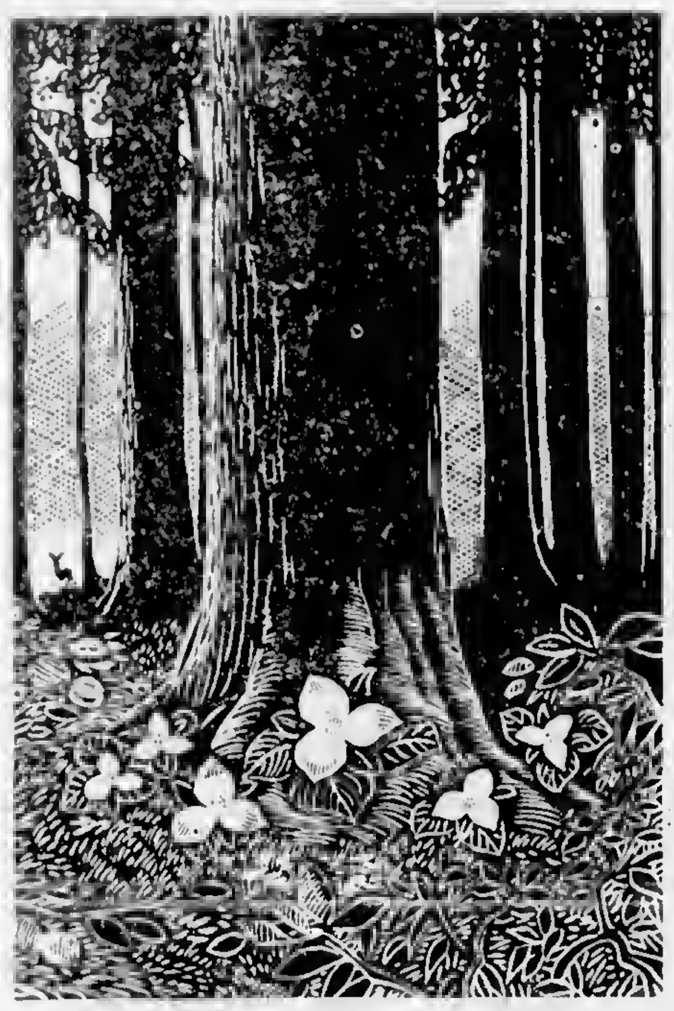
[illegible] A Northerners' Diary

By Harold E. Kohn



Income and Expenditure

The largest trillium I've ever seen is growing in our woods. There may be larger ones somewhere in the North, but this white blossom, five and one-half inches wide, excels all I have seen in the wild. The plant stands on a slope near the back of our [illegible], silhouetted against a trunk and nestled among a cluster of other flowers of its kind. The soil there is moist enough to suit these lovely perennials and rich in humus so that all the blossoms are of generous size, but the dimension of this single bloom signifies unusual vitality and the most ideal conditions of light and shade, moisture and mild acidity of the soil, and high fertility of the earth from which they spring.

After looking long and appreciatively at this large and lovely specimen of trillium grandiflorum, I began wondering why this particular blossom was so much larger than its sister flowers which surround it. Why its unusual growth? Then I recalled an old principle of biological growth: the primal condition of organic growth is a surplus of income over expenditure. All living tissue in time breaks down. It happens in deer, in trees, in shrubs, in human beings, in the trillium, and in all other creatures. A growing body, like a growing bank account, is possible only when deposits exceed withdrawals. This particular trillium, resting at the fool of a sheltering tree, protected from buffeting winds, rooted in highly organic soil, must have found unusual resources that enabled it to stretch higher and broader than its fellows, and to keep on growing after they had reached maturity.

What is true of the trillium is true of all creation. No creature in all the universe, from the microscopic one-celled amoeba to the six - ton African elephant and the six-thousand ton Big Tree of Central California, exists or grows by will power alone. All organisms succeed in staying alive only by assimilating resources from outside themselves, and they grow only when the income of these resources exceeds the expenditure of energy.

In these days when nervous exhaustion is such a commonplace experience, when the rate of mental breakdowns has soared to new heights and we have run out of room to house and feed those who can no longer cope with the problems of everyday life and need institutional care,—in these times of numerous and extravagant demands upon our intellectual, moral and spiritual strength, look to your resources! If you want to stay alive see that your resources match your expenditures. If you want to grow see that your income exceeds your outgo.

The law of organic sustainance is also the rule of mental and moral development. Mental and spiritual growth results from absorbing more information, meaning, truth, beauty and goodness than one can possibly spend. Eyes and ears and our other organs of sense compose a small reception committee that invite into our inner life the beauties of sunrises and sunsets, far-off stars, laughing voices, stirring music, words of wisdom and inspiration such as we find in the Holy Bible and the stimulating stories of heroic living that we find in the biographies of the leaders of the race. With these receptors we gather in the influences of worship, fellowship with friends, wholesome play and all the happiest experiences of our lives. These things represent the good income of our lives, the nourishment that feeds our minds and enlarges our souls. Without an income of goodness we cannot spend ourselves doing good, improving our community, cooperating with God in making His world a fit home for His children. The capacity to suffer without bitterness, to endure disappointment without loss of hope, to withstand strain without grumbling is a matter of being able to afford these things, knowing that we can spend energy and thought, concern and strength upon them endlessly, if need be. A great faith comes to the person who is confident that he cannot exhaust the resources that God has placed here for our use. He knows that he is surrounded with power in the person of parents, brother or sister, friends, and fellow workers. He is aware that the Presence of God is as much around and within him as is the air he breathes. He draws strength from God as readily, as unconsciously and as constantly as he replenishes his breath from the atmosphere.

Nothing shows more plainly what we are and how we have been fed than does a crisis. Then, like a starved deer chased by dogs, the malnourished soul falters while the healthy one relies upon hidden stores of stamina. Like a plant set in dry drought-ridden soil, the unresourceful soul withers but the good one sends roots down deeper to secret springs. A sudden bereavement, loss of health, a period of unemployment, harsh criticism, a violent disagreement or any of a vast range of emergencies, show how our spirits have been fed.

At our best we are people with inexhaustible resources, like a light bulb attached to a huge power station, like a faucet connected to Lake Michigan, like a sheep in a great green pasture, like a trillium with rootage in rich forest soil.

Scouts Take Weather In Stride Here

pened by intermittent showers, were conducted by Jim Clark of Williamsburg, Sylvester Shestman of the Bear Archery Co. of Grayling and Arlin Burris of the Michigan Conservation Department Saturday afternoon.

Patrols also earned ribbons for their proficiency in camping skills and participation in games and events. Blue ribbons were earned by 38 patrols, red ribbons by 84 patrols and yellow ribbons by 25 patrols.

Charlevoix's Boy Scout troop won two red and two yellow ribbon and the Sea Scouts one red and two yellow awards. The local Scouts, serving as service troops and aides during the Camporee, were unable, because of these duties, to participate in all events and thus did not score as highly as they might have been able to do.

Camporee co-chairmen, Ray Swartz of Cadillac and Leonard 'Pete' Burns report an excellent job was done by all 19 volunteer committees who worked to make the 1958 Camporee an outstanding event for boys.

BOB BACKUS assistant Scenic Trails Council Executive and staff advisor to the Camporee committee, had only praise for everyone connected with the Camporee. He gave special praise to the Camporee committee, the local volunteers, Kiwanians who manned the Trading Post, the staff of nurses who were in charge of the First Aid station at all times, the Charlevoix scouts who did an excellent job as service troops, and all others who joined in making this the most successful Camporee, in recent years. "Such cooperation portrays the true spirit of scouting," he said.

Justice Court News

Saladin Temple Shrine Band of Grand Rapids which will present a concert in East Park, Charlevoix on Saturday evening, June 28. Accompanying the concert band of 60 members will be the Saladin Arab Patrol Drill Team of 24 members, the Oriental Band of 25 members, and the Saladin Chanters of 36 voices.

Preceding the concert in East Park the four groups accompanied by Shriners from northwest Michigan are scheduled to parade in Charlevoix.

Organized in 1911, the Saladin Shrine band is rated among the best appearing at Imperial Council meetings from coast to coast. Under the direction of Forrest D. Van Dusen the band plays all types of popular, martial and light opera music. The organization is noted for its showmanship and its ability to strike a sympathic cord with an audience on any occasion.

The four organizations, touring western Michigan by bus, will arrive in Charlevoix on June 27, continue to Mackinac for a concert at the bridge dedication the following day, returning here for the parade and concert the evening of June 28.

Shrine Entertainment To Bring Oriental Spectacle to City

An anti-climax to the fabulous dedication ceremonies of the new Mackinac bridge will be the appearance in Charlevoix of four nationally famous entertainment groups of Saladin Temple Shriners, the concert band of 60 pieces, the oriental band of 25 members, the chanters with 36 voices, and the crack Arab patrol drill team of 25 members.

The public entertainment of these four organization, joined by members of the Shrine from throughout northern Michigan, promises to be one of the major attractions of the current season.

The tentative program, according to John Rathburn, local Shriner, includes a parade of the four organization in oriental costume and members of the Shrine here for the occasion.

FOLLOWING THE parade on Saturday evening, June 28, there is to be a concert by the band, choral numbers by the chanters and a spectacular drill by the oriental patrol.

With the thousands of visitors expected in northern Michigan for the bridge dedication, the Shrine program here may well attract hundreds of these visitors to Charlevoix for Saturday evening entetainment.

Enroute here the Shriners will parade in Traverse City on Friday afternoon and continue on to Charlevoix Friday evening, escorted by a delegation from Traverse City.

Present plans are to have a Shrine club meeting Friday evening at the Beach hotel, headquarters for the Shriners during their two day stay in Charlevoix.

THE SHRINE motor bus caravan will continue to Mackinaw Saturday morning for the dedication ceremonies where the band will give a concert. Following the dedication the caravan will return here for the evening program with all groups participating.

Tax Allocation Board Adopts County Tax Rate

The Charlevoix county tax allocation board adopted the final tax rate for 1958 at a meeting held Monday at the county building here.

The rate was adopted as set earlier with the exception of one minor change which gave an additional one-half mill to that section of Hudson township fractional with Vanderbilt.

The county received 7½ mills which includes 6½ mills for operational costs and one mill for the courthouse sinking fund which will be terminated this year.

All townships with the exception of Hayes, Hudson and Norwood townships were given one-half mill. The budgets of the three townships listed above did not show a need.

School districts were allocated seven mills with the exception of Murray No. 1 and Bay Shore No. 5 which are fractional with Petoskey and the Hudson township school district fractional with Vanderbilt which received 7½ mills.

The state equalized valuation of the county, on which the above millage will be levied, has been set at $33,118,300, an increase of $426,600 over last year's valuation figure of $32,691,700.

Schools throughout Charlevoix county, including the city of Charlevoix, received a total of $23,975 from Michigan Bell's payment.

The payments were based on a school census of 1,068 in Charlevoix and 4,148 in the county.

ODDS 'N ENDS

BY FRAN MARTIN

WE WERE SO disappointed . . . when we didn't find the flower baskets out . . . Memorial Day has come to mark the first appearance of Charlevoix's famous hanging flower baskets but the unusually (?) cold weather made it necessary to postpone their appearance until some later date.

JUNE IS BUSTIN' out all over, like the song says . . . We might add that it's about time . . . Only another three weeks and it's going to be summer . . . at least on the calendar, so it would be nice to have a little spring first . . . The apple blossoms outside our window were in full bloom over the weekend . . . a heavenly sight, to say the least.

DID YOU EVER see as many people around over an early holiday weeeknd as were here the last few days . . . Guess Charlevoix wasn't alone in noticing the many newcomers and passers-through . . . There are certain amount of people who come and go over holiday weekends . . . You may never get to know them but you recognize them as people you've seen before . . . Those visitors last weekend tho' were people we'd never laid eyes on before . . . and so many of them . . . Now if the summer resort business can be as good . . . why, we have got it made . . . So keep your fingers crossed.

WE WERE WATCHING traffic at the bridge with Bill Bellinger the other day . . . He was telling us there were a lot of old-timers around . . . people who'd grown up here and were here just for a visit . . . Whether they were returning for an annual visit or making a once or twice in a lifetime return visit to Charlevoix we don't know, but they were returning and that's the important thing.

A FEW WEEKS AGO we had occasion to be at school for some event . . . We happened to be sitting near a group of seventh grade students who were discussing their history assignments . . . One group was studying about the major battles of the Pacific during World War II and another was learning about the men who had made history . . . As we listened to them discuss places which we had learned about because our friends and relatives were there and about men such as Hitler, Mussolini and others who had made history in our lifetime we began to feel mighty old and just a little learned . . .

We were tempted to add a few sidelights to their history book lesson but we didn't.

So when we mention that it was just 14 years ago tomorrow, June 6, that the allied forces went ashore at Normandy on a day that's become known as D-Day . . . just another date in history for this and future generations to learn . . . we feel a century or so old although it seems like year before last . . . However, it means more than just another day to the parents of this generation studying that same history for all too many of them were on those beaches and recall all too vividly that and months that followed . . . History is a funny thing . . . and we don't mean funny—ha-ha . . . When you see it being made you take it in your stride . . . and afterwards you wonder how you had the courage . . . to even live thru it, much less be a part of it.

AND SPEAKING of history . . . heaven help the history book writers who must condense this century into a few chapters . . . It's going to be quite a chore because we think you'll agree that if this old world is still around come the 21st century, its history is going to be something . . . three major wars, miracle drugs, bombs of every description, satellites and only the good Lord knows now what else in the next 41½ years.

OUR GIRL SCOUTS will be taking off for troop camp this weekend and our little Brownies will be going to Day Camp come Monday . . . We hope they'll have a wonderful time and that the weather will be perfect so that they can enjoy every one of the many events that have been planned for them by the Girl Scout Council.

These kids get to go camp because there are a host of wonderful, generous adults who give of their time and talents so that these youngsters can know the fun of camp . . . and believe us, it's mighty important that they do know this . . . So we hope that all you parents . . . and Scouts, too . . . appreciate what's being done for you . . . And to all those grand people who are making camp possible, a huge bouquet of the prettiest orchids to

Miss Connie Kay Paul Married In Double Ring Church Ceremony

Connie Kay Paul, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Paul, became the bride of Jerry LaVerne Dawson of Eastport at a double ring service solemnized at the Community Church of God Saturday evening.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. Grace Dawson of Eastport and Edward Dawson of Saginaw.

The Rev. George L. Majors officiated at the ceremony in the presence of more than 80 guests. Baskets of gladioli and snapdragons flanked by candelabra decorated the church for the occasion.

Mrs. Lee Moerland sang "An Affair to Remember" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. Leonard Burns who also played a program of traditional music and the wedding marches.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a gown of white silk and nylon for her wedding. It was fashioned with a fitted bodice, cap sleeves, round neckline and full skirt. Her fingertip veil fell from a crown studded with rhinestones. She carried a cascade bouquet of white feathered carnations and lilies of the valley centered with red sweetheart roses.

Carol Rae Paul as her sister's only attendant wore a ballerina length gown of baby blue trimmed with Cotillion blue, a matching headpiece of blue netting on a cloche style head band and carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and red sweetheart roses.

Arnold L. McPherson of Eastport assisted the bridegroom as best man. Leonard Dawson of Eastport and Robert Prause of Central Lake, brother and cousin respectively of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Mrs. Paul chose a navy and white gown and white accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Dawson, mother of the bridegroom, wore a navy and white dress and white accessories. Each had a corsage of pink carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents at Pine Point. The refreshment table was centered with a tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal couple. Pink and white streamers and wedding bells decorated the dining room.

For traveling on a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the bride wore a light gray suit, white accessories and a red rose corsage.

The bride is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and the Melba Beauty Academy in Lansing. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Central Lake high school and a veteran of four years service with the U. S. Air Force.

Venturesome Deer Visits North Side Residential Area

For years now, a venturesome deer makes its way into town. This year was no exception.

Shortly after noon Tuesday a young buck was sighted as it jumped into Pine River from the rocks that form the north breakwater. As it started swimming toward the bridge, Chief D. L. Reynolds of the Charlevoix lifeboat station on the south bank of the river dispatched a patrol boat to 'round up' the animal. Frightened by the boat, it left the river west of the Weathervane Inn, scrambled up the bank and raced north through the yards between Pine River Lane and West Dixon ave Crossing West Dixon ave. at the Beach Hotel it found its way to the drive at the Ralph Hess residence on Michigan ave. where it crossed the highway at Ainslee ave and was last seen racing north on the lawns that border the east side of Michigan ave.

Damascus, a subsidiary capital to Cairo since the merger of Syria and Egypt into the United Arab Republic February 1, is the oldest continuously inhabited city in the world. It was in existence in 2,000 B.C. Today Damascus is an industrial and commercial center with about 400,000 population.

Trout usually lie in the water with their heads facing the current: therefore bait drifting down on them appears natural and is more effective.

Michigan Mirror

By Elmer White

A STATE INCOME TAX is being pushed by economists and government leaders.

A new levy is expected to be the key point of the search for more money during the 1959 legislative session, hard on the heels of a heated election year.

INCOME TAX, long thought to be the fairest levy possible, remained as a theory for Michigan until the legislative tax study committee came up with a tentative report a week ago.

"Even as a flat rate tax, it is the most equitable and progressing levy," said the report.

Experts working with the committee said that the heaviest tax burden now falls on low-income groups, while the income tax is spread with equal impact over all income groups.

OTHER SECTIONS of the report, however, said that low-income groups, which now pay a disproportionate share of the state's revenue, benefit most from the services the state offers.

The report pointed to welfare and other items aimed directly for the benefit of the indigent.

In Michigan, the constitution requires uniform taxation rather than allowing a graduated tax schedule, similar to that used in computing the brackets of the federal income tax.

THE WAY around that, lawmakers of the committee said, is to levy a uniform tax by rate and provide exemption, either $600 a year like the Federal government or $1,000 a year, like some states.

Republicans, cognizant of the state's financial crises, appropriated extra money for the legislative budget because they anticipate a longer session in 1959 to handle tax problems.

THE INNCOME TAX has drawn theoretical — but not necessarily political — support from key figures in both the Democrat and Republican parties.

The timing of the legislative study took them off the hook in an election year.

SEVERAL YEARS ago, an income tax proposal came before the legislature with a $10,000 exemption and reductions of the sales tax on food, but failed to get out of committee.

The only outspoken advocate of the income tax in recent years has been Senator Frank Andrews (R-Hillman), who said he considered it "the fairest and most sensible tax available."

Whether it becomes law in Michigan and the details of exemptions and the rate will be the questions posed to the lawmakers next winter.

NO MASS LAYOFFS in state government because of the economy budget are expected to materialize.

Most state agencies plan to allow vacancies to exist when workers retire or resign, but threats of discharges of up to 1,000 public employes have practically evaporated.

The lifeline of most agencies is the lump sum flexibility of the 1958-59 budget.

In past years, money was earmarked for half a dozen different functions of each department —so much for salaries and wages, contractual services and supplies and special projects.

THE NEW BUDGET allows agencies to transfer funds from the contractual services and supplies account to the salary account, for instance.

In past years, agencies ran short in some accounts and would end up with surpluses in others. But they were not allowed to balance out the money to spread over their entire operation.

Now they can. It will mean less money turned back unspent to the treasury, but it will also mean a lower deficiency bill deficit spending and surpluses within a single department.

CONSUMERS Power Co. is seeking a $15,300,000 electric service rate increase for the first time since 1950 for more than 300,000 customers in 61 outstate counties.

The company said that living costs have jumped 18 percent since its last rate increase.

Wage adjustments and expension of service during that period, plus the need for further development to meet "the growing demands of the economy" were cited as major reasons.

Though normally silent, porcupines can make noises ranging from a snorting bark to a kind of scream.

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOLS
Minutes Of School Board Meeting
June 2, 1958

Present: Lieberman, Boss, Smith, Hawley, Bennett, Supt. Absent: Dr. Martin.

The meeting was called to order at 8:20 p.m.

Minutes of the meeting of May 16 were read and approved.

Moved by Smith and supported by Boss that bills in the amount of $2,154.79 be approved and ordered paid. Motion carried: 4-0.

Mr. Gordon H. Stow and Dr. Donald M. Archambeau, architects associated with the Warren Holmes Co. of Lansing, met with the Board.

The speech correction program, with its significance and worthwhile results, was discussed and assurance given that a report will be made to the public on the numbers involved and the work completed.

Mr. Smith made a report from the Allocation Board of 7 mills for schools for the coming year 1958-59. With the knowledge that that would not meet the budget requirements for the coming year, discussion of what to do was carried on for sometime but no decision reached.

Motion was made by Hawley, supported by Boss, that the question "Shall the Board of Education be given the authority to sell the property known as the North Side School?" be presented on a ballot for the July 14 election. Carried; 4-0.

Maintenance of the football field was planned and a sprinkling system considered for investigation.

Further investigation was suggested as to the cause of the recent bus incident in which a wheel fell off.

The meeting adjourned at 11 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,
Albert H. Smith, Secretary

LOCAL JOHN DEERE DEALER PUTS ON ONE-MAN HAY DAY

A One-Man Hay Day Demonstration will be held June 12, 10:00 a.m., at the Jerry Aardema farm north of Central Lake on M-88, according to Conrad Klooster, Inc., the local John Deere dealer.

At the One-Man Hay Day, a single operator will demonstrate a practical system by which one man can mow, condition, rake, bale, and store hay automatically. Two new machines, the Automatic Bale Ejector Attachment for the baler and the Barn Conveyor, enable one man to perform all these operations alone.

The bale ejector attachment loads wagons automatically. The baler is set to make half-sized bales, which the ejector tosses into a wagon trailing behind. The bale ejector eliminates men on the wagon, bale pickup men, and other field help.

The elevator and barn conveyor store bales automatically. One man feeds the bales into the elevator hopper with a fork, to be guided up the elevator to the bale conveyor.

The bale conveyor takes bales from the elevator and distributes them through the full length of the barn at 10-foot intervals. No stacking is required. The small bales tumble into place, filling the barn to conveyor height for efficient use of storage space. The conveyor, which is driven electrically, is hung from the hay track or the barn ridge pole.

Half-sized bale offers many labor saving advantages. They not only store themselves with no lifting or stacking, but they are easier to unload . . . easier to get out of the mow . . . easier to handle at feeding time.

Conrad Klooster, Inc., invites all farmers, and their families, too, to come and see the John Deere One-Man Hay Day Demonstration, on June 12, 10:00 a.m., at the Jerry Aardema farm north of Central Lake on M-88. This demonstration is being held to show farmers that one man alone can put up his hay from standing crop to storage.

In case of rain, a new date will be announced.

ADVENTURES IN UNDERSTANDING

Notes from A Northerner's Diary

By Harold E. Kohn

Some Incarnations I Have Known

The word "incarnation" refers to a theological idea dear to Christians everywhere the embodiment of God in human flesh in the person of Jesus Christ. The word comes from the Latin meaning "in flesh." But long before there was a doctrine of incarnation early Christians had experiences with Jesus that made such a teaching inevitable. He made God seem near, believable, and in some measure understandable. He showed to them in what He said, in what He did and in what He was something of what God is like. They believed that if they could grasp what Jesus would do in any situation they would then know what God would have them do in the same circumstances, because He so perfectly embodied the will of God. God seemed far away. Jesus was near. God was unseen. Jesus was visible, audible, touchable. God seemed abstract. Jesus was God in a carpenter's apron, wielding a mallet and chisel, or God in friendship and conversation. God with helping hands.

The doctrine of the incarnation is an attempt to put into words something that most of us feel is true about life's best and worst. The good and the evil alike are constantly seeking embodiment.

It is nearly impossible to think of beauty in the abstract. It is far easier and more natural to think of something in particular that is beautiful — a timid doe with her month-old fawn appearing at our brook's edge, the amber waters of a stream dancing and singing around stones and logs, or the sound of an exuberant song-sparrow's bubbling music. Try to hold the idea of beauty in your mind for a moment. Abstract it from every form, sound, odor and feeling if you can. Try to keep this abstraction detached from all your experiences with lovely things. There now, see how impossible it is to maintain such an abstraction for long? The idea of beauty persists in becoming clothed in some experience—with sunsets or stars, animals or persons, sights or sounds. Beauty demands embodiment.

Evil, a well as good, detests abstractions and constantly seeks some concrete expression. It pushes itself into the experience of man in the forms of needless suffering, or in a particular crime or an injustice, in floods, tornadoes and droughts, in scatter brained driving on the highways, in slums and abject poverty. Evil employs the strategem of getting itself mixed up in homes, in politics, in clubs and even in churches, where it can be expressed in irritability or underhandedness, jealousy and bigotry, or in any of a multitude of slightly disguised forms. Evil takes on flesh and reveals itself in a Hitler or Stalin, a John Dillinger or Al Capone, in a gossiper, a chronic hater, or a belittler. If evil would only remain formless, disembodied, how innocuous it would be!

This is the glory of the incarnation of God — it need not be confined to the birth of Christ. It can happen again and again. Never again will it occur just as it did in Bethlehem, for there could only be one of Him, but to the measure of our smaller capacity God still invests Himself in something tangible and touchable.

His love of beauty I have seen in the cobalt-colored waters of an inland lake, in the flash of a white-tail deer streaking thru a forest glade and in the limpid lavender of a wild violet's face.

His truth I have seen framed by a child's guileless bold tongue and lips, in a child who "knows no better" than to speak his mind, and in the candor of a friend who would rather speak the plain fact that hurts than the flattery that soothes.

His goodness I have observed in an old man, who through much abused and maligned, refused to hate and forgave. I have seen it in the life of one whose response to being kicked was to love.

His greatness I have seen in the bigness of some people I know whose helpful hands know neither race nor class nor creed but whose concern for all is so inclusive that their arms are stretched toward any who will turn to them.

These are some incarnations I have known. God still seeks to clothe Himself in flesh. Shall we give Him a chance? In ours?

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

The Woodchuck Wouldn't "Chuck"

Lady called up our newspaper and asked how to get a woodchuck out of her garage. I referred her to young Chip Wilkins, our Field and Wildlife Editor.

"That's easy," says Chip. "Just roll some bread into pellets, and make a trail of them leading out of the garage."

Next day she called Chip again. "You sure are smart," she coo-ed, "to know a woodchuck will follow a trail of breadcrumbs. Now I've got two woodchucks in the garage!"

From where I sit, sometimes "expert advice" turns out to be not so expert. Reminds me of those who are always ready to advise us how to relax...how to work...whether or not to prefer coffee (for instance) to a glass of beer. I think a lot of us ought to think twice before advising people to do this thing or that thing. In the long run, it will make us all better neighbors.

Charlevoix Extends Welcome to Cutter Sundew

Councils Adopts Regulations Governing Commercial Docks

The Charlevoix city council, at its regular meeting Monday night, read a communication from the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, designated several slips on the waterfront as commercial docks from Sept. 15 to June 15, adopted conditions of a lease with the Manthei Brothers for use of a berth at the municipal dock, renewed a lease with the Selective Service board for office space and approved current bills.

The communication from the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was tabled until a report from the auditors on the financial situation of the city was available.

Dock slips 39 through 44 located north of the Model Home laundry on the waterfront were designated as commercial docks from Sept. 15 to June 15 and were made available for rental at the rate of $125 for the nine-months period or $20 per month for a shorter period. All rentals will be payable in advance. The docks will be under the supervision of Harbor Master King Saunders who will enforce the rules and regulations of the dock ordinance. If these are violated he may evict renters from the dock and their money will be refunded.

The Manthei Brothers, owners of the freighter Mackinac Islander, were granted permission in a lease to use Berth A at the commercial dock at the rate of $125 per year plus the following charges: 50c per thousand feet for logs, 25c per thousand feet of lumber and 25c per ton for all other freight. It was further stipulated that if the boat is not loading or unloading cargo it must relinquish the berth to any other ship which may need it for taking on or discharging a cargo. The lease will become effective at once.

The council also voted to renew its lease with the Selective Service board for office space in the city hall for a five year period beginning July 1 this year and ending June 30, 1963 at the rate of $30 per month under the conditions of the present lease.

It was also decided to install three 12-minute parking meters on the north side of Mason st. east of the post office.

Bills amounting to $16,507.33 were approved and ordered paid.

Two Candidates File Petitions For Probate Judge

Two more candidates for the post of probate judge in Charlevoix county have filed nominating petitions, according to County Clerk F. R. Bulow.

They are C. M. Bice, former county prosecutor and Dr. Russell E. Palmer, former Beaver Island physician who now makes his home here.

They will oppose William T. Downs of East Jordan who was appointed to the office in March to succeed the late Floyd A. Supp. They will seek the nomination on the non-partisan ballot.

Other candidates who have filed nominating petitions are incumbents, F. R. Bulow, county clerk; Mary C. Feindt, county surveyor and Samuel E. Rogers of East Jordan, county road commissioner. The latter will be seeking the nomination after having been appointed to the post by the board of supervisors. All are candidates on the Republican ballot.

Earlier incumbents Glenn E. Rose, sheriff and Harvey C. Varnum, prosecutor, filed petitions on the Republican ballot and Mr. Downs became a candidate on the non-partisan ballot.

CC Membership Nears 65 Per Cent Of Planned Goal

The membership fund drive by the new Charlevix Chamber of Commerce is close to 65 percent of the goal, Tom Symons, secretary manager announced Wednesday.

The problem confronting the finance chairman, Robert Lieberman, now is to get help in soliciting the businesses that have not as yet been contacted. While many persons have voluntarily subscribed to the membership, there are others who are waiting to be solicited. He urges any person who has some time he can devote to soliciting to see Mr. Lieberman.

The Chamber of Commerce office and information building in East Park is now open to visitors seven days a week.

Mr. Symons also states that they have a number of applications from persons who want summer work. Names of applicants may be obtained at the office.

Open Softball Season With Game Tuesday

The city softball season will open Tuesday at Kipke field with last year's championship Ellsworth team going against a much improved Freedman Artcraft nine according to Dean Davenport, softball director.

The game will mark the opening of what promises to be the finest season yet with six teams Ellsworth, Freedman, American Mold, U. S. Coast Guard, Airport Bar and Boyne City, playing regularly.

In addition there will be four Class B league teams composed of boys in the 13 to 17 age group and the ever popular peanut league composed of youngsters eight through 12 years of age.

In the game Tuesday night, Ellsworth will send big Bob Klooster to face Ted Potter who has been a standout in past seasons for Freedman's.

ON WEDNESDAY night the U. S. Coast Guard, bolstered by the return of pitcher Ed Culbertson to the line-up, will take on Boyne City, a newcomer to the local league.

The service team will feature many new players from the station and the cutter Sundew which will now make Charlevoix its home port.

A peanut league game between Mort's Cardinals and the Pirates will be played at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Last week 107 youngsters reported for practice with this league and were drafted by the six team managers.

Chamber Calls Merchants Meet

Three important issues will be discussed at a special meeting of the retail devision of the Charlevox Chamber of Commerce to be held at the community room of the city hall at 8 p.m. tonight (Thursday).

All retail businesses including those which offer services are urged to send representatives to this meeting.

Among the issues to be discussed are keeping business places open until 9 p.m. Saturday, applying for an SDT license for one store in town and the growing problem of shop lifting.

Several other items are on the agenda and may be brought up for discussion.

Suspend Salvage Operation of "Cuka"

Attempts of skin divers to raise the old schooner, "Cuka," from the floor of Lake Charlevoix by means of specially designed "balloons" was discontinued for the present, Calvin Nelson, designer of the bags has announced.

A question of title to the vessel has been raised and until that is clarified the salvage operation will be suspended, Mr. Nelson said.

Using equipment owned and operated by James Sawtell, well known local diver, the salvage work was started Saturday. By Tuesday night two of the deflated neoprene covered nylon bags had been attached to the hull and one bag partially inflated. A third bag had been anchored to the wreck when work was stopped by severe weather.

Wednesday morning the anchored bag was missing. It is believed to have been broken loose from the anchor by high winds and may possibly be floating some place in Lake Charlevoix. Search by airplane has been unsuccessful in locating the bag. Mr. Nelson says he will reward the finder and asks that the bag be returned to the Charlevoix Courier.

MR. NELSON SAYS he hopes to return to Charlevoix in the future to resume the salvage operation, principally to prove the practicability of the bags he has designed.

He said the extend of the operation conducted here convinced him the technique is sound.

Each of the bags when inflated has a 12 ton displacement, which would equal a 48 ton displacement if four bags were attached to the "Cuka" which is believed to weigh about 40 tons. Theoretically that should be sufficient to float the vessel.

Assisting Sawtell in the operation were Doug Smith and Paul LaBlance, local divers, and a number of southern Michigan divers who joined in the operation at various times.

Salvage is a side line hobby of Mr. Nelson's. He and Mrs. Nelson plan to remain here for the remainder of the week for a little more "vacation" before returning to his insurance business at Dearborn. Dispite the loss of the one "Balloon" he says he has had an enjoyable time here and is looking forward to a return visit.

Graduation Speaker Advises Seniors to Live With Changes

Learn to live in a changing world and do not be afraid to dream, Dr. William J. McKeefery, Dean of Alma College told the 1958 graduating class of the Charlevoix high school at the 70th annual commencement exercises held Wednesday night at the high school auditorium.

He also advised them not to fear the new nor scorn the old but to learn to relax in these changing times.

"This is a big, wide beautiful world in which you must dare to dream and in whose future you must invest yourself. Know your limitations, give of yourself, make the best decision you know how and it will always remain that way," he concluded.

His inspiring address was followed by the awarding of diplomas by John L. Boss of the board of education to the 50 graduates.

Let's Practice Safety

Beginning of the summer vacation for school children always presents a hazard to the foot-loose and energetic youngsters with the result that the accident and fatality rate jumps. This is especially true with respect to children on streets and highways.

Eliminating the possibility of these accidents is a three-way responsibility of parents, children, and drivers of motor vehicles.

We would do well to heed the rules for safety presented as a part of the June Courtesy and Safety Campaign of the Michigan Trucking association.

1. Know where your children are playing at all times. Keep younger children under your own supervision or that of a reliable adult.

2. Discourage children from playing in the street. Instruct them to use a playground or a "play street."

3. Children need constant reminders to play safely. Particularly warn them of the danger of running into the street. A ball can be replaced, a child cannot.

4. Do not allow your children to use wagons and tricycles in the street. Remind older children that, under the law, that they have much the same rights and duties as the drivers of motor vehicles. They must keep to the right and obey traffic signs and signals.

5. Set a good example for your children by looking both ways before crossing streets, by using crosswalks, and by crossing with the light.

Drivers of motor vehicles have a definite responsibility, too. They should be especially alert for the child who at any moment may thoughtlessly dash into the street. Drivers, too, should be setting an example for the young fry by observing all traffic rules. A child's life is far more important than the few minutes saved in disregarding traffic safety.

ODDS 'N ENDS

BY FRAN MARTIN

SCHOOL'S OUT . . . but before we scratch the subject from our list til-fall, we'd like to mention a couple things . . . First, to the motorists . . . don't you forget that school's out and all those little people who fill our classrooms daily are now enjoying a vacation from school . . . and all too often from the safety habits they've been taught . . . They don't mean to dash in front of your car, or fall from a bike as you pass but they are just little people and they forget . . . So won't you be a little more careful as yu drive down the street . . . It may not be your fault if you hit a child . . . but that's going to be small consolation the rest of your life.

WE WENT TO graduation the other night and saw 50 swell kids receive their diplomas . . . something they've worked for for some 13 years . . . And now that they have those diplomas we can't help but wonder what they will do . . . We hope that each of them will do something very worthwhile in this world.

WE WERE AMAZED at the number of scholarships that this class recevied . . . this in itself speaks well for the members of the class because we're sure that these people will do well . . . But scholarships are not a requsite to a success . . . Just note the number of former Charlevoix students who are graduating from colleges and universities this year . . . and not too many of them did it on scholarships . . .

As we watched those seniors receive their diplomas the other night and as we write stories each week of those graduating from higher institutions of learning, we can't help but be more than a little proud . . . not only of the students but of their parents, teachers and the town for i these things we're made important to these youngsters they would not strive so hard to accomplish what they do.

IT WAS A proud day for Mrs. Floyd Ikens recently when she attended graduation at the U. S. Coast Guard Academy in Groton, Conn., last week t osee her grandson, Curtis Ikens, receive his diploma and an ensign's commission in the U. S. Coast Guard . . . But adding to the thrill for her was the fact that he received that diploma from a former Charlevoixian, Capt. Willard J. Smith, who is now Commandant in charge of cadets at the Academy . . . On hand for the event was Capt. Smith's mother, Mrs. Oscar Smith, who is visiting in the east.

CHARLEVOIX got around recently via a U. P. press release on our porch lights . . . The Wilson Bakers returned home with a copy of the story which appeared in the Indianapolis, Ind., News carrying the headline "Town Fathers pay porch light bill for residents" and Gus Fochtman brought us another from the Buffalo, N. Y., Courier-Express . . . this one under the headling "Porchlights glow City foots bill" . . So we're famous for something . . . which we as residents take pretty much for granted . . . well-lighted streets because the city foots the bill for porchlights.

WE'RE SORRY we neglected to mention it last week but the summer season has officially opened in Charlevoix . . . The J. H. Kings have arrived from Chicago and Earl D. Babst from New York to spend the summer on the Chicago Club . . . What the robin is to Springs these people are to the summer season in Charlevoix . . . So welcome to these early birds . . . We're real happy to have you with us.

Do Faraway Pastures Look Greener?

That proverb has fooled some car buyers and some car dealers. Let's not fool ourselves. There's more to our business than just selling automobiles. We aim to provide a dependable and permanent service, available at all times to every car owner in the area.

You may be sure when you buy a new Cadillac, Pontiac or used car from Uhrick today, you'll have service tomorrow. That's when you'll discover that home pastures are the greenest.

Let me tell you what I saved when I drove a new Plymouth...then bought one!

Just like a lot of other people, I was putting off buying a new car . . . even though we sure needed one. Then I found out what my Plymouth dealer was offering in the way of low prices and really big trades.

Mister, when I saw what I saved I knew there was no use putting off any longer! Got more for my old car than I believed possible. (Plymouth dealers need used cars and can sell all they get!) Got a terrifically low price on the new Plymouth . . . and choice of models besides . . . hardtops, sedans, convertibles, wagons.

And I saved a cool $140 on the ride alone! Plymouth's top-luxury ride, Torsion-Aire Ride, is standard at no extra cost, while you have to pay up to $140 for the top ride of competing "low-price 3" cars.

What's more, I got the car that proved it can save me gasoline, by winning the 1958 Mobilgas Economy Run. A car with Silver Dart Styling that is so far ahead right now it will still be worth more when I trade. With the kind of easy handling that makes every minute of driving a downright thrill! The stamina to stand up without nagging adjustments and big repairs . . . a car as much better built as it is better looking!

Any wonder I quit waiting? Take my tip . . . get your Plymouth bargain right now.

Twenty-eight members of the junior and senior classes of the Charlevoix high school were inducted into the recently-organized Charlevoix chapter of the National Honor Society of Secondary Schools at an impressive ceremony held Tuesday evening at the high school band room.

Parents and friends witnessed the induction of the charter members into the Society whose membership is based on the cardinal qualities of character, scholarship, leadership and service.

IN SPEAKING to the members prior to the induction ceremony, C. A. Odmark, one of four faculty sponsors said "No honor conferred by the high school excels that represented by the National Honor Society. It represents the fundamental objectives for which schools are instituted and gives recognition to those who have attained most nearly the desired ends. This Society looks upon education as a total product measured by the four dimensions of life. In your election to this Society, the faculty is honoring you for the attainments already made and for the promise they contain of continued excellence in the cherished ideals of this school."

As Mr. Odmark presented the candidates for membership, Mrs. Robert G. Martin and Mrs. Harold E. Kohn, other faculty sponsors, pinned the members.

H. E. Bingham, high school principal and the fourth faculty sponsor, then presented the charter of the new chapter, known as the Charlevoix chapter, to Supt. R. G. Bennett who commended the students on achieving the goals set forth by the Society and emphasized the importance of these qualities throughout life.

Six Charlevoix residents will be among the graduates who will receive degrees from the University of Michigan at commencement exercises to be held in Ann Arbor Saturday.

They are Robert E. Shanahan and Bradford S. Foster who will be graduated with Doctor of Medicine degrees from the University's School of Medicine; Howard R. Timmer with a B.A. degree from the School of Business Administration; Cynthia L. Smith, a B.S. degree from the School of Nursing and Niel R. Suomela and Victor J. Gibbons with M.A. degrees from the School of Education.

Dr. Shanahan, son of Cmdr. and Mrs. E. K. Shanahan, will receive his degree on the 64th anniversary of the graduation of his grandfather, the late beloved Dr. R. B Armstrong, from the University in that institution's first four-year medical class.

He will intern at New York-Cornell Hospital in New York City beginning July 1st.

He is a member of Nu Sigma Nu and Theta Xi fraternities. He is married to the former Mary Lou Moss of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio. They have two children, Patrick and Mary Kim.

Dr. Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bradford V. Foster, will intern at St. Mary's hospital in Grand Rapids. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Kappa fraternity and is married to the former Joyce Wyma of Grand Rapids.

Mr. Timmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Timmer, will receive a Bachelor of Arts degree in Business Administration. He attended Calvin College in Grand Rapids for three years before transferring to the University.

Miss Smith, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. H. E. Paddock, will receive a Bachelor of Science in Nursing Education. Later this summer she will write a state board examintaion for her Registered Nurse's degree.

Both Mr. Suomela and Mr. Gibbons will be awarded Master of Arts degrees in education.

Mr. Suomela is a 1954 graduate of Central Michigan College and served two years in the U. S. Army and taught at Midland and Coleman before completing his studies at the University this year.

He has accepted a position in the Grosse Pointe schools.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Uno Sumela, he is married to the former Sally Harris of Bay City. They have a son, Scott.

Mr. Gibbons was graduated from the University with a B.A. degree in February 1957 and continued his studies toward a master's degree. He plans to enter the University Law School this fall.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. Gerald C. Gibbons, he is married to the former Elizabeth Dunham of West Lafayette, Ind.

Marilou VerWys Gets Interlochen Scholarship

Marilou VerWys, oboist with Charlevoix high school band, has been named to receive the annual Interlochen scholarship offered by the Charevoix Band Parents Association.

The scholarship gives the recipient two weeks at the National Music Camp at Interlochen late in July. A junior in the local high school next fall, Marilou will engage in various classes at the camp, receive special lessons on her instrument and become a member of the 150-piece All-State band.

Marilou is also an accomplished pianist, a student of Mrs. Gwendolen Wexstaff. The scholarship last year was won by David Miles and in 1956 by Ellen Miller, both recent graduates of the local high school.

Marilou is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abe VerWys.

Pedestrians killed by autos in the United States last year reached the tragic total of 7,500.

School Offers Summer Music Training Course

Enrollments for the annual Instrumental Music Summer program offered by the Charlevoix board of education are now being accepted.

The program is scheduled to begin June 23 and continue for seven weeks.

Open to all residents of the local school district, the program includes weekly lessons for the students, either privately or in small groups for specialized instruction on the various band instruments.

C. A. Odmark, music director of the Charlevoix public schools, will again conduct the program.

An enrollment fee of $3.00 is charged for the seven weeks program. The classes will be arranged to fit the various work and vacation schedules of the students.

At the close of school Friday more than 90 students had enrolled in the program. Mr. Odmark expects late enrollments to boost the total figure well over the record 101 students who participated in the 1957 summer program.

Anyone wishing to enroll may do so by calling the school office, LI 7-6583 during the week or Mr. Odmark after June 16.

Mrs. MacDowell Named President By Garden Club

Mrs. Malcolm MacDowell has been named president of the Charlevoix Garden club for the club year scheduled to begin in September. She succeeds Mrs. H. E. Paddock.

Other new officers are: first vice president, Mrs. R. G. Bennett; second vice president, Mrs. T. R. Miller and secretary treasurer, Mrs. A. H. Cameron.

The election was held during a coffee klatch at the home of Mrs. Paddock following the 'work day' last Tuesday when members met to plant flowers at Mercer Blvd. and the Coast Guard hill.

Plans were also made for the silver tea at the home of Mrs. Arlo Wickersham Tuesday. A tour of gardens at the Wickersham farm will be a feature of the event which is open to the public.

Friendly Kitchen

To get the most out of your kitchen, architects suggest that you select one of the durable softwoods for cabinets and paneling and then let the wood do the job of making the room cheerful and friendly.

Rougher The Better

For the man who doesn't like to paint his house any oftener than necessary, rough-sawn siding is the answer. It holds paint or stain about twice as long as planed wood, and such popular species as western red cedar and Douglas fir take paint exceedingly well.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather who passed away one year ago June 12, 1957.

Many a lonely heartache
Often a silent tear,
But always a beautiful memory
Of one we love so dear.
They say time heals all sorrow
And helps us to forget
But time has only proven
How much we miss you yet.
God gave us strength & courage
To bear the parting blow
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.

Mrs. Marion Jackson and family 25x

Registrations are now being accepted for the Puppet group conducted annually by Mrs. Dorothea Badger.

Classes will start Monday, June 23, and run for six weeks every morning Monday through Friday.

The group is open to children in the eight to 12 year age group interested in learning to make and manipulate puppets or marionettes.

ADVENTURES IN UNDERSTANDING

Notes from A Northerner's Diary

By Harold E. Kohn

A World of Opposites

The people I pity when summer comes are those who have missed winter in the North. They see what the rest of us see but without fully savoring it, just as victims of a heavy cold can eat a banquet meal but cannot taste delicate shades of flavoring.

Purple finches singing from our apple boughs mean more to those who have known the silence of winter to be broken only by an occasional chickadee's call. Apple blossoms and developing fruit seem more lively, vital, and richer with meaning if you have seen the same boughs, as somber as death, weighed down by snow and sleet. Grass looks greener when one remembers the pale whiteness of the land only a few months ago.

The natural world is full of sharp contrasts, winter and summer, high winds and dead calm, high hills and deep valleys, quiet ponds and turbulent streams, stygian darkness and brilliant lights, sunsets and dawns, and the enjoyment of Nature is found in seeing her in all her moods.

Life, too, is crammed full of opposites, and living a full life involves a recognition and appreciation of the contrasts.

- We must occasionally behold ugliness if we are to appreciate beauty.
- There can be no such thing as "high" unless there is also a "low."
- Without an East there could be no West, without a North, no South.
- We must experience noise if we are to savor the luxury of silence.
- We find the shade most genial when we have spent hours sweating under the hot sun.
- We must know hard work if we are to feel the pleasure of rest.
- Water is most delicious and refreshing when thirst is the greatest.
- We must have a sense of failure if we are to know the relief of forgiveness.
- Those who have never known harsh disappointment or deep grief can hardly attain a height of joy.
- Unless some crises has brought you to the brink of death shocked you with awareness of the brevity and delicacy of life, you can hardly appreciate the value of a year, or a month or a day of living.

Life's contrasts do two things for me. The awareness of life's opposites makes me impatient with the namby-pamby attitude that "It doesn't matter what you believe, as long as you believe something!" It does matter. It matters consumately. This is a world of opposing values where one must be taking sides constantly, and it matters what side you take. Liking the good in life involves disliking the bad, and loving the highest means detesting the mediocre. The gardener who loves flowers must also hate weeds.

Moreover, a consciousness of life's opposites makes me grateful for the undesirable and uncomfortable experiences that come my way, because I know that they heighten my enjoyment of the good.

Miss Frances Durance Retires After 30 Years as Public School Teacher

Miss Frances Durance, a teacher in the Ellsworth high school for the past five years, has retired after 30 years in the teaching profession.

She was honored Friday night at commencement exercises which marked the conclusion of the school year at Ellsworth.

Supt. Richard Lather paid tribut to her for her years of service and devotion to the profession and presented her with a bouquet of roses.

MISS DURANCE. who has missed less than two days of school because of illness during 30 years as a teacher, plans to make her home here and do many of the things she was unable to do because of other obligation.

A teacher of science and mathematics, she feels that these subjects have only in recent years come into their own.

"When I started teaching in 1913 it was difficult to get enough students for a class. Since World War II the number of students interested in these subjects have increased until this past year I had 40 students in chemistry and physics classes in a small Class D school.

SHE WENT on to say that in the beginning these subjects were for the few but with the development of atomic structure and with the increased interest in science and math the entire perspective has changed for both teacher and student.

The public as a whole has a different feeling toward the subjects. This is found in the children. Today science is a subject in which everyone is interested.

Students are in a position to learn more about it by taking science courses offered in the schools.

Awards and scholarships being offered in these fields are also adding to their importance.

"Great strides have been made in science in the past 25 years and the next few years promise even greater things," she went on, "I hate to leave it at this time but I feel I have to so from now on I will watch the progress as a spectator rather than a teacher of new things.

MISS DURANCE. who is a native of this community and who is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school, plans to make her home on the small family farm in Charlevoix township which is famous for its strawberries. She plans to continue to raise a few berries and to devote her times to things she's missed during the years . . . attending meetings of organizations to which she belongs and just coming and going as she pleases.

She has no long range plans but as she puts it, will live from day to day without having to make plans.

She is a member of the Eastern Star, the White Shrine, Rebekah lodge and the Congregational church where she has assumed a position as a Sunday school teacher.

MISS DURANCE started her teaching career in 1913 when she taught at the Ironton school for $55 per month after attending Valparaiso University in Valparaiso, Ind. Later she received her degree from Michigan State Normal College in Ypsilanti now known as Eastern Michigan University.

During the years she taught in Wisconsin and Illinois, returning to Michigan to serve as principal at Lake Orion, Oscoda and Boyne Falls. More recently she taught at Mackinaw City and Ellsworth.

During the depression years of the 1930's she left the teaching profession for nine years. During this time she traveled, spending the winters in the south and the summers in Charlevoix with her mother, the late Mrs. George Durance, and her brother, Alvin, a frequent visitor at the farm although he works in Detroit.

Rev. E. Francis Denay to Be Honored On 25th Anniversary of Ordination

The Rev. E. Francis Denay pastor of St. Mary's church here, will observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood of the Roman Catholic church Sunday.

The observance will include a Solemn Anniversary Mass at St. Mary's church at 11 a.m., a reception at St. Mary's school hall from 2 to 4 p.m. and a dinner for visiting priests and members of his immediate family at 6 p.m.

The Rev. Fr. C. Klimowicz of Elmira will deliver the sermon at the silver anniversary Mass at 11 a.m. Sunday. The Mass will be sung by the Men's choir of St. Mary's church in Bay City.

Parishioners and friends will gather at St. Mary's school hall between 2 and 4 p.m. Sunday to honor the Rev. Fr. Denay who has been pastor of the local church since April 1953.

At 6 p.m. he will be joined by fellow priests and members of his immediate family at a dinner at the school hall.

Born at Pinconning April 10, 1903, the Rev. Fr. Denay attended St. Michael's school there before enrolling at St. Joseph's Seminary in Grand Rapids to begin his college preparatory studies. From 1927 to 1933 he studied at Kenrick Seminary in St. Louis, Mo. He was ordained to the priesthood at SS Peter and Paul church in Grand Rapids Feb. 12, 1933.

Following his ordination he served as assistant at St. Mary's hospital, Holy Name church and St. Mary's church in Grand Rapids and St. Edward's church in Omer. Later he served as pastor at St. Catherine's church at Nicholson Hill, St. Mary's church in Manistee, St. Ann's church in Frankfort and St. Jerome's church in Scottville before coming here in April 1953.

Under his direction the present St. Mary's school was constructed. It is a one-story fireproof structure which houses four classrooms, an all-purpose room, full kitchen, office, library and other necessary rooms.

Members of his immediate family who will join him in the observance of his silver jubilee in the priesthood will be his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Denay of Bay City, four sisters, Sr. M. Ignatius of Detroit, Sr. M. Henry of Ann Arbor, Mrs. Arthur Martoin and Mrs. Joseph Turmell of Bay City and two brothers, Floyd Denay and Clifford, also of Bay City.

Earlier the students at St. Mar's school presented a pageant in honor of Fr. Denay's jubilee observance. The pageant, presented under the direction of Sr. Eileen and Sr. Scholastica, depicted the highlights of his life.

Milk Producers Convert to Bulk Handling

The ten gallon milk can, a back breaker to every dairy farmer in the country, is now obsolete in so far as the Charlevoix local of the Michigan Milk Producers Association is concerned. All dairy farmers supplying fluid milk to the Maxbauer Creamery have gone completely modern with the installation of bulk tank storage on the farm to bulk tank hauling to the creamery.

Purchase of a new insulated stainless steel hauling tank, mounted on a new 2½ ton Ford truck purchased from the Northern Auto Co., of Charlevoix, the conversion was completed. The new unit of 1800 gallon capacity is owned and operated by the producers association.

THIS FORWARD step by the producers means more than efficiency in handling milk. It assures the consumers in Charlevoix and vicinity of a high quality of milk transported and processed by the most modern and sanitary methods available.

From the milking machine on the farm the milk goes directly into tank coolers on the farm, thence pumped into the pick-up tank truck and again pumped into the storage tank coolers at the creamery.

The creamery then runs the milk through the pasteurizing and homogenizing machines. The milk is then ready to be bottled or put up in the Pure-Pak container. Again it is a machine operation. The whole process from milking machine to container eliminates most every possible chance for the milk to become in any way contaminated by human handling.

FURTHER PRECAUTIONS are taken to assure quality milk and maintain sanitation by numerous inspections and tests. The transport truck driver is licensed to inspect milk at the farm before transferring it to the tank tuck. The district health inspector is continually checking the farm equipment and premises and the creamery processing plant. Other state inspectors also make frequent checks.

Conversion from the can and cooler method of handling milk to the bulk tank method has been a costly investment to the producers supplying the Maxbauer Creamery, amounting to $1,500 and up per farm, according to John Weiland, secretary of the local producers association.

The creamery, too, has added a sizeable investment in the local plant which is now one of the most modern and extensively equipped in northwest Michigan, according to John Boss, local manager.

The Maxbauer Creamery was established here in 1939 by John Maxbauer, now a resident of Traverse City. Mr. Maxbauer has always followed aggressive policy of adopting new and improved methods that would assure a better quality product and increase the efficiency of the plant operation.

Honor Rev. Gold With Reception On Retirement

After the Children's Day worship service last Sunday morning, members and friends of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix gathered in Friendship Hall for a farewell reception honoring the Reverend A. R. Gold. Mr. Gold retired from the active ministry as of last Sunday, and will be living in Cedar Springs, Michigan.

Last September Mr. Gold interrupted his retirement plans to come to Charlevoix and assume the duties of interim minister at the Congregational Church. The minister, the Reverend Harold E. Kohn, was on a year's sick-leave from the parish ministry, and Mr. Gold, for many years a Congregational pastor in Michigan, consented to undertake preaching and pastoral responsibilities during this period.

At the reception refreshments were served, including a cake on which was inscribed, "Thank you, the Reverend A. R. Gold!" This simple testimonial witnessed to the profound gratitude people have felt for the sacrifice of time and talent Mr. Gold has made for many in this community.

Of the nearly five tons of diamonds mined annually, most go into industrial use. Diamonds cut steel, saw stone, shape bowling balls, polish dental fillings, and play much of the world's recorded music.

500 Nutrilite Distributors To Convene Here Two Days

More than 400 distributors of Nutrilite Food Supplement will meet at the Charlevoix Beach Hotel Friday for a two day sales conference.

Many of the distributors are planning to bring their families, thus increasing the total figure of visitors to well over 500 who will be here for two or more days.

This sales conference is one of many similar reginal conferences held throughout the nation for distributors of Nutrilite. This is the first time, however, that a Ri-Ta meeting of this size has been held in a resort area rather than in a convention city.

Richard DeVos and Jay VanAndel, both of Grand Rapids, who are sponsors of the conference being held here, report that of all resort areas in the state, Charlevoix seems most suited to the needs of their group and that they hope to return next year.

The distributors of Nutrilite food supplement who will be attending the meeting here this weekend are part of a sales organization of some 55,000 independent sales people operating under a unique marketing system established by the parent company, Mytinger and Casselberry, Inc., of Long Beach, Cal. The system allows the independent distributor to build a business of his own in the American tradition of free enterprise.

Among the distributors attending the Charlevoix conference will be those from Ohio, Illinois and Michigan plus a few from as far away as Iowa, New York and West Virginia.

Mr. DeVos and Mr. VanAndel, sponsors of this conference, have been with the national organization for nine years and are well known throughout the country for their sales training activities. Their activities were featured recently in a national sales publication. They and their families will be here for five days during the conference.

Book Relates Island History

A complete and authentic history of Beaver Island entitled "The Saga of Beaver Island" is just off the press according to D. Archie LaFreniere, president of the Beaver Island Civic Association, who is pictured above showing the attractive volume to one of the island's most ardent admirers, Joseph F. Howard.

Published by Braun and Bromfield Inc. of Ann Arbor, the book tells the exciting story of the conflicitng personalities whose lives wove the history of the island which is located northwest of here in northern Lake Michigan. In many instances the characters tell their own story for the authors, Margaret Cronyn and John Kenny, both of Detroit, who have taken extensive passages from missionery and Mormon letters of the hectic early days of island history.

The authors take the reader on a trip through history from the days of the Indians and the early French missionaries thru the stay of the Mormons who lived on the island under the reign of 'King' James Jesse Strang to the arrival of the first Irish settlers who re-named it the Emerald Isle of North America because it reminded them of their homeland.

Incumbents Seek Re-election on Republican Ticket

Interest in the forthcoming primary election August 5 is running high in Charlevoix county as contests on all ballots developed as the deadline for filing nominating petitions passed Tuesday.

Biggest surprise was the number of candidates seeking nomination on the Democratic ballot in this Republican stronghold.

For the first time in memory there is also a contest on the Democratic ticket with Minnie Webster DesJardins of East Jordan being opposed by Betty Jacobs Willey of Boyne City for the office of county treasurer.

OTHER CANDIDATES on the ballot are: register of deeds, Edna LaBlagee of this city; county clerk, James I. Kelts of Boyne City; sheriff, Frank W. Shaler of Boyne City; county road commissioner Ralph H. Hamill of Boyne City; surveyor, Henry G. Neesen jr. of Boyne City; drain commissioner, Quinton D. White of Charlevoix. Only office without a candidate is prosecuting attorney.

Only contest on the Republican ballot is for Charlevoix county road commissioner. Incumbent Samuel E. Rogers of East Jordan is being opposed by Ira L. Davis of Boyne City.

Only other newcomer on the ballot will be Dr. Robert G. Martin of this city who is a candidate for coroner to succeed Dr. L. E. Grate who is not seeking re-election. James D. Stackus of Boyne City is also a candidate. The county has two coroners so this is not a contest.

OTHER INCUMBENTS who will be candidates for re-election are: prosecuting attorney, Harvey C. Varnum; clerk, Fenton R. Bulow; treasurer, Lillis M. Flanders; register of deeds, Grover C. Geneit; sheriff, Glenn E. Rose; surveyor, Mary C. Feindt and circuit court commissioner, Norman D. Ance.

Three candidates are seeking the nomination for probate judge, on the non-partisan ballot. They are William T. Downs of East Jordan who was appointed to the post this spring to succeed the late Floyd A. Supp, Dr. Russell E. Palmer, former Beaver Island physician now living here and C. M. Bice, former county prosecutor. The two candidates receiving the most votes in the primary election will oppose each other in the general election.

Funeral Services Held Tuesday for Mrs. Frank Zoulek

Mrs. Frank Zoulek, 87, pioneer resident of northern Michigan died Saturday at the Charlevoix hospital where she had been a patient for nine days. She had been in failing health for several years.

Funeral services were held at St. Mary's Church Tuesday with the Rev. E. F. Neubecker of Beal City officiating. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery. Relatives and friends recited the Rosary at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

Born in Canada Oct. 17, 1869, the former Mary McAllister came to Grand Traverse county as a young woman. She was married to Mr. Zoulek at Mapleton. They operated a fruit farm near Old Mission until moviag to East Jordan in 1908. Mr. Zoulek preceded her in death on Feb. 16, 1933. She served as housekeeper for the Rev. Fr. Neubecker, former pastor at St. Mary's church here, and accompanied him when he was transferred to Lake Leelanau in 1940. She returned here to make her home 10 years ago. She was a member of St. Mary's church.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Pearl Richman and one grand-daughter, both of Kalamazoo.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN did a bit of alright in a recent article in the June issue of Sports Afield . . . Entitled "100,000 Square Miles of Smallmouth" and written by Byron W. Dalrymple it tells the story of bass fishing throughout this area . . . It mentions particularly Lake Charlevoix and, of course, Beaver Island . . . and other spots in this and other sections of the north where the tasty bass are found

AND SPEAKING of bass, the season opens this weekend and no doubt we'll be seeing some of our bass fishing friends around . . . including Sol Marcus from the east and Bill Jenkins from down Indiana-way . . . Unless it warms up a little they're going to freeze to death out there on that water . . . With the temperatures dropping nightly to the 40's it's hard to believe that summer's due here this week . . . Which everyone is finding hard to believe unless they look at a calendar.

THERE ARE A few signs of spring already here . . . For instance all the summer places that are opening up and down the street . . . and then there's the Beach Hotel that's opening with a couple conventions within the week . . . We hope all those visitors will have a 'warm' welcome to Charlevoix . . . weatherwise, that is . . . because we know it's going to be plenty warm otherwise with every one rolling out the red carpet.

AND DON'T forget the dedication of the Mackinac Bridge a week from now . . . That's going to be quite a deal and if things turn out as expected there's going to be a lot of people in the area . . . Wouldn't be a bit surprised if we had more than a few of them stopping by our way . . . Our band will be a part of it and if something can be found for our Boy Scouts to do, they will be going too.

THE SHRINE BAND and several other organizations traveling with them will spend the weekend here, appearing in concert here Saturday night . . . This will mark the organization's first visit to Charlevoix in years so we're sure everyone will turn out to hear them.

PERHAPS YOU have noticed all the hawthorn trees are in bloom and there are a lot of them . . . Don't think there's anything any prettier . . . and one of the prettiest is at the corner of Michigan and Ainslee . . . We watch it from our window and thoroughly enjoy it.

THERE'S A new book about to make its appearance on the newsstands . . . It's "The Saga of Beaver Island" written by two Detroit writers who've been coming to the island for years and who were so enthralled with the history of the former Mormon Kingdom that they did a lot of research and came up with this entertaining volume . . . They are John Kenny and Margaret Sroynu . . . Archie LaFreniere dropped in recently to give us a copy . . . Though we haven't had time to peruse it we've enjoyed reading excerpts here and there and have found it written in an entertaining way and filled with information about the Emerald Isle from the days of the Indians and the early French missionaries to Beaver Island today with a couple sections devoted to the Mormons and the island's Irish . . . Those who love the island and its fabulous history will thoroughly enjoy this . . . we know.

* * *

MRS. WILIAM FARKAS dropped in the other day to tell us of a rare sight she and her children had witnessed while driving near the Clarence Smith farm on the Boyne City road . . . A mother deer feeding her twin fawns . . . She didn't seem a bit alarmed when they stopped the car and watched for a while and the hungry little fawns went about the business at hand without flicking an ear . . . Gee, everyone gets to see all sorts of wild animals but we could travel the roads forever and never see a one.

WE DON'T KNOW much about killdeers but we do know they're a flighty bird, readily frightened by the presence of people . . . Guess everyone knows that about them . . . So imagine the surprise of everyone at Freedman Artcraft when one of the little birds usually found in meadows built its nest right along side one of the tracks outside the plant . . . By now the babies should be running around like little balls of fluff . . . After the first few days the mother bird tended strictly to her eggs and paid little attention to any one except when heavy equipment was in use.

Sylvia Lee Miles Becomes Bride of George H. Smith in Church Ceremony

Sylvia Lee Miles, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Walker A. Miles, became the bride of George H. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Smith, at an impressive ceremony solemnized Monday evening at the Community Church of God.

The Rev. George L. Majors officiated at the double ring service before an altar flanked by baskets of white gladioli and giant daisies and candelabra. Roger D. Sweet of Adrian at the organ played a program of traditional music and the wedding marches. He also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Lee Moerland.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a ballerina length gown of white nylon lace for her wedding. Hand clipped lace outlined the Sabrina neckline of the gown which had a fitted bodice and long sleeves. The full skirt had an insert of pleated white nylon in the front and a large lace bow added back interest. Her fingertip veil of tulle and lace fell from a seed-pearl tiara and she carried a white Bible topped with a single red rose and white streamers. The Bible had also been carried by her sister, Mrs. Sweet, at her wedding.

Kae Lewis was maid of honor and Priscilla Hamilton of Clarkston was bridesmaid. Their gowns were of net over taffeta in orchid and yellow respectively. They carried colonial bouquets of sweetheart roses.

Kathleen Miles, cousin of the bride, as flower girl wore a light blue nylon dress. Larry Feindt was ring bearer.

James Smith assisted his brother as best man. Bard Miles of Lansing and Angola, Ind., was groomsman. Jerry Paul and Edwin Mann seated the guests.

Mrs Miles selected a delft blue nylon lace dress, pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Smith, mother of the bridegroom, wore a beige crepe dress, white accessories and a white carnation corsage.

A reception followed at Fellowship hall which was decorated in a pink and white motif for the occasion. Seasonal flowers decorated the refreshment table which was centered with a tiered wedding cake.

For traveling on their wedding trip to Wisconsin the bride chose a red dress and matching accessories. After June 23 they will be at home at Burgess.

The bride is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school. Mr. Smith is employed by the Charlevoix county Road Commission.

Wedding guests were present from Lansing, Angola, Ind., Clarkston, Detroit and Omaha, Neb.

They don't go as far as they used to...and neither does property insurance based on 1945 values!

A house put up in 1945 could cost almost twice the amount to build or buy today! That's why property insurance that was adequate several years ago doesn't go nearly far enough now. Suppose fire struck your home? Would your insurance cover the full value of house and household contents . . . at today's prices? If not, call us for a property insurance checkup.

NUTRILITE DISTRIBUTORS

Earn "Top Ten" Awards

In a four month competition held from January 1 to April 30, 1958, the Top Ten out of some 3,000 Nutrilite Distributors in the Ja-Ri Corporation chain of agencies were determined on a competitive basis.

These distributors are to be honored at a special Award Banquet to be held in the Charlevoix Beach Hotel Friday evening, June 20. The Top Ten Awards are given on the basis of point scores earned by the distributors during the contest. Points were awarded for retail sales volume, for agency development through sponsoring of new distributors, for completion of home study courses in sales and nutritional information, for attendance at training meetings, and for other important phases of the work. We think it can truly be said that these distributors are the "Top" of the group, and we are proud to present them as the winners.

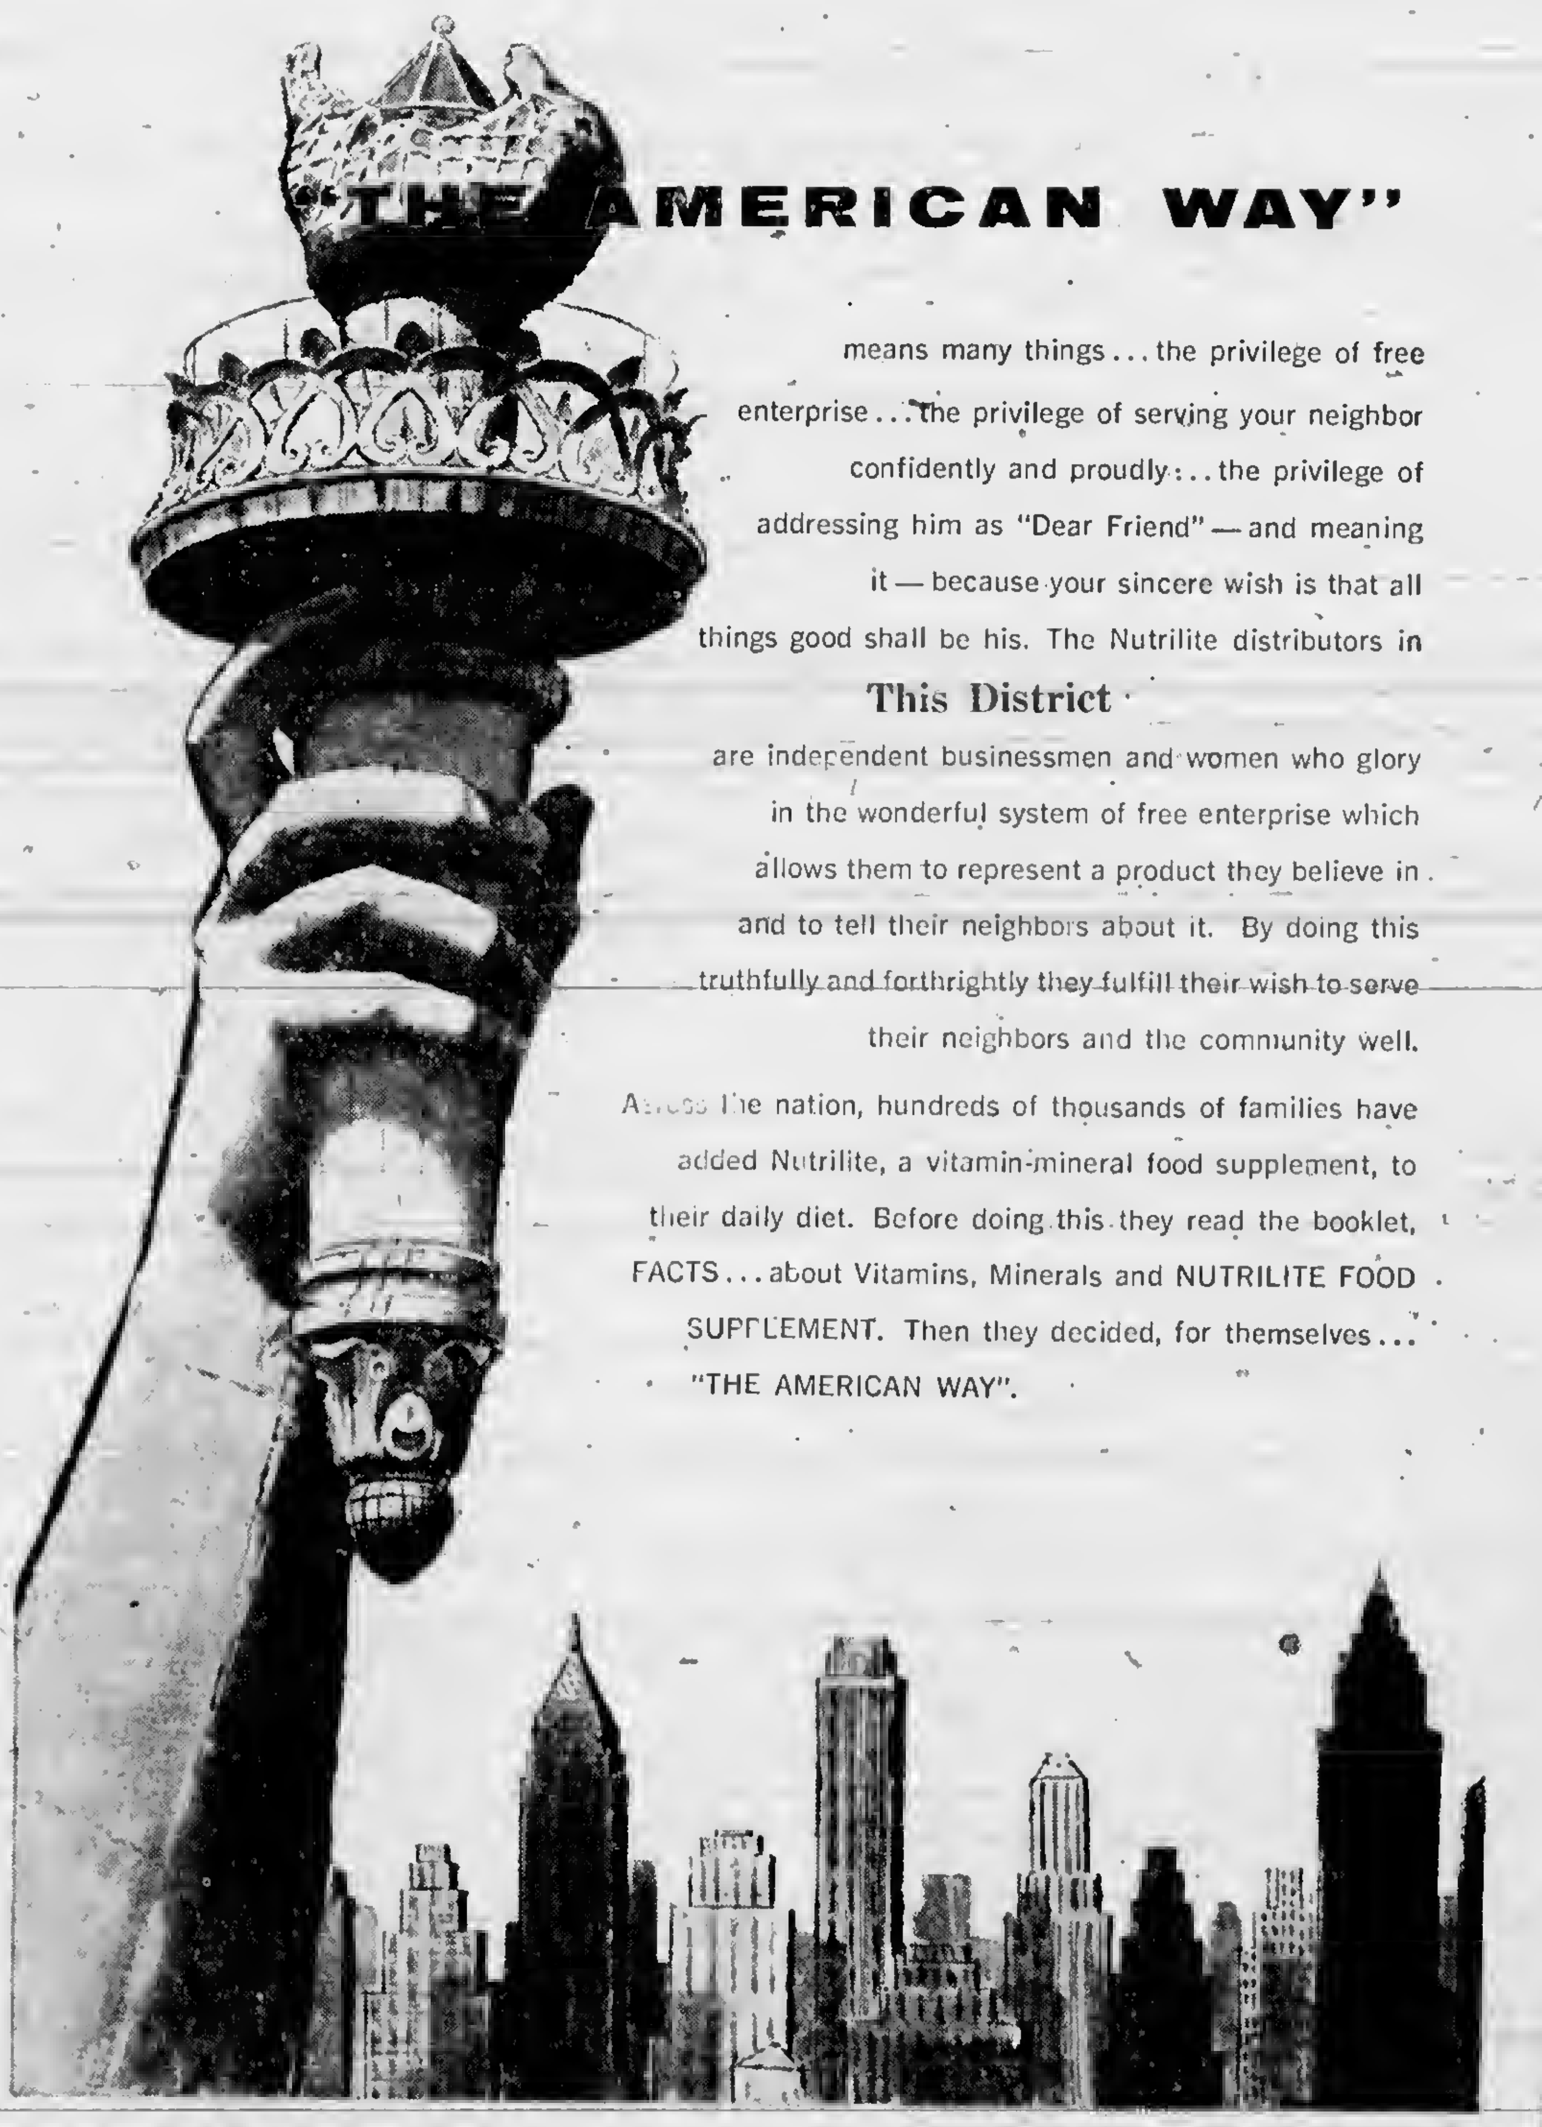
Ohio Couple To Receive Senior Key Pin At Conference

One of the highest awards given in the Nutrilite business, the coveted Senior Key Pin, is to be awarded to Fred and Bernice Hansen of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, at the Friday evening award banquet. Fred and Bernice, formerly of Grand Rapids, started their agency 8 years ago. This award places them among the top 40 in the entire nation-wide organization of 55,000 distributors. Their chain of agencies today covers several states and numbers over a thousand distributors. Mr. Hansen's former trade was barbering.

Mother of Four to Receive Honors at Conference

Clara Jenkins, of Rittman, Ohio, will receive her golden Key Agent pin at the Nutrilite Conference being held at the Beach Hotel. As a Key Agent, she acts in a supervisory capacity to a large group of distributors throughout northern Ohio. As a mother of four children under school age, her success proves that today's modern mother can be a successful housewife and parent as well as building a career and receiving national recognition. Mrs. Jenkins has also received the "All Star" award in Chicago in 1955, the "Best of the Year" cup in Akron in 1956, and the national "Personal Sales Award" in 1957.



"THE AMERICAN WAY"

means many things . . . the privilege of free enterprise . . . the privilege of serving your neighbor confidently and proudly . . . the privilege of addressing him as "Dear Friend" — and meaning it — because your sincere wish is that all things good shall be his. The Nutrilite distributors in are independent businessmen and women who glory in the wonderful system of free enterprise which allows them to represent a product they believe in and to tell their neighbors about it. By doing this truthfully and forthrightly they fulfill their wish to serve their neighbors and the community well.

Across the nation, hundreds of thousands of families have added Nutrilite, a vitamin-mineral food supplement, to their daily diet. Before doing this they read the booklet, FACTS . . . about Vitamins, Minerals and NUTRILITE FOOD SUPPLEMENT. Then they decided, for themselves . . . "THE AMERICAN WAY".

Nearly 27 per cent of U. S. drivers involved in 1957 traffic fatalities were under 25 years of age.

CARD OF THANKS

May we take this method of thanking our neighbors and friends for their kind expressions of sympathy in our bereavement. Also Rev. Ansted, Mr. Winchester and the Pall Bearers. These expressions have been deeply appreciated. Mrs. Floyd Jeffery, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Loomis, Mr. and Mrs. Theo Jeffery and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Berandt. 26x

First Tournament of 1958 Golf Season

The first tournament of the 1958 season, the annual best ball tournament, will be held at the municipal golf course which is now open for the season, according to Keith Carey, who is managing the club for the fifth summer.

The tourney will be a two in one event; that is, a handicapped best ball and an open best ball.

Contestants may choose their own partners and play the 18 holes any time during the day.

Every Wednesday is Ladies Day at the course. The women will play on the course throughout the day thus allowing all golfers the use of the course.

Mr. Carey who arrived here recently from Midland with Mrs. Carey and their three daughters said the course was in excellent condition.

County 4-H Camp To Open Tuesday

The 13th annual Charlevoix County 4-H Camp will be held next week, according to Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent. The 4-H club members will again use the Church of God camp grounds located just south of Charlevoix by the Loeb Shool.

4-H club members who completed a 4-H project during the past winter or who are currently enrolled in a 4-H project for this summer are eligible to attend this camp. The camp will run from Tuesday afternoon, June 24, through Friday noon, June 27.

The camping program will be under the direction of Clare Brown, home demonstration agent, and Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent. In addition, volunteer junior counselors will help with the program.

Although "buck" usually brings to mind a male deer, it is also the name for the male of several other species, including rabbit, caribou, antelope and trout.

Why does oil go in clear and come out DIRTY?

Because it is doing one of its most important jobs—cleaning your engine.

You'd be amazed at the dirt and sludge that builds up inside your engine as it operates...as much as a pound in every 2500 miles of driving!

If that dirt were allowed to cling to engine parts, you'd soon have a mighty big repair bill... but instead, your motor oil seizes the dirt and holds it in suspension where it can do no harm.

Then, when you drain your oil, out comes the dirt with it.

Here at our Cities Service station, we recommend a change every 1000 miles with our 5D Koolmotor Oil.

In addition to its greater cleansing action, 5D Koolmotor actually acts as several oils inside your engine. Provides light 10W grade performance at starting...medium 20 grade performance for warm-up...and heavy 30 grade performance once your engine is hot.

Result: it increases power, stretches gas mileage, keeps your engine new. Change over to 5D Koolmotor Oil this week.

What It Means to Be Rich

One of the richest men in American history was John Muir, the naturalist. When in 1849, at eleven years of age, he arrived in this country from his native Dunbar, Scotland, John's family had little money and when he died on Christmas Eve, 1914, his estate was not at all impressive. Nevertheless, John Muir was a rich man.

In 1899 John Muir joined the Alaska scientific expedition, sponsored by the fantastically wealthy American financier E. H. Harriman. One of the other travellers spoke enviously to Muir about Harriman's immense wealth. Muir replied, "Why, I am richer than Harriman. I have all the money I want, and he hasn't.

Muir's contentment with his financial lot was founded upon the knowledge that he was rich in other things besides money.

One of the ways in which John Muir was wealthy was in terms of time. He believed in being time-rich, taking hours to expose his eyes to beauty and to indulge his soul in leisurely conversation and fellowship with friends. He profoundly pitied the distinguished vistors who called upon him during his years in Yosemite and who were so time-poor that they could spare unly one day among the beauties of the mountains, and who rushed in and out of human contacts, never pausing to savor the spirit of a friend. Believing that people who travel fast see little of what they are passing, he one time set out on a thousand mile walk from Wisconsin to the Gulf of Mexico, and all along the way he stopped to visit with children and old folks, with Negro planters and well-to-do plantation owners, and to get acquainted with animals, birds, insects and trees, snakes and frogs, and any living thing that crossed his path.

Rich in courage, John Muir never carried a gun though he spent weeks at a time in the wilderness. He knew the flora of Ameria so well that he was confident he could always find his food in the woods, and he was unafraid of any beast that walked. His courage was demonstrated, too, in the way he fought the timber barons and the mining interests who were denuding the Black Hills of South Dakota, the Big Horn Mountains, and the south California coast. When his cause of forest conservation was unpopular and the enemies of America's wildernesses were many and backed by big capital, the slender, ascetic-appearing naturalist struggled almost alone against the greed until others pitched into the battle and helped him. At last he won vast tracts of wilderness to be preserved as national parks.

John Muir was rich in faith. While he was not conventiunally religious, he had a profound trust in God and in the dependability of the Creator's work. Once, after he had pointed out that glaciers were instruments in earving Yosemite Valley, a reknowned and dogmatic geologist, Dr. Josiah Whitney, contradicted Muir's findings. Dr. Whitney denied that glaciers had anything to do with Yosemite and insisted that the floor of the valley had fallen in some prehistoric violent shaking of the earth's surface. At this John Muir snurted derisively and jeered, "The bottom never fell out of anything God made!"

The greatness of John Muir's attitude toward money was not that he abhorred wealth, but that he saw that money alone did not make a person rich. And this is the position taken by the great men of all time. Some people glibly quote the Bible to suppurt their contentions that it is impossible for a person tu be rich and at the same time spiritually-minded. They quote Jesus saying, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." But they forget that He also said, "With God all things are possible." They remember His disappointment with the rich young ruler, but forget He praised one who wisely invested his money and said concerning him: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." People think they are quoting the Bible when they say, "Money is the root of all evil." But at no place in the Bible is such a ludicrously untrue statement made. The Bible does say emphatically, "The love of money is the root of all evil." Some who have much money do not love it, but love the good things it can do, the wholesome benefits it can confer upon their community and world. Such wealth goes deeper than [illegible]. It is soul-deep. Again, there are people whose poverty is pit-deep. They possess neither money nor inner appreciations of the people near them, the beauties that surround them, or the opportunities to du good that every new morning brings, the good that is unrelated to stocks and bonds, bank accounts and real estate, dollars and cents, the good that can be done with a warm smile, a kindly word and a helping hand. The rich can be rich or poor within. The moneyless person can be, too. The Bible does not oppose riches, but spiritual poverty. It does not denounce money, but it does condemn having nothing else but money and the things money can buy. It smiles approvingly on money as a good servant and frowns upon it as a tryannical master. It condones having money in your purse and condemns having it in your heart.

Real poverty is not a matter of being moneyless. The poor of the world are the loveless, the thoughtless, the restless and hopeless, the joyless.

The world's richest people are those who have hearts full of love and peace and hope, minds full of high thoughts, memories packed with blessed experiences and a record covered with gracious deeds.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Turkey Trot— Without Music

Swifty Fisher has a new way to move his turkeys to a fresh feeding place, twice a week.

He constructed a "rolling" fence by welding wheels to his fence posts. Each wheel has a sturdy braking device to keep the fence from moving, once a suitable range is found.

Swifty explains, "this solves the problem of taking down woven wire, pulling up posts and re-setting them again." Now, he just hooks his tractors to both ends of the fence, and rolls it away.

From where I sit, progress never happens when you "close your eyes" to new methods or ideas. That's true in a community, too. All of us should be open-minded about our neighbors' opinions even if they differ from our own. For instance, I like a cold glass of beer on a summer evening, my neighbor always chooses iced-tea. But we respect each other's preferences and don't "fence in" each other's ideas.

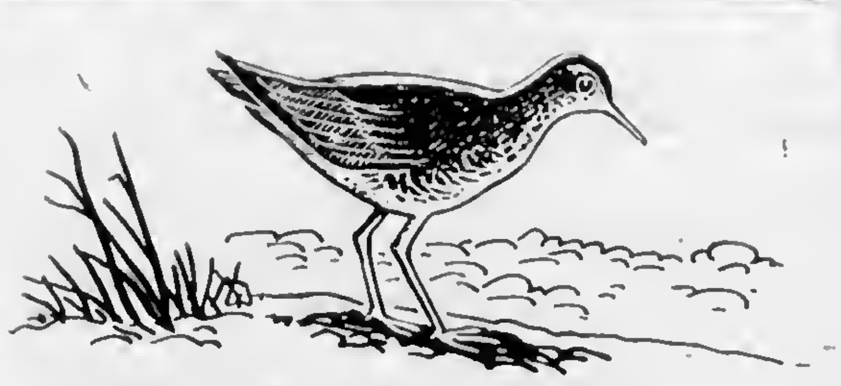
Our Wild Northern Neighbors

By Harold E. Kohn



THE SPOTTED SANDPIPER

Almost daily in the spring and summertime a shrill "peet-weet, peet-weet, peet-weet" announes a visitor on our beach, and when we look from our window we see our shy friends, the spotted sandpiper, curving gracefully along the shore and alighting where our lawn joins the pebbly beach. There he teeters upon his long slender legs, searching among stones and tufts of grass for grasshoppers, caterpillers, beetles, grubs and small aquatic life that may have been washed up by the waves.

This lithe sandpiper is an athletic fellow. His eight-inch-long body is not only capable of swift flight but he can dive from the air, swim, and even run under water, using his wings to speed him along in the under-water world. He is handsome, too, with his light brown upper parts, his slightly streaked head, and with under parts bearing round and irregular blackish spots. But the young birds have to forego these striking breast markings until maturity initiates them into proper sandpiper dress. Until then their breasts are pure white and this makes the young of this species hard to identify.

Somewhere along these shores our sandpiper neighbors build their nests, sometimes grass-lined, but often not, and almost always on the ground. There the female lays her three to five pear-shaped eggs and incubates them for fifteen days. No sooner do the yellowish youngsters peck their way out of the eggs than they start running. From then on they develop rapidly and soon begin carving beautiful curves into the lakeshore breezes with their down-bent wings.

I have never tasted the flesh of a spotted sandpiper and I doubt that I ever shall. But Michiganders once thought them to be choice, tasty deliacies. A half-century agn the spotted sandpiper, together with his near-relatives, the snipe, upland plover, solitary sandpiper, the yellowleg, willet and woodcock, was hunted for sport and for the game bird market. Men dug shooting pits along shores of lakes and rivers and built blinds in the marshes, and from these hiding places let loose brutal barrages of shot that brought down hundreds of birds in a single day and crippled countless others. Some species of shore birds were brought to the verge of extinction before protective laws were passed. But now, thank heaven and our legislators, our spotted neighbor has no cause to be afraid of man.

The spotted sandpipers arrived here in May and they will leave for the South again in autumn,

Betty Marie Berg and James I. Smith Exchange Vows In Church Ceremony

The Community Church of God was the scene Tuesday evening of the wedding of Betty Marie Berg and James I. Smith.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Leo George Berg and Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Smith.

The Rev. George L. Majors officiated at the double ring service under an arbor covered with spirea, roses and pine. Baskets of red and white gladioli and carnations and candelabra flanked the arbor. Two hundred and fifty guests witnessed the ceremony.

Mrs. Herbert Hamlin, organist, accompanied the soloist, Vincent Chew of Flint, who sang "Because," "Wedding Prayer" and "At Dawning." She also played a program of traditional music and the wedding marches.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a gown of French Chantilly lace and nylon tulle for her wedding. The gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice, a scooped neckline of hand-clipped lace outlined with sequins and long sleeves. An apron of lace floated over ruffled tulle to form the bouffant skirt of the gown. A jeweled crown secured her fingertip veil and she carried a bouquet of white carnations, red roses and trailing ivy.

Mary Ann Berg as her sister's maid of honor wore a ballerina length gown of blue nylon chiffon styled with a draped bodice and a bouffant skirt which had a streamer as back interest. She carried a bouquet of blue carnations.

Mary Jo Kendall of Elkhart, Ind., as bridesmaid, wore a gown identical to the honor attendant's in pink nylon chiffon. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Debra Ann Bartlett, cousin of the bride, as flower girl wore a gown of lace and tulle identical to the bride's and a pearl and sequin headdress. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, red roses and ivy.

Daniel Berg, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

George H. Smith assisted his brother as best man. Donald Lee Berg and Bruce Bartlett jr., brother and cousin of the bride, were ushers.

Judith Anderson of Grand Rapids and Bennie Lee Kipke, wearing gowns identical to the honor attendant's in shades of yellow and matching wrist corsages lighted the candles.

Mrs. Berg selected a navy tailored suit, light blue hat and blouse and white accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Smith, mother of the bridegroom, wore a beige dress and white accessories. Their corsages of red roses and white carnations.

At the reception at Fellowship hall the refreshment table was centered with a tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal couple under an arch of forget-me-nots. A bridal doll cake was also a feature of the refreshments. Assisting were Marcia Barch of Muskegon, Janet Todd, Donna Berg, sister of the bride, and Sandra Richardson, cousin of the bride.

After a wedding trip to Copper Harbor, the couple will be at home at 825½ West Vine st., in Kalamazoo. For traveling the bride wore a yellow dracon dress with lace bib and yellow and white accessories.

Both are graduates of the Charlevoix high school and senior students at Western Michigan College in Kalamazoo.

Charlevoix to Welcome Shriners' Caravan

The appearance here Saturday of the Saladin Temple Shrine band of Grand Rapids may well strike a sentimental cord in the heart of its director, Forest Van Dusen, prominent Grand Rapids merchant and nationally recognized band director in Shrine circles.

The community of Norwood may claim him a native son and Charlevoix is where he began his musical career.

Pictured in this story we have him at about age three, before he had outgrown curls, button shoes and dresses, styles of the times for little boys before the turn of the century.

HE ATTENDED the Norwood school for two years before his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Van Dusen, moved to Charlevoix where he attended school for the next five years.

During this period he spotted a violin, bow and case all for $5, displayed in a local music store. He began working on his parents for the buy and finally succeeded.

Next came music lessons with William Bellinger for instructor.

The prized violin and case have long since disappeared but the bow, which has been restrung many times, is one of Mr. Van Dusen's prize possessions.

When he was 12 his family moved to southern Michigan and eventually settled in Grand Rapids where Forest continued with his musical education.

IT WAS NOT LONG before he found that his musical talents provided an enjoyable means of supplementing his income and during the 'teens and 'twenties he organized and directed dance bands that gained wide popularity throughout that area.

His wife, Marie, is an accomplished pianist and played with a number of his early dance orchestras.

Before taking over the directorship of the 60 piece Shrine band in 1940, Mr. Van Dusen had directed a number of organization bands in Grand Rapids including the Groto band and the American Legion band.

Also a member of these bands was his brother, Garfield Van Dusen, well known here as the proprietor of the Cashmere shop.

MERCHANDISING held an attraction for both brothers and they stuck to that field as their principal business. Forest now operates one of the largest men's furnishing stores in Grand Rapids along with a community ladies' furnishing store. Garfield operates a permanent men's and women's furnishing store in Grand Rapids along with summer shops here and in Harbor Springs. He makes his summer residence at his Pine Point cottage here.

The place of his birth has a strong attraction for the band directors.

For years he and his wife have been making frequent visits to Norwood and Charlevoix. Few of his childhood friends and acquaintances are now in this area and few of the present residents have had the opportunity to be lifted from the serious side of life by his serious humor.

Softball Season Opens With Extra Inning Games

The summer softball season opened last week with a bang as two extra inning games and two high-scoring contests gave capacity crowds a preview of games to come in the Class A league. Three close games in the peanut league and a free-swinging game in the Class B league also gave fans plenty to cheer about.

Freedman Artcraft of the Class A league won two games to move into first place. In the opener they defeated last year's champions, Ellsworth, by a score of 3 to 2 in 10 innings. Boyne City was their second victim as they trounced the visitors 17 to 4.

Airport Inn and American Mold battled 13 innings before the former scored twice in the tenth inning to break the 3 to 3 tie. Pitchers Fritz Puffpaff and Nathan Boss hooked up in a real pitcher's battle, allowing two and five hits respectively. In the tenth three walks and Ron Cunningham's single pushed home the winning runs.

The U. S. Coast Guard blasted Boyne City 19 to 2 behind the tight pitching of Ed Culbertson.

Federated Garden Clubs Give Award To Weathervane

The Weathervane Inn, located on the north bank of Pine River at Memorial bridge, has been given an award of appreciation for artistic landscaping by the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan.

The award was given upon the recommendation of the Charlevoix Garden club headed by Mrs. H. E. Paddock.

Designed and built by Earl A. Young, well known local realtor, the Inn was formerly a three-story mill building. The foundation and timbers of the original building were utilized in the beautiful new structure which clings to the river bank and which has become one of the show places of the north. In planning and landscaping Mr. Young made use of flowers, shrubs and trees usually found in this area.

City Band to Play Concerts Weekly at Park

The Charlevoix city band under the direction of C. A. Odmark will inaugurate its annual summer series of weekly "Concerts in the Park."

The concerts will be presented every Wednesday night in East Park at 8:30 p.m. during the summer season.

A summer institution in Charlevoix for many years, these concerts are sponsored by the City of Charlevoix and are intended for the enjoyment of the local residents and visitors to Charlevoix.

The city band which presents these weekly hour-long concerts is composed of more than 40 musicians including several veteran musicians who are augmented by returning college students, summer visitors and outstanding members of the Charlevoix high school band. The group rehearses each week throughout the year for these concerts.

While operating expenses of the band are paid by the city, none of the members are paid for their services. Though the group is entirely amateur, it has, thru the years presented programs of professional quality.

The program for the forthcoming concert will appear weekly in the Charlevoix Courier. You are encouraged to clip this and bring it with you to the weekly "Concert in the Park" at East Park at 8:30 p.m. every Wednesday.

School Asking Extra Mill for Operations

Voters in the Charlevoix school district will go to the polls Monday, July 14, to elect two trustees and to vote on two other issues which will appear on the ballot.

Seeking election to the board of trustees will be Fred Willis, Gordon L. Freedman, Mrs. Charles Weisler and incumbent Albert H. Smith. Voters will elect two trustees for terms of three years each. E. D. Hawley, whose term expires this year, is not a candidate for re-election after serving 15 years on the board.

Voters also will be asked to vote on the proposed sale of the Washington school property on the north side and on a one-mill tax levy to raise funds for operational costs.

The board will ask permission of the voters to sell the property at the corner of Petoskey ave. and Burns st. where the former northside school was located.

Voters will also be asked to give their approval for a one-mill tax levy to raise funds for operational costs. Two proposals are necessary on this issue. The first, on which all voters may cast their ballot, would approve the increase of the tax limitation by one mill and the second, on which only tax payers may vote, would permit the board of education to levy one mill on the district's state equalized valuation for one year to raise funds for operational costs.

In asking for the one mill for operational costs, spokesman for the board said that the 1958-59 budget had been set at $249,965 as compared with $247,230 last year. This is an increase of $2,735.

Anticipated income for the year will include $79,801.32 which will be derived from the seven mills given the schools by the allocation board. Income from other sources including state aid, primary monies and other income will bring in an estimated $156,710, thus leaving a deficit of $13,454.

If the one mill tax levy is approved, it will result in another $11,800, leaving only a deficit of $1,654 for the year. Some of this can be paid from income from other sources throughout the year.

Post Lifeguards At City Beaches

Lifeguards are now manning Charlevoix's three beaches it has been announced.

Bob Doctor will be at the Lake Michigan beach, John Barry of Mt. Pleasant will be at the North side or Depot beach and Joel Arvilla will be at the Ferry ave. beach.

The lifeguards will be at each of the three beaches from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 12 noon to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Swimming instructions will be given Monday through Friday at the Northside or Depot and the Ferry ave. beaches from 10 a.m. until noon.

All youngsters planning to take swimming lessons are asked to report to the lifeguard at the beach where they go regularly for registration. Lifeguards will then set up the class schedules and tell youngsters when to report for instruction.

Council Approves $800 Fund for Venetian Night

The city council, at its regular meeting Monday night, voted to support the Chamber of Commerce in the amount of $800 for the Venetian Night program July 27. The budget for the proposed program was presented by Tom Symons, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

The city also voted to ask the Michigan State Highway Department for permission to close Bridge st. from Upright ave. north to Clinton st. from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. Sunday, July 27, during the running of the second annual Soap Box Derby. A certified copy of the request will be forwarded to the department.

The date for a hearing on the abandonment of an alley in the Crouter addition was set. The alley is located between Petoskey ave. and Burns st. The hearing will be held at 8 p.m. July 21 in the council room.

Wanda Russell Named Queen of Venetian Night

Wanda Russell, 18, a vivacious brown-eyed brunet, has been named Charlevoix's Venetian Night Queen for 1958.

She will also go to Traverse City tonight (Thursday) to represent the city in the National Cherry Queen contest to be held at St. Francis auditorium at 8 p.m.

Queen Wanda was selected from among six candidates for the honor in a contest held Monday evening at Grey Gables Inn.

Sue McBride, also 18, who has brown eyes and brown hair, was named alternate and will serve as a member of the Venetian Queen's court as will the other candidates, Lois Bergmann, Carol Duerr, Carolyn Stoel and Esther Boss.

Judges were Mrs. Jerry DeVore of Indian River, John Anderson of Station WPBN-TV Tracy Andrews of WATC at Gaylord, Joseph Behse of the Cadillac Country Club and Thunder Mountain Ski Club and Fred Lovelace of the Petoskey News-Review.

The judges were introduced to the candidates by Mrs. Harold Geiken, chairman of the Queen's committee and interviewed each girl before making their decision.

Following the contests Queen Wanda and her court, the judges, Mrs. Geiken and others present enjoyed refreshments in the Grey Gables dining room.

Wanda, who will be crowned Venetian Night Queen on July 27, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Russell. She is a 1958 graduate of the Charlevoix high school and plans to continue her education at Flint Junior College.

Sue McBride, who was selected as alternate, is also a 1958 graduate and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl McBride. She plans to enter nurse's training this fall.

Arrangements for the contest were made by Tom Symons of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce which sponsors the Venetian Night queen.

THE HIGHLIGHT of the Shriners' visit will be a full evening program presented in East Park at 8 p.m., featuring music by the nationally famous concert band and Saladin Chanters, a men's chorus of 36 voices.

Color and atmosphere will be added to the entertainment by the appearance of the Oriental band, appropriately costumed and playing musettes, toms-toms and gongs along with an exhibition by the crack Arab patrol drill team.

Preceding the evening program the bands and demonstration units, joined by Shriners from northwest Michigan, will form a parade at the Beach hotel and march south on Bridge st. to Antrim st., thence to East park.

Exhibitions by the Oriental band and drill squad will take place on Bridge st. between Mason and Clinton sts. ON THEIR TOUR of northwest Michigan to the Mackinac bridge dedication the five organizations will stage parades in Ludington, Manistee, Traverse City and Petoskey.

The concert band is scheduled to play a concert at the bridge ceremonies at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Saturday morning the caravan will be picked up by a police escort at Petoskey and rushed to Mackinac for the dedication and returned here for the evening activities.

Our Wild NORTHERN NEIGHBORS

By Harold E. Kohn

Whitetailed deer running at breakneck speed across a lush meadow are examples of how life in the wild is never haphazard, but well ordered and neatly patterned. No deer, walking or running, picks up his feet in just any random order. There is an exact, precise sequence for moving the legs from which a deer does not deviate unless badly injured. The succession of steps a deer takes in movement is after this fashion: left forefoot, then the left hindfoot, the right hindfoot, and finally the right forefoot. Of course, the deer, after pausing, may decide to pick up any foot first, but the movement of a deer's feet will then follow this rotary sequence, nevertheless.

When whitetails run through the dense undergrowth of a forest the sequential pattern of their gait is sustained, while they shift from long curving leaps into almost perpendicular bounds, so that the animal's hoofs may be withdrawn from tangles of fallen limbs and logs and lasso-like vines almost at the point they entered, sparing the graceful creatures from tripping and falling. Then, too, the fine tapering of deer limbs and their small pointed hoofs help extricate them neatly from snarled brush on the forest floor.

There are well authenticated records of whitetail deer making a running jump of over forty-feet, and leaping as high as eight feet. They have been clocked at thirty miles an hour, although most Northerners would contradict the records and swear in court that they have seen these speedsters flashing through a forest glade "like sixty."

But who cares for exact miles per hour, finicky measurements of feet and inches? Record books are drab and unimaginative things anyway, and anyone who can stand with a timing device in his hand or sit watching a speedometer when the lithe grace of a whitetail deer is passing by must be bereft of wonder and have ice water flowing in his veins. When most of us see a deer break for cover, we do a far less mechanical thing, a far more human thing than time its speed! We halt abruptly in our tracks, stand in awed silence, and treat our eyes and hearts to one of nature's most elegant displays of rhythmic beauty.

ODDS 'N ENDS

BY FRAN MARTIN

JUNE IS THE month of brides . . : and in Charlevoix that's no malarky . . . We've had six right here during the past week and there are other weddings coming up every week for another month . . And what's more fun than weddings and receptions and visiting with old friends and admiring the lovely brides and the charming attendants and kissing the new bridegrooms . . . If you think we've been enjoying these during past few weeks, you are right . . . And don't tell us you haven't too . . . 'cause we've seen most of you at one or another of these events . . . So, here's to more June brides.

REMEMBER THE story of Charlevoix and its porch lights that we mentioned recently . . . United Press picked it up, you remember, and sent it out . . . We'll have you know that it made, among other publications, the New York Times . . . Not bad, huh? . . . It also brought a letter from a Manfriend R. Gotthardt of Succasanna, N. J. who requested info on the project . . . Seems he lives in a housing area in an outlying district which has no street lights . . . He thought this idea might be placed in operation . . . Our city fathers sent the information along . . . We're anxious to know, if it will be used.

A BELATED birthday greeting to a certain Sandy VonDohlen who lives down Columbia, S. C.-way . . . Hope you had a wonderful day . . .

Belated greetings also to the Albert Balch's who observed a 62nd wedding anniversary Friday and didn't even mention it to anyone . . . But we did hear of it in time to get a picture and story for this week . . . thanks to Mrs. Clayton A. Smith . . . If that happened to us we'd be shouting it from the housetops.

CHARLEVOIX has another anniversary coming up . . .that of the George Meggison's . . . who will observe their 65th wedding anniversary July 3 . . . Imagine . . . 65 years together . . . We think it's really something to shout about . . . We hope all of you will drop them a note on this happy occasion.

* * *

ONE PLACE we won't be seeing you this week is at the dedication of the Mackinac bridge . . for we wouldn't move into Mackinaw City or St. Ignace for all the tea in China during this history-making affair . . . But our band and our Boy Scouts will be there . . . on Friday . . . So we will be ably represented . . . by these two fine organizations.

THERE'LL BE MUSIC in the air this week as Charlevoix hears for the first time in years the music and marching feet of the Shriners Band . . . They're to present a concert Saturday evening in East Park . . . We hope we'll see you there.

Man Sentenced For Non-Support

Levi Balch, 37, of Detroit was sentenced to six months to one year in the county jail for non-support during a regular term of circuit court held at Traverse City recently.

In handing down the sentence Judge Brown said that Balch would be released from jail upon payment of $1,000 of the $3,929 he was in arrears as of June 9. However, the payment of $1,000 would not wipe out the remaining debt which he would have to arrange to pay along with current support.

telephone lines

by LES JOHNSON, Manager

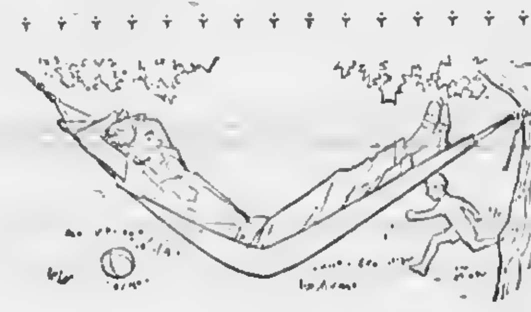
A YOUNGSTER WALKED into a drugstore and asked for a job.

"What's your name?" asked the druggist.

"Alexander Graham Bell," replied the boy.

"I guess that's a pretty well known name, son."

"It ought to be," said the boy. "I've been delivering groceries in this neighborhood for two years now."



EVEN ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL himself (the inventor, not the delivery boy) couldn't have guessed how important his invention would become to us. The phone plays a part in just about everything you do. Take your vacation, for example. When it comes you'll want to be able to relax and enjoy yourself. So take care of all the worries beforehand, phone ahead to make all your reservations or let friends know when you'll arrive. It'll be such a weight off your mind and for such a small cost!

A GROCER FRIEND tells us the story of a lady who called him about an order. "Please bring some of your snap beans to the phone," said the lady. The grocer, who takes everything in his stride, complied. "Now break one," she commanded. He did, and a sharp "pop" went over the wires. "Fine," said the lady, "send me three pounds."

THE REASON WE mention this incident is to show that there isn't any end to the telephone's usefulness. Every day someone hits on a new way of saving time and money with the phone.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Balch Observe Sixty-third Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs Albert A. Balch, lifelong residents of Charlevoix county who now live in Charlevoix township, observed their sixty-second wedding anniversary at a family gathering at their home on US 31 south Friday evening.

The date also marked Mrs. Balch's seventy - ninth birthday anniversary.

Among the 16 family members who gathered for the double anniversary observance were five generations of the family, Mr. and Mrs. Balch, their daughter, Mrs. Marion (Florence) Jackson of Charlevoix, their grandson, Marion Jackson jr. of East Jordan, their great-granddaughter, Mrs. Robert (Jane) Prebble and her daughter, nine-months old Linda Marie, also of East Jordan, who is the couple's great-great-granddaughter.

The Balch's have three daughters, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Allen (Flossie) Howell of Berkley and Mrs. Harry (Reta) Dunn of Petoskey and two sons, Archie of Detroit and Kenneth of Charlevoix.

They also have 12 grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Balch were married June 20, 1897, at the home of Mrs. Balch's parents, the late Eliza and Henry Dixon, in Marion township.

They have always made their home in Charlevoix county even when Mr. Balch worked in various sawmills throughout northern Michigan for 19 years after their marriage. For 38 years they lived on the same farm in the Phelps district of Marion township before moving to their present home in Charlevoix township 12 years ago.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Balch are natives of Charlevoix county. Mr. Balch was born in Charlevoix July 31, 1874, the son of the late Newton and Matilda Balch. Mrs. Dixon is the former Mary Jane Dixon. She was born in Marion township June 20, 1879.

Both are in good health for their years. Mr. Balch has a sizable garden which he tends himself and Mrs. Balch does her own housework with only occasional assistance from her daughters. She is presently recuperating from a recent operation.

Janet Mary Crump, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randall C. Crump, became the bride of Theodore Richard Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Potter, at a double ring ceremony solemnized at the First Methodist church here, Saturday evening.

Baskets of summer flowers and candleabra decorated the altar for the candlelight service at which the Rev. Frederick McNell officiated. Mrs. Leonard Burns was the organist. Mrs. Donald Heeres, the soloist, sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of white hand-clipped lace dramatized by a captivating flounce, a fitted bodice, Sabrina neckline, long sleeves and a bouffant skirt. A beaded crown held her fingertip veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and white roses.

Susan C. Crump was her twin sister's maid of honor and Carolyn Stoel was bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of shell pink polished cotton fashioned with fitted bodices, square necklines and bouffant ballerina length skirts. Assisting were Mrs. Wayne Belding, Mrs. O. V. Cunningham, Brenda Brown of San Diego, Calif., Mrs. Edgar Culbertson, Marylee Baker and Mrs. John Elzinga of Ellsworth.

The full skirt had tiers of pleated silk and lace. Her headress was of matching pink nylon and her corsage of red roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Robert Stillwell, sister of the bridegroom, was her only attendant. She wore a light blue dress trimmed with white embroidery, light blue accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Announcement

It is with pride I wish to announce, that as of July 1 Wm. R. (Bill) Carey is buying my home and buying into my Insurance Agency.

I do not intend to quit my agency and will be working with Bill just as long as my health will permit. Mrs. Ida Welsheimer who has been with me for the past twelve years, will also stay with the agency.

Bill Carey needs no introduction as he is a Charlevoix boy and is well known not only here but throughout the State and elsewhere. With Bill in the field and myself servicing our policy holders on their claims, etc. We should be in a position to give the best insurance service possible.

Mrs. Hamlin and I will be moving out to our cottage at Ironton, Mich. where I expect to keep a file record of all policy holders so that any information or service needed can be obtained at the office or at the cottage. Our phone number at the cottage will be available soon.

We feel sure that everyone will welcome Bill, his wife, Clare, and their two children back to Charlevoix and as mentioned before, we are proud to have Bill associated with our Agency.

Local Author Has Second Juvenile Book Published

A book for juveniles entitled "Haunt of High Island," written by Mrs. Arthur Wexstaff, will be published this week by William B. Eerdmans Publishing Co. of Grand Rapids.

The book is a sequel to Mrs. Wexstaff's first publication "The Black Panther of the Great Lakes." The hero of the new publication is again Benjy, who, this time, is seeking a treasure aboard a sailing vessel which was lost off High Island in the Beaver group in northern Lake Michigan many years ago.

Kent Swope, whose grandfather owned the sailing vessel, has a map of the area. He engages Benjy, his friends, Bobo, and Suzanne, to skin-dive for the lost ship and recover the chest which holds a fortune and which is to be found in the captain's quarters on the sunken ship. Their friend, Old Jake, a salty character, airs his fishermen's superstitions about the old ship but they fail to halt the youngsters' attempt to recover the treasure until it is too late.

The book, which promises to be as exciting as "Black Panther of the Great Lakes," is an exciting adventure story for juveniles. It will make its initial appearance Saturday.

Mrs. Wexstaff is a local resident who turned to writing as a hobby several years ago. This is her second book and she has plans for several others with familiar areas of the Great Lakes as the locale and young Benjy as the hero.

A Touch of Greatness

By

Harold E. Kohn

An Eye for Things that Last

Wherever we find an instance of man's interest in durability and permanence, we know we have glimpsed a touch of greatness. No matter if it is a well-built stone wall, or a fine job of carpentry, a solid piece of furniture, a well-constructed fence, or a strongly bonded marriage, when we can say of it "It will last for a lifetime!" we feel an element of greatness is there.

Prehistoric man, sensing the fragility and brevity of life, sought some degree of permanence by leaving stone monuments as durable marks that would outlast him, informing future generations that he had once been here on the earth. Later, stone tombs and architecture were constructed, metallic sacred vessels, bracelets and ankle rings were fashioned, and tough writing materials like papyri and stone were used so that some signs of a person's existence might be left behind.

And modern man has not lost all of this zest for durability. There is some of it in even the young. While walking down a street in a small mid-western town one day, I came upon a group of boys who were examining a freshly laid piece of concrete. Evidently the day before they had printed their initials in the cement with their finger tips. Now they were overjoyed that their names were permanently fixed where any passerby could see them in years to come. Just as I approached, I heard one youngster shout gleefully, "Yep! Mine's dry." The boy had found the satisfaction of permanence, leaving his mark where it would not be erased in some tomorrow.

The early American pioneer farmer possessed an abundance of this desire for permanence. More than two hundred years ago he built stone fences that can still be seen winding through the fields and woods of New England. Even his rail fences were built to outlast the builder. His home and barn were raised upon far heavier foundations than necessary. A traveller from Dublin, Isaac Weld, commented on the American farmer in 1798, "These people are so certain of their future that they spend a lifetime building barns for future generations." The good farmer has always had many a touch of greatness about him: a capacity for pitting his faith in the ultimate benevolence of God over against the temporary discouragements of foul weather and the occasional epidemics that took his stock; a joy and pride in creating, making with his own hands nearly everything about him, his tools, his house, his barn, and wrenching his farm out of forests and marshes; a delight in employing the power of his muscles and the wit of his mind against the stubborn resistance of nature; the patience and faith to wait for results after he has planted his seed. All these characteristic marks of greatness, and many more, the typical early farmer possessed. But as important as any other single trait was the farmer's desire for permanence and his tendency to look at his world with an eye for things that last.

Even a casual observer feels that we could well plant a bit of that spirit in our times, cultivate it, and help it grow. A standard of permanence could well replace our principle of haste. "How long will it last?" is a better question in the building trade, the tailoring trade and in the matter of "getting religion" than the more frequently heard inquiry "How soon can I have it?"

Permanence is of more value than appearance. In this generation we have developed an excellence of packaging. Never in history have things "looked so good." But we need to balance our zest for external beauty with an enthusiasm for lasting qualities, a discrimination between packaging and product such as the resort town native had who commented on an over-dressed resorter, "Some dream boat she is! The riggin's worth more than the hull!"

Durability would be a far better measure of worth than is our modern standard "How much does it cost?" When a third-grade youngster proudly announced to his teacher, "We've got a new baby at our house, and it cost two hundred dollars," the teacher exclaimed "Goodness, gracious! Isn't that an awful lot of money for just a tiny baby?" The lad replied, "Yes, it is. But think how long he will last!" Oscar Wilde once defined a cynic as "a man who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing!" If that is so, too many of us these days are cynical. The worth of a thing is more apt to be found in its durability than in its price.

Such a standard of durability as we have considered would give us a sense of stability in these times of crises and change. In the days of the French Revolution, Jean Bon St. Anare, the Vendean revolutionist, threatened a peasant, "I will have all your steeples pulled down, that you may no longer have any object by which you may be reminded of your old superstitions."

"But," answered the peasant, "you can't help leaving us the stars."

Reverence, worship and the hearts' search for God are more durable than steeples.

The best purposes for which we work outlast the money we earn while working. The influences we leave upon our fellow men survive the moments we spend with them. The spirit by which we live outlasts the flesh in which we live.

One of life's highest achievements is believing in and living for causes that survive us and doing things that outlasts us.

Given in marriage by her brother, Jack Roberts of Grand Rapids, the bride chose a floor-length gown of Chantilly lace and white tissue taffeta for her wedding. The gown was fashioned along Empire lines with a bodice of Chantilly lace over taffeta a jewel neckline and long tapered sleeves. A chapel length train fell from the high wasitline. Her headdress of lace embroidered with seedpearls secured her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds and lillies-of-the-valley.

Joan Roberts attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a ballerina length gown of pink tissue taffeta styled along princess lines with a V-neckline and a draped bodice. Her headdress was of pink carnations and lilies-of - the - valley and she carried a colonial bouquet of the same flowers.

Corally Kell of Marquette, niece of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid, wore a gown similar to the honor attendant's in light blue tissue taffeta. Her headdress and bouquet were of blue carnations and lilies-of-the-valley.

George Schrandt of Detroit assisted his brother as best man. Joseph Himmel of Detroit, nephew of the bride, was junior groomsman. Ushers were James Roberts of Mt. Pleasant and Carlyle Roberts, brothers of the bride, and Myron Schrandt of Milwaukee, Wis., brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Roberts wore a pink linen sheath and matching striped jacket and white accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Schrandt, mother of the bridegroom, wore a light blue chiffon gown and white accessories. Each had a corsage of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, a wedding dinner and reception was held at the VFW hall. Assisting were Mrs. Jack Roberts of Grand Rapids and Mrs. James Roberts of Mt. Pleasant, sisters-in-law of the bride, Nancy Seibold and Patricia Tollins of Fort Wayne, Ind., and A. J. Davis of Seattle, Wash.

Extra Inning Games Mark Opening

Harvey Cole and Dick Harju each homered and doubled for the service squad. Joe Armstrong had three singles.

The Peanut league opener was just as exciting as any as the Pirates edged the Cardinals 3 to 2. Dave Novotny's two hits, one a triple, gave the Pirates a 3 to 1 advantage going into the seventh. Steve Ager and Pete Ance singled for one run but good fielding on the part of the Pirates kept the tieing run from scoring.

The Zephyr Red Devils slipped past LaBlance's Dodgers 5 to 3 to open their schedule. Trailing as they went into the fifth, the Devils scored twice on Mike Crain's triple and Herb Cummings single and added two more in the sixth for the victory. Bob Neston had two singles for the Dodgers.

The Tigers came from behind to score five runs in the seventh and defeat the Red Sox 11 to 7. The victors were trailing despite pitcher Bill Marme's two hitter when three walks set the stage for Marme's triple and singles by Andy Carey and Larry Kolker which produced the winning margin. John Tuomela and Packy Warner were the top hitters for the Red Sox

A wild scoring contest marked the opening of the Class B season as Browe Electric blasted Lake Construction 27 to 18.

Why an Extra Mill Tax?

The Charlevoix school district is again faced with an operating cost that has increased more than the foreseeable revenues for the coming year. Because of the fact that revenues are a more or less fixed factor, the board of education has the choice of only one course —ask the electors in the school district to approve an extra mill for school operation.

Approval of the additional one mill at the school election Monday, July 14, will actually mean a total of eight mills assessed on the state equalized valuation for school operation. This figure does not appear out of line when compared to the school tax rate in cities of a comparable size. In fact, it is lower than the average tax rate in the state according to Supt. R. G. Bennett.

The budget set up for the school year 1958-59 totals $252,815.00 with an anticipated revenue of $239,070.00 leaving a deficit of $13,745. The revenue from an additional mill tax would produce $11,828.00, leaving a deficit of $1,917.00 according to the budget statement as of June 30, 1958. It is possible this deficit could be eliminated by some minor curtailments, Supt. Bennett states.

Operation of our schools may well come under the heading of a public service. That being the case, we are going to get only what we pay for, assuming, of course that the operation is efficiently administered and we have no basis for questioning that point. Most of us will agree that we should provide the best possible education we are able to offer our children.

It is not our purpose to tell the electors how they should vote on this issue but rather to urge all to vote and make their own decision on a basis of facts as they sincerely find them to be. The request for an extra mill is recommended by the board of education, a body elected by the voters and entrusted with the job of operating our schools in the best possible manner. The kind of a job they do depends almost entirely on the moral and financial support of the public.

Music Students Continue Lessons During Summer

A record enrollment of 104 students this week began the eleventh annual summer instrumental music program sponsored by the Charlevoix board of education.

Each of the students is scheduled for one lesson each week, either individually or in a small group. The schedule as announced by C. A. Odmark, director of music in the local schools runs from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at the high school band room.

Great progress is anticipated for all the students enrolled as it is possible, during these sessions, to work out individual problems which cannot be corrected in the large classes during the regular school year.

The program will continue for seven weeks ending Aug 7.

William Bellinger, Veteran City Bandman Cited at Retirement

William C. Bellinger (center) veteran local musician and businessman, is pictured receiving a copy of a resolution adopted by the City Council, commending him for his voluntary contribution of his musical services and abilities to the community' from C. A. Odmark (left), director of the Charlevoix city band. Watching the informal presentation is Dwight Smith, who is following his grandfather's footsteps as a member of the band.

A veteran of 66 years with city and other local bands, William C. Bellinger, who also has the distinction of being the city's oldest businessman, has retired from active participation with the Charlevoix city band.

Following his announcement to retire, Mr. Bellinger was honored Wednesday night at a testimonial dinner at the Nautical.

On hand to wish him well were veteran members and several former members who had played in bands with him through the years and whose years of active participation totaled 410 years.

AMONG THEM were such veterans as Claude Fairman and Arthur Nettleton with 48 years each to their credit, Fenton R. Bulow with 40 years, Albert Novotny, Ilo Helms and Pat Moran with 33 years experience apiece, C. A. Odmark, who has directed the local band for the past 12 years, 31 years, John Kroken with 25, Robert Gill with 21, Harley Ochs and Armand Peters with eight each and Mr. Bellinger's grandson, Dwight Smith, with 14 years.

Reminiscing of other days and other bands was the main topic of conversation during the dinner.

Following the dinner Mr. Odmark spoke briefly, thanking Mr. Bellinger for his years of devoted service to the community and presenting him with a copy of a resolution adopted at a recent meeting of the Charlevoix City Council in which the council, in behalf of the residents of the community, recognize Mr. Bellinger's contribution to the community.

THOUGH Mr. Bellinger is retiring from active participation in the city band, his interest in the band will contioue for among its more than 40 members is his grandson, Dwight Smith, who was graduated from Central Michigan College in June with a major in music and who plans to continue work on a master's degree.

To present-day residents of the community it seems that Mr. Bellinger has always been a part of the band and Bridge st. And it is little wonder that they feel this way.

As Mr. Bellinger tells it, he was born April 10, 1881, in a house on the south side a year after his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bellinger, had come to the community from New York state.

His mother, however, was afraid to stay alone in their home in the south end so they moved to a house adjacent to his father's jewelry shop at the site of his present store and he just never left Bridge st. again.

HE WATCHED Charlevoix grow from the days of sailing schooners and the logging era to its present place in the sun as a resort and the home of several small industries.

And through the years he has kept abreast of the times, in his business, his work with the band and in his thinking.

Mr. Bellinger likes nothing better than to talk of the early days when 'every four corners boasted a band.' And he adds, they were good bands, too, composed of men who loved to play.

Bay Shore, Ellsworth, Norwood, Central Lake, and of course, Charlevoix all had bands in those days.

Mr. Bellinger started his musical career at the age of 11 years with little thought of remaining with it for the next 66 years. Among his first teachers were Carrie Hilton, who taught him piano and George Newell of Grand Rapids, whose orchestra played at the old Inn every summer, who gave him his first lessons on the clarinet. But mostly he was self-taught for there weren't many good teachers around Charlevoix in those days.

AS HE GREW TO adulthood, music became a hobby as he opened his first store on Bridge st. in 1901 in the same block where his present shop is located.

Though it was a variety store the stock always included sporting equipment and musical instruments.

Though the public's demands have changed with the years, the latter two items are still found in his shop located next door to the jewelry shop operated by his son, Charles.

When he wasn't playing with the band, he was enjoying another hobby . . . boat building. Over a period of years he built more than 25 boats of various kinds. The largest of these was a 36 ft. auxiliary.

And as though this wasn't enough to keep him busy, he taught music to youngsters in the community.

WHEN HIS WIFE died in 1921, the job of rearing his four children alone was added to his many duties. Today the community knows these children as Charles Bellinger, local businessman and jeweler, James, a naval architect who owns and operates Bellinger Marine Service, Mrs. Joseph L. (Wilma) Smith, an accomplished pianist as well as a wife and mother and Mrs. George Wollam of Traverse City, wife and mother,

Cloudburst Causes Floods And Damage

A torrential downpour which dumped 1.8 inches of rain on the area in less than an hour Monday morning did extensive damage in both Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

In Charlevoix where storm sewers failed to carry away the water which over-ran curbs into many local stores. The basements of several stores were flooded when the rain backed up in the sanitary system. Elsewhere water ran into basements after settling in low spots.

Other buildings and homes were damaged when the rain came through roofs which could withstand an average rainstorm.

Several streets including sections of Clinton st. and Petoskey ave. were closed and traffic rerouted until the storm sewers could carry the water away.

IN THE RURAL area sections of some fields were washed away but no serious damage has been reported to crops.

Several washouts along the highway were reported. John J. Martin, superintendent of the Charlevoix road commission said that a washout near the viaduct on US 31 north of the city required a fill of 75 yards of gravel and another 10 yards was needed along the Boyne City road between the railroad crossing and Oyster Bay.

There were also bad washouts in the Chandler hill area in the eastern section of the county he said.

The rainfall this week has been the heaviest in months and Monday's cloudburst the greatest in many years.

ODDS 'N ENDS

BY FRAN MARTIN

A WARM WELCOME to our summer residents who are arriving daily from their homes around the nation . . . New Orleans, Miami, Baltimore, New York, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago and points in between . . . It's good to have you back with us . . . we hope you'll have a wonderful summer

WASN'T IT WONDERFUL . . . the show the Shriners presented Saturday night . . . Such precision marching you rarely see . . . and such music and singing you rarely hear in these parts . . . There was a big crowd on hand . . . among them many, many visitors . . . who came to see and hear the Shriners . . . We're sore they weren't disappointed for it was a fine show.

HOW TIMES have changed during the past 50 years . . . especially the cost of living . . . The Frank Bourgoins moved to the former Madill house recently and while doing some remodeling found some grocery bills tucked away for safe keeping . . . Dated 1908 there was bacon for 17 cents a pound; eggs 25 cents a dozen; flour, 85 cents for 25 pounds; butter, 25 cents a pound; coffee, 25 cents a pound; six bananas, 13 cents to name a few things . . . Even the names of the grocers sound strange today . . . A. E. Mason, A. M. Burdick, Martin Block, S. Orlowski and son . . . all early businessmen here . . . But the prices on those groceries . . . Holy cats.

HOW YOU BETTING . . . on that All Star baseball game in Baltimore next week? . . . Now we like the National League . . . But regardless, we're sure it's going to be a whale-of-a-game . . . with a lot of favorites playing a lot of good baseball.

REMEMBER 'WAY back to the age when you had a pen pal? . . . We're willing to bet that though you wrote a few letters, few of you ever continued the correspondence or got to meet the person you were writing to . . . But we know one little gal who did just that . . . She's Gail Curtis and she's just returned from a huge ranch in New Mexico where she visited a pen pal she'd been writing to since she was in the seventh grade . . . Like all kids she learned to write letters when she was in the seventh grade . . . Her pen pal was Sherrill Cain whose family owned this big ranch at Gran Quivira, N. M. The girls continued to write to each other, sending small gifts, snapshots and information about themselves . . . and their families . . . Then came the invitation from Sherill's family to visit their ranch . . . By this time they each knew a great deal about the other . . . So Gail, who will be a senior next year, started planning the trip . . . As soon as school was out she took off via bus for the southwest with stopovers to visit friends.

IT WAS BRANDING time on the ranch and the first morning there she was given a horse and told to come along . . . And as she describes it . . . it was just like something out of the movies . . . herds of cattle of all sizes and ages to be branded, a chuck wagon, real live cowboys . . . the works . . . Luckily she is a capable horsewoman so was able to participate . . . The ranch is 30 miles from the closest town and has acres and acres of land . . . Just like in the storybooks . . . and Gail's still flyin' on Cloud Nine . . . wondering if this actually all happened to her . . . And perhaps next year, Sherrill will come to Michigan and Gail is already planning the many things she'll show her.
